Fire Capt. Wolf, Ald. Bolek May Run

Two City Officials Weigh Race Against Mayor Behrel

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Two Des Plaines city officials may break the political logjam and join the race against Mayor Herbert Behrel in the April elections.

Despite several months of maneuvering on city council and the short-lived mayoral candidacy of one alderman, Behrel, a four-term incumbent, is still unopposed.

Now, David Wolf, a fire department captain, is "seriously considering the possibility of the race. A decision will be made over the weekend," he says.

And Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), who faces a strong challenge from Mrs. Anne Evans, 986 Jeanette, if he decides to run again for alderman, is saying "I have received a lot of encouragement. I just haven't made up my mind yet."

SPECULATION about opposition to the mayor jumped sharply this week when Rick Fulle, son of Floyd Fulle, Cook County commissioner and Maine Township Republican committeeman, requested 100 candidates petitions from the city clerk's office.

The younger Fulle, who works for a local newspaper, refused comment when asked the name of the candidate, or candidates, for whom he obtained petitions. He did not seek necessary papers to form a slate on the ballot.

But his appearance at the city clerk's office touched off another round of "who is running for what" guessing in city political circles. At least one possible candidate, Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi (7th), has entered, then withdrawn from the intrigue-filled preliminary to the city's April 17 election.

Deadline for filing petitions is Feb. 12. Candidates for mayor, clerk and treasurer need a minimum of 381 signatures.

RUMORS HAVE tied Fulle's request for petitions to both Bolek's and Wolf's possible candidacies. Some observers claimed that Rick Fulle will seek a city office, possibly 1st Ward Alderman, running against Ald. Thomas Koplos. He had "no comment," when contacted by a Herald reporter.

"Rick is my oldest son," Comr. Fulle told the Herald. "He told me a while ago that he might be interested in running for office. I personally do not become involved in local elections."

Within hours after Fulle's city hall appearance "the phone started ringing" at Wolf's 674 Laurel Ave. home. "The calls started building up. People wanted to know if I was running," Wolf said.

The Fulle name and the possible unofficial backing of influential GOP precinct captains are seen as a possible victory edge in the mayoral election. Door-to-door campaigning by precinct captains in city elections, which drew only 11,425 voters in 1969, could determine the winner.

BEHREL'S past election victories were due in part to GOP precinct workers. City elections are non-partisan, but the mayor once told a newspaper interviewer that, "Floyd's captains, a lot of them, do help me individually, but not collectively as Republicans."

Comr. Fulle said he "avoids local elections with a 12-foot pole." But his precinct captains are effective campaigners with a solid organization that spans elections. A new mayoral candidate, running without committeemen's support, faces the difficult task of forging a city-wide campaign team in a few months.

Wolf, 42, who regularly attends city council meetings, has talked abut possible candidacy with local civic leaders, including Commissioner Fulle, since December. "The caliber and extent of support is gratifying," he said.

His candidacy hinges "on several considerations. My family, my position at the fire department," Wolf said. City employe regulations would prohibit him from campaigning during duty hours, but not force him to take a leave of absence.

Most important factor is the vote-getting power of supporters. That's where the Fulle name becomes important.

WOLF, life-long resident who is well known in Des Plaines could become a rallying candidate for anti-Behrel forces. Tensions between the mayor and council peaked last month in an unsuccessful effort by aldermen to reduce the mayor's post to a part time job.

"If there are people who think they can support my candidacy, I invite them to talk," Wolf said.

"I've been advised to circulate petitions. I'm reluctant because that's some kind of commitment. If I then decide not to run, I'd be breaking a trust with the people who signed. I wouldn't want people to feel I'm casting about."

Wolf said he "would offer new and fresh ideas" if elected. "You see a position and say 'I can do that.' I feel compelled to offer my services."

Wolf is former president of the Des Plaines Historical Society. He headed Illinois sesquicentennial celebrations here in 1969 and is organizing the 1976 American bicentennial celebrations here.

WOLF NEVER has run for political office, partly because of his position in the fire department.

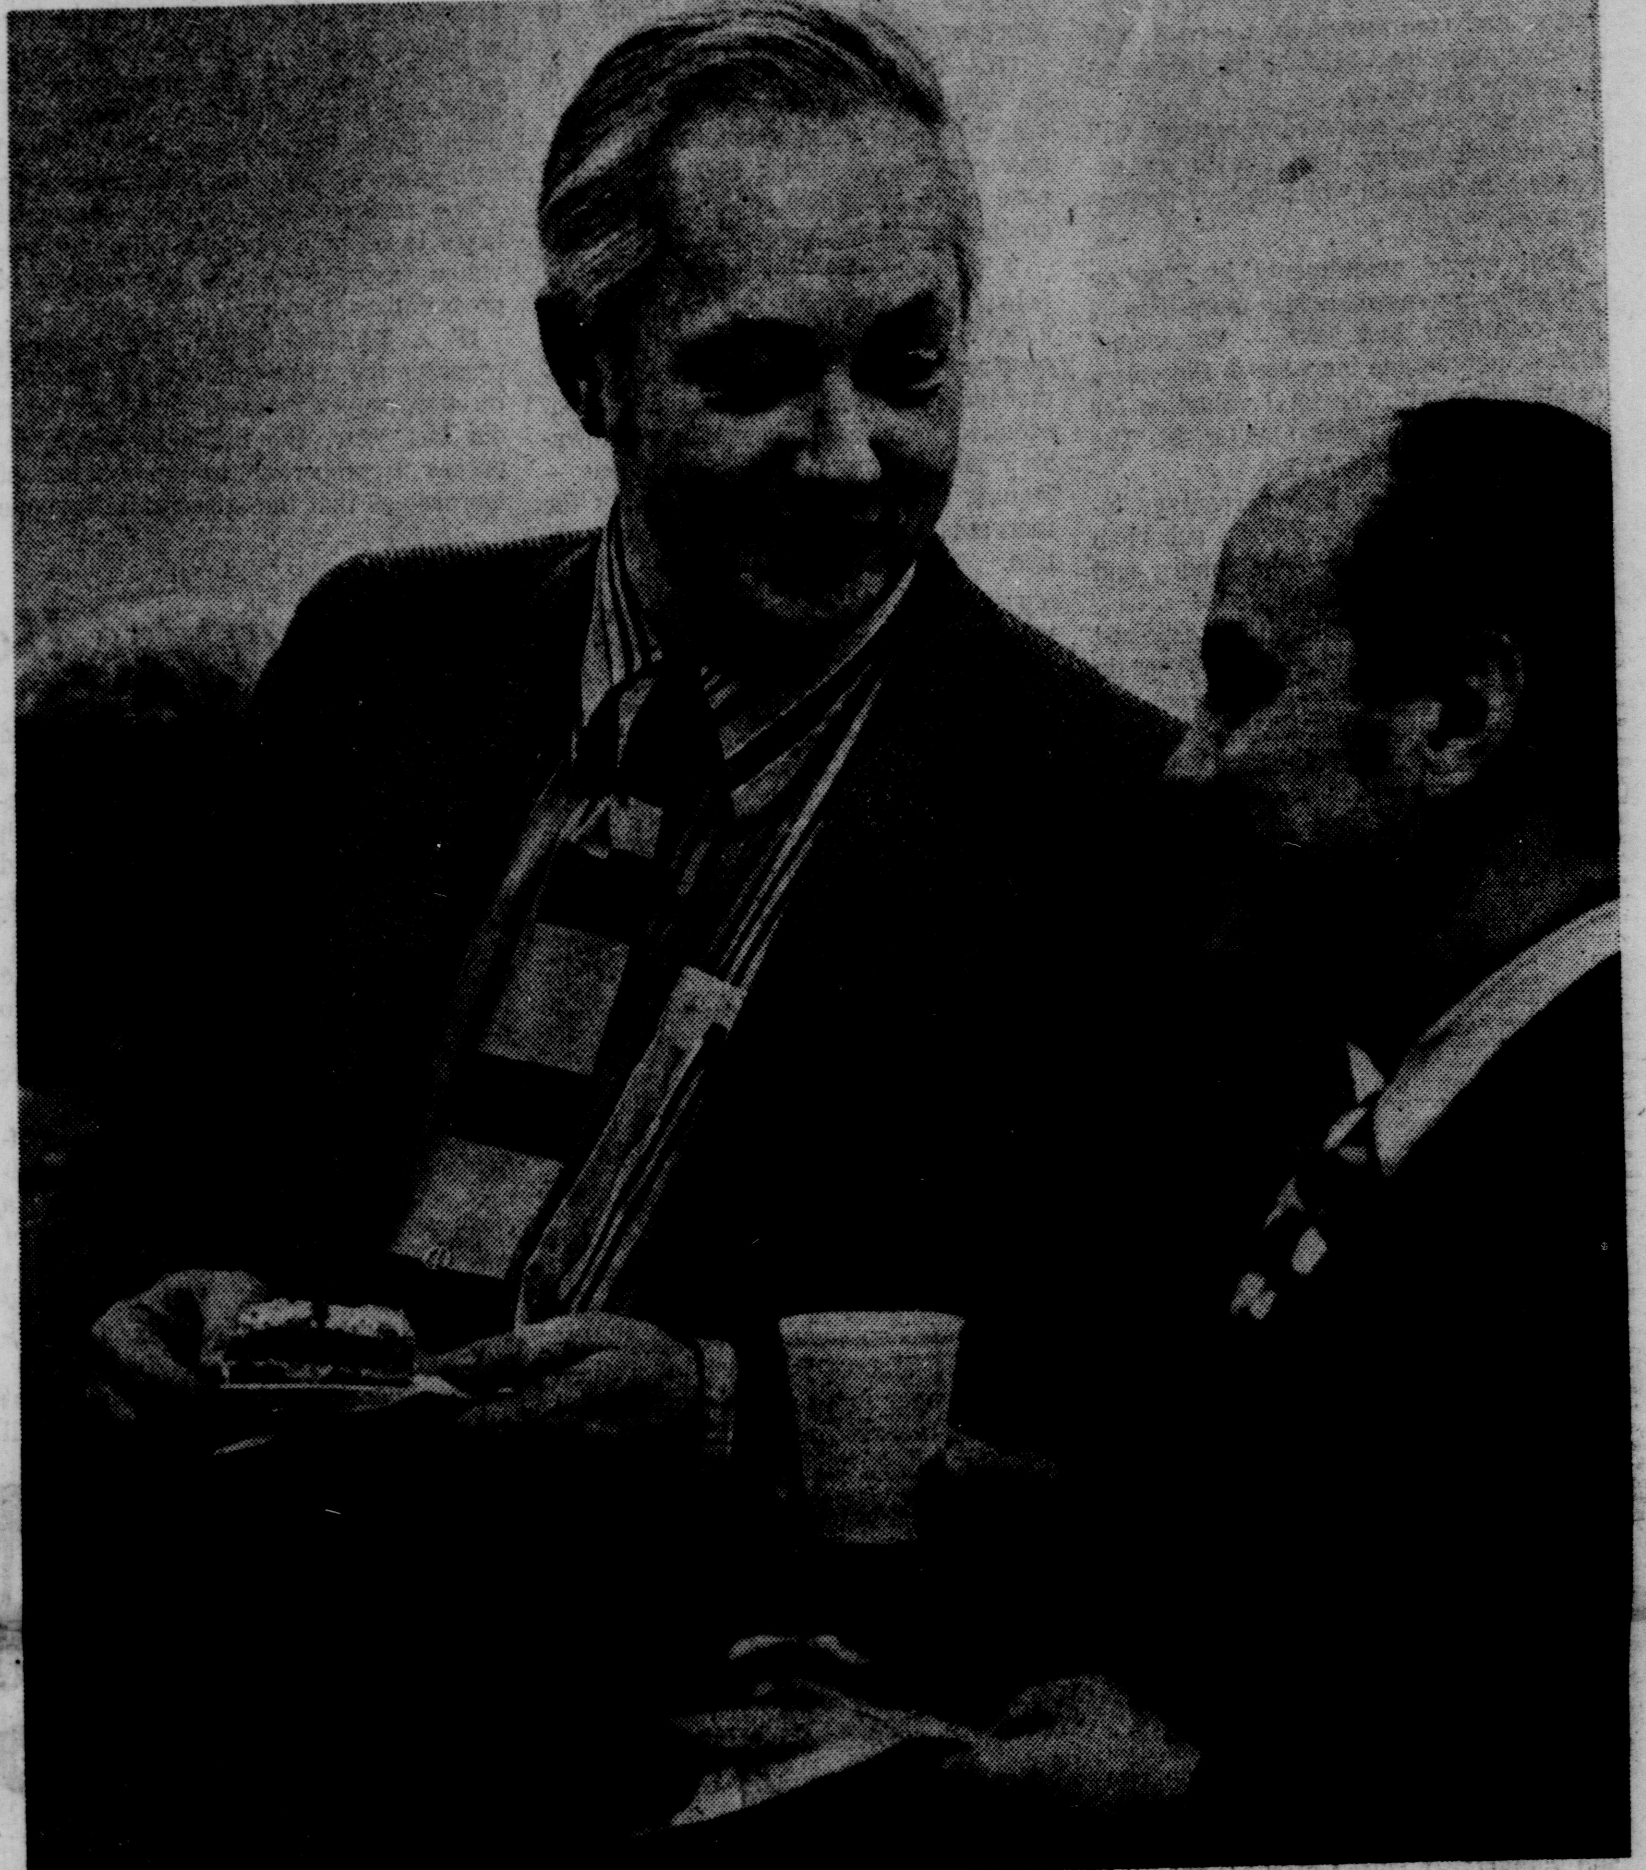
As a 21-year fire department member, Wolf will receive more than $18,700 in salary from the city this year.

The council authorized a hike in the mayor's salary to $25,000 plus a car and expenses Monday.

Bolek has been mentioned as a mayoral candidate and apparently has the support of some council members since Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi (7th) dropped from the race.

He said "There are a lot of personal things to work out."

Bolek is president and a stockholder in Jeco Industries, a Des Plaines engineering firm, and said the full-time mayor's post may force him to become "a consultant" to the company if elected. Mrs. Evans, who has announced her candidacy for Bolek's council seat, but has not filed petitions, is a former Con-Con delegate and a member of the League of Women Voters.



OAKTON COLLEGE PRES. William Koehnline, left, chatted with Trustee Raymond Harstein and munched on a piece of cake Tuesday afternoon when he was honored on his third anniversary as head of the college. Oakton President Rehired On 3-Year Contract

by KATHERINE BOYCE

President William Koehnline of Oakton Community College has been rehired on a three-year contract by a narrow vote that reflects the persistent factional split among college trustees.

The college board voted 4-3 to retain Koehnline Tuesday night after trustees argued over the desirability of the three-year contract and minority board members criticized his performance.

Koehnline, the college's only president since it was formed in 1969, led the college in forming many innovative college programs and teaching techniques praised by many community college educators throughout the state. Over the protests of trustees who have been critical of Koehnline in the past, the president was awarded a three-year contract and a raise in salary from $30,250 to $32,065.

The agreement states that Koehnline's performance as president will be evaluated by the college board each year and trustees will have the option to remove Koehnline as president based on the evaluation.

IN VOTING against the contract, Trustee Meyer Kamin said he is opposed to extending Koehnline's contract beyond one year. He said objectives set by the college have not been carried out and added that the administration has "done a very lousy job."

The final vote tally approving the contract was greeted with applause from more than 60 faculty and staff members who had come to honor Koehnline on his third anniversary as president of Oakton.

An evaluation team from the North Central Association, a school accrediting organization, criticized Oakton for not fulfilling its objectives when the team visited the school last November. Kamin said his criticisms came "long before the North Central Association commentaries."

"I cannot in good conscience vote for a three-year contract," said Kamin. He charged the administration too often "passes the buck" to the board of trustees. "There are times when being a good educator does not necessarily make you a good administrator," said Kamin. "I feel the president is not running the school but the school is running the president."

Stephen Loska, trustee from Des Plaines, said he agreed with Kamin's statements. He said it would be "unwise and unjudicious" to approve another three-year contract. Koehnline's deficiencies are small, said Loska, and progress had been made at Oakton under his leadership, but the board should not assume that progress will continue for three years.

TRUSTEE GRIFFITH MacDonald said he is also against the terms of the contract but "I prefer to discuss personnel matters in committee." He made a motion to table the resolution approving Koehnline's contract which was defeated 5 to 2.

Trustees Paul Gilson, LeRoy Wauck, Raymond Hartstein and Robert Gutschick voted to accept Koehnline's contract.

"I will be voting for one of the most innovative community college leaders in the country," said Gilson, and added that Koehnline inspires and boosts the morale of Oakton faculty and staff members.

Gutschick said he wished the board could give Koehnline a stronger contract to ensure his services to the college and the community for years to come. "Unfortunately we could not get a majority" of the trustees to agree, he said.

"There has been a diversity of opinion" among the trustees on Koehnline's contract, said Raymond Hartstein. He said he had hoped to give Koehnline a unanimous vote of confidence. The clause of the contract allowing the board to evaluate Koehnline's performance as president each year was intended as a "compromise," said Hartstein. He praised the success of Oakton as an educational institution under Koehnline's leadership. "I personally feel you do not separate the man from the institution," said Hartstein.

The board has often split into factions concerning college programs and support of the college administration. Trustees Gilson, Wauck and Hartstein, have often praised education programs at Oakton and tend to support the college administration. All three trustees have served on the college board since the college was formed and all three are up for re-election April 14.

3 Out Of 5 Townships Here Affected

Realty Assessments Jump In Suburbs

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Real estate assessments for three of five Northwest suburban townships skyrocketed for the 1972 property tax year as a result of new construction and a new method of computing assessments.

Total assessed valuations for the other two area townshipsalso showed increases for the new year, but of substantially smaller proportions.

The increases were announced Tuesday by Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton and contributed to a record high total of more than $12.2 billion in assessments for the county.

The increased assessed valuations will provide all taxing bodies with an expanded tax base on which to levy property taxes.

Real estate assessments in Palatine Township increased slightly more than 27 per cent over last year — the second highest percentage increase in the entire county. For 1971, the total valuation for Palatine Township was $145,462,984. The new valuation is $184,773,988.

THE OTHER two high percentage increases among Northwest suburban townships occurred in Schaumburg and Wheeling townships.

Schaumburg Township's total assessed valuation increased from $123,591,662 in 1971 to $152,609,654 for the current tax year — an increase of 23.47 per cent. The real estate assessments for Wheeling township went up 18.14 per cent over last year, from $281,455,222 to $332,507,655.

The largest percentage increase recorded in the county was for Barrington Township, which jumped 45.5 per cent to $33,671,922. For the entire county, assessments rose 4.5 per cent, with percentage increases of 2.08 and 7.46 for the City of Chicago and the suburban areas respectively.

Valuations for Elk Grove Township increased 9.25 per cent, from $265,686,470 in 1971 to $290,264,477 for 1972. The smallest percentage increase among Northwest suburban townships was recorded in Maine Township where the assessments rose from $370,478,578 to $378,628,571 — a 2.2 per cent hike.

THE INCREASES in assessments in all townships were caused by the addition to the tax rolls of homes and buildings constructed during 1972 and, in the case of 10 townships, a new method of computing assessments.

The increase in assessment for Schaumburg Township, for example, is a clear indication of the continued boom in new construction of both homes and industrial properties. For the second consecutive year, assessments in the township jumped more than 23 per cent — leading all townships in the county for increases resulting from new construction.

The large increases in Palatine and Wheeling townships, however, partially resulted from the implementation of a new "market value" technique of determining assessments.

The two townships were among 10 county townships that were the subject of the quadrennial reassessment completed in 1972. Other townships included in the reassessment were Evanston, New Trier, Niles, North, Barrington, North, Lakeview and Rogers Park.

UNDER THE NEW system, assessments of individual properties were determined by computing fair market value of the property instead of the old, "reproductive cost" technique.

The new system resulted in generally higher assessments for homes more than 25 years old; homes on large lots; commercial and industrial properties; and vacant land. Newer homes on small or average-size lots generally received lower assessments.

The increases in assessments for the individual homeowner do not necessarily mean those homeowners will be faced with larger property tax bills this spring.

The responsibility for the amount of taxes to be paid remains with the individual taxing body and the amount of gross dollars it levies.

IF A TAXING BODY, for example, requests the same amount of revenue, through property taxes, this year as it did last year, the tax rate would decrease in proportion to the assessment increase so that the appropriate revenue is raised. The tax owed by an individual to that taxing body, then, would remain the same. In other words, if each respective taxing body keeps its tax levy in line with last year, there will be no appreciable change in taxes.

Property taxpayers from the 10 townships affected by the quadrennial reassessment — including Palatine and Wheeling townships — may feel an extra pinch, however, in their tax bill for county-wide taxing bodies.

For example, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, Cook County and the Cook County Hospital collect taxes from taxpayers throughout the county. Because the county-wide assessment rose only 4.5 per cent, the corresponding decrease in the tax rate extended for those agencies, if any at all, may not be enough to offset the percentage increase experienced by property owners affected by the quadrennial.

Because it is physically impossible to apply the new assessing methods to the entire county in one year, in other words, inequities may exist until the entire county has been reassessed.

Fuel Shortage Hotline Established

A hotline for Illinois energy users and suppliers running out of power supplies was established yesterday by Gov. Daniel Walker. This followed a meeting with a number of agricultural, industrial and governmental representatives in Springfield.

The program, now in effect, will isolate fuel shortages and allow state officials to determine a geographical pattern. Resources could be shifted around to meet the most critical needs, he said.

Office of Emergency Preparedness officials requested that governors in Illinois and surrounding states appoint a special committee as a coordinator of energy supplies. This followed severe shortages in propane fuel needed by farmers to dry crops throughout the Midwest.

The announcement Monday that Amoco Oil Co. is restricting heating oil supplies to its commercial and residential customers in Illinois and other northern states emphasizes the energy supply problem. Amoco is a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co.

The company said this measure was being taken to prevent widespread fuel runouts.

Recent warmer weather has been a boon to the heating oil industry hard pressed for supplies. A cold snap could lead to more serious problems, an Amoco spokesman said.

Fuel shortages continued at the critical point in Rockford. Walter Williamson, president of a large Rockford area fuel dealership, blamed the shortage on major oil companies trying to keep the prices up by withholding supplies of heating oil. Twenty schools in Rockford are being kept open on a day-to-day basis as a result of the shortage.

3 Out Of 5 Townships Here Affected

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Real estate assessments for three of five Northwest suburban townships skyrocketed for the 1972 property tax year as a result of new construction and a new method of computing assessments.

Total assessed valuations for the other two area townshipsalso showed increases for the new year, but of substantially smaller proportions.

The increases were announced Tuesday by Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton and contributed to a record high total of more than $12.2 billion in assessments for the county.

The increased assessed valuations will provide all taxing bodies with an expanded tax base on which to levy property taxes.

Real estate assessments in Palatine Township increased slightly more than 27 per cent over last year — the second highest percentage increase in the entire county. For 1971, the total valuation for Palatine Township was $145,462,984. The new valuation is $184,773,988.

THE OTHER two high percentage increases among Northwest suburban townships occurred in Schaumburg and Wheeling townships.

Schaumburg Township's total assessed valuation increased from $123,591,662 in 1971 to $152,609,654 for the current tax year — an increase of 23.47 per cent. The real estate assessments for Wheeling township went up 18.14 per cent over last year, from $281,455,222 to $332,507,655.

The largest percentage increase recorded in the county was for Barrington Township, which jumped 45.5 per cent to $33,671,922. For the entire county, assessments rose 4.5 per cent, with percentage increases of 2.08 and 7.46 for the City of Chicago and the suburban areas respectively.

Valuations for Elk Grove Township increased 9.25 per cent, from $265,686,470 in 1971 to $290,264,477 for 1972. The smallest percentage increase among Northwest suburban townships was recorded in Maine Township where the assessments rose from $370,478,578 to $378,628,571 — a 2.2 per cent hike.

THE INCREASES in assessments in all townships were caused by the addition to the tax rolls of homes and buildings constructed during 1972 and, in the case of 10 townships, a new method of computing assessments.

The increase in assessment for Schaumburg Township, for example, is a clear indication of the continued boom in new construction of both homes and industrial properties. For the second consecutive year, assessments in the township jumped more than 23 per cent — leading all townships in the county for increases resulting from new construction.

The large increases in Palatine and Wheeling townships, however, partially resulted from the implementation of a new "market value" technique of determining assessments.

The two townships were among 10 county townships that were the subject of the quadrennial reassessment completed in 1972. Other townships included in the reassessment were Evanston, New Trier, Niles, North, Barrington, North, Lakeview and Rogers Park.

UNDER THE NEW system, assessments of individual properties were determined by computing fair market value of the property instead of the old, "reproductive cost" technique.

The new system resulted in generally higher assessments for homes more than 25 years old; homes on large lots; commercial and industrial properties; and vacant land. Newer homes on small or average-size lots generally received lower assessments.

The increases in assessments for the individual homeowner do not necessarily mean those homeowners will be faced with larger property tax bills this spring.

The responsibility for the amount of taxes to be paid remains with the individual taxing body and the amount of gross dollars it levies.

IF A TAXING BODY, for example, requests the same amount of revenue, through property taxes, this year as it did last year, the tax rate would decrease in proportion to the assessment increase so that the appropriate revenue is raised. The tax owed by an individual to that taxing body, then, would remain the same. In other words, if each respective taxing body keeps its tax levy in line with last year, there will be no appreciable change in taxes.

Property taxpayers from the 10 townships affected by the quadrennial reassessment — including Palatine and Wheeling townships — may feel an extra pinch, however, in their tax bill for county-wide taxing bodies.

For example, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, Cook County and the Cook County Hospital collect taxes from taxpayers throughout the county. Because the county-wide assessment rose only 4.5 per cent, the corresponding decrease in the tax rate extended for those agencies, if any at all, may not be enough to offset the percentage increase experienced by property owners affected by the quadrennial.

Because it is physically impossible to apply the new assessing methods to the entire county in one year, in other words, inequities may exist until the entire county has been reassessed.

Dorothy Oliver

Last night I was reading an article in a national newspaper about a tradition near and dear to the hearts of most women — especially those who stay at home.

The kaffeeklatsch originated more than 150 years ago in Germany and, the article said, was a long-ago symbol of women's liberation. The German housewife of the 1800's had achieved a new life-style and was no longer simply her husband's helper in the fields. The typical woman lived in town, had more interests of her own and more time to pursue them. Although her main interests were still domestic she was becoming aware of the social changes sweeping Europe and found in the kaffeeklatsch a forum to express her ideas.

Men weren't invited to the hausfrau's mid-morning meetings. The article contends that the men, uneasy over this display of independence, teased that the main reason for the gathering was to spread the latest klatsch or gossip.

Kaffee, or coffee, was attached to the label for several reasons: the brew was traditionally a man's drink and the beverage of the nobility. A middle-class woman serving coffee to her friends was striking a blow for social equality.

I'M NOT SURE how much of the article is fact and how much conjecture but it doesn't really matter. Reading the short piece brought back memories of those days when the boys were small and I couldn't have existed without my daily kaffeeklatsches.

When home was a third floor walk-up apartment in the midst of Rogers Park and there was only one tow-head running around, the best part of the day was tucking him in bed for an afternoon nap and congregating with my neighbors for a Coke and conversation. (Non-coffee drinkers have Kokeeklatsches.)

As the article attests we were not there just to gossip — although the "did you hears" came up occasionally. The majority of our conversation was devoted to "ain't it awfuls" (this category includes housework, food prices, child discipline, budgets, etc.) and "look at this world" (this category devoted to heads of state, states of nations, presidential error and conflict in general).

On occasion someone's fight with her husband, battle with her mother-in-law or quarrel with society would come up and we would work together to find a solution.

OUR MOVE TO THE suburbs brought little change to the kaffeeklatching. It remained an afternoon tradition to set aside the things that needed to be done and take a break with the neighbors. The categories remained the same and there was always enough to say.

A year ago, after working for three years and not having the routine afternoon klatsch, I talked with Dr. Jeanine Gavin, director of Incentives, Inc., a private mental health clinic in Des Plaines. Part of our conversation revolved around the very thing I'd been doing all those years.

"We know that there are thousands of women having kaffeeklatsches, sitting with people they can trust, sharing the problems of their marriages, their affairs, their fears, etc.," Dr. Gavin said.

"The afternoon coffee, however can perpetuate some problems. There is no one to turn to and say, 'I hate my child.' The others will turn on her in anger and disgust. There is no one to tell her that this feeling is normal and natural. Sometimes the kaffeeklatsch can make a woman feel abnormal or sick."

DR. GAVIN ADDED that women (and men) have similar problems. The kaffeeklatsch can serve as a (and I hate the term) consciousness raising session, a therapy group or an encounter group.

It would be silly to deny that close friends don't get together and share their problems as well as their daily gripes and joys. I've heard intimate details of a person's life revealed during a pinochle game during my card club days.

Dr. Gavin feels this is dangerous. Your best friend can become your deadliest enemy while "helping" you work out a problem. She believes the helping is a job for a professional, not a friend.

Her feelings are shared by many others in the mental health field. Some are opening up groups for women which would provide the "helping." It's food for thought — maybe something to discuss this afternoon over a cup of coffee with good friends.

Behrel Cites Accomplishments In '72

Mayor Herbert Behrel called 1972 "not an exceptional year" but one that "saw a number of projects completed with considerable benefit to the people" in his annual report this week.

The report did not list project priorities for 1973.

Projects finished last year included:

- Widening and paving of Thacker-Dempster Street from Wolf Road to Elmhurst Road.
- Widening and improvement of Oakton Street west of Mount Prospect Road.
- Acquisition of downtown land for redevelopment.
- Membership in the Northwest Municipal Data System.
- Microfilming of city records.
- Dedication of fire station No. 1; the police bike program and participation in an area-wide blood donor program.

"I have indicated many other things that will need the attention of our city council during the coming year," the mayor said. Many of those projects were listed as top priorities last year.

Behrel said redevelopment of the downtown area "continued at an active pace." Redevelopment officials "are progressing about as rapidly as can be expected," he said. The city's $825,000 parking bond program led to opening of the Ellinwood parking lot as part of the program.

FLOODING IN fall 1972 led to a council decision to use federal revenue sharing funds for flood control, the mayor said. "The work is urgently needed." The city's proposed budget lists 12 revenue sharing projects totaling $830,500.

"There has been considerable discussion about the need for a new city hall. It is apparent that this need is even greater now than it was a couple of years ago," the mayor said.

The report predicts Des Plaines Mass Transit District officials "will soon be seeking a meeting with the aldermen for additional discussion concerning the United Motor Coach Company's problem." The city's transit district is expected to seek council authorization to contract an audit outlining possible purchase price of the bus firm.

The mayor predicted efforts to build senior citizen housing here "will now move steadily forward." Options recently were obtained to buy a site for an apartment building for the elderly.

"We continue our efforts to try and convince the Metropolitan Sanitary District to rearrange their plans and pro gram to construct the proposed wate reclamation plant at some location othe than the Oakton and Ill. Rte. 83 site." Behrel said he is working "to get a re lease on land under the jurisdiction o the Department of Defense" near O'Har Airport for the plant.

"It is not too early to mention that th John Sexton Co. landfill site on the nort side of Central Road, east of the De Plaines river, is now projected to have life span of about seven years."

Art Gallery To Honor Oakton College President

Students and faculty members at Oakton Community College plan to establish an art gallery in behalf of Oakton Pres. William Koehnline, commemorating his third anniversary with the school.

The announcement was made Tuesday night during the monthly meeting of the college board of trustees by Walter Bobiewicz, psychology professor at Oakton. The Koehnline Gallery will include the art works of students and faculty members at Oakton as well as the work of professional artists.

Bobkiewicz presented Koehnline with a plaque that will be placed in the gallery with the inscription of Koehnline's words, "Art is a creative response to life." Barbara Bell, president of the student body at Oakton, dedicated the first four photographs to be placed in the gallery, three by students, and one by Oakton photography teacher Bernard Krule.

OAKTON IS one of the "few colleges in the country where educational innovation is not only talked about, but practiced — and practiced in an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect that makes the student-centered educational process an achievable ideal," said Bobkiewicz. The success of the college is due to the leadership of Koehnline, he said.

Speaking for faculty, students and staff of Oakton, Bobkiewicz said, "We look forward to associating with him in the years to come, to establishing with him a long and increasingly beneficial relationship among all the members of the college community, and to working with him toward a future for the college that builds upon its excellence in the past."

Koehnline was also honored in a reception held Tuesday afternoon on the campus attended by more than 100 students, staff and faculty members. Staff members purchased an art print by Miro, as a contribution to the Koehnline gallery.

Construction Delays Rapped

Junior High Open By July 1?

Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines may not be ready in time for summer school.

Grant Terrell, representative for the Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 architect, told the board Tuesday, "It is highly improbably to complete the work based on past performance."

Terrell said a "reasonable estimate" for completion is July 1.

The July 1 date is the fourth deadline that has been set for the building. Originally the building was to be ready at the first of the year, than in mid-March and then mid-May or June 1.

Terrell said, his opinion, "most of the problem was due to the mis-management" of Al Berg, the general contractor.

BERG did not attend the Tuesday meeting. Another meeting was set for last night with Berg, Terrell, other job contractors and the school board. It would be the third consecutive night of meetings the board has held on the delays.

Tuesday morning, Terrell and Berg had met with school officials. Later, Terrell and Berg toured the job site. After touring the site, Terrell said,

Tuesday morning, Terrell and Berg had met with school officials. Later, Terrell and Berg toured the job site. After touring the site, Terrell said, "Berg finally realized he had a real problem."

Terrell said he did not accept Berg's excuses of problems getting workers and supplies as the cause of the delays.

Board members were visibly angry about the continued delays on the project. They asked Terrell for options open to them under the construction contract to force Berg to improve his work.

TERRELL said the board could:

- Withhold payments.
- Have Berg come to board meetings every two weeks to give progress reports.
- Terminate the contract and get another contractor.

Terrell recommended withholding payments, saying, "Money, to a contractor, is a big thing." He said having Berg report every two weeks would not be effective and changing contractors would lose too much time.

Terrell said that even though the building might not be ready for summer school, he was certain it would be ready by the start of the 1973-74 school year.

Man On Probation Gets Probation

A Schaumburg man convicted of burglarizing a Des Plaines tavern Dec. 15 has been sentenced to three years' probation.

Vincent J. Baldimenti, 20, of 504 Brockton St., was placed on probation Friday by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Daniel J. Ryan.

Baldimenti was sentenced to probation despite the almost one year remaining on an earlier probation sentence resulting from a burglary conviction in 1970. He was given a three-year probation Jan. 2, 1971, for that crime.

Baldimenti and two Mount Prospect juveniles were arrested April 29 last year by Des Plaines police officers after the trio entered Steve's Lounge, 1460 E. Rand Rd., by prying open a window after the lounge had closed.

Police, acting on a tip, had staked out the building. When police moved in the three tried to flee but were caught before they could get away.

Baldimenti suffered three broken cheek bones when he was struck by a policeman while resisting arrest, according to reports.

Last night I was reading an article in a national newspaper about a tradition near and dear to the hearts of most women — especially those who stay at home.

The kaffeeklatsch originated more than 150 years ago in Germany and, the article said, was a long-ago symbol of women's liberation. The German housewife of the 1800's had achieved a new life-style and was no longer simply her husband's helper in the fields. The typical woman lived in town, had more interests of her own and more time to pursue them. Although her main interests were still domestic she was becoming aware of the social changes sweeping Europe and found in the kaffeeklatsch a forum to express her ideas.

Men weren't invited to the hausfrau's mid-morning meetings. The article contends that the men, uneasy over this display of independence, teased that the main reason for the gathering was to spread the latest klatsch or gossip.

Kaffee, or coffee, was attached to the label for several reasons: the brew was traditionally a man's drink and the beverage of the nobility. A middle-class woman serving coffee to her friends was striking a blow for social equality.

I'M NOT SURE how much of the article is fact and how much conjecture but it doesn't really matter. Reading the short piece brought back memories of those days when the boys were small and I couldn't have existed without my daily kaffeeklatsches.

When home was a third floor walk-up apartment in the midst of Rogers Park and there was only one tow-head running around, the best part of the day was tucking him in bed for an afternoon nap and congregating with my neighbors for a Coke and conversation. (Non-coffee drinkers have Kokeeklatsches.)

As the article attests we were not there just to gossip — although the "did you hears" came up occasionally. The majority of our conversation was devoted to "ain't it awfuls" (this category includes housework, food prices, child discipline, budgets, etc.) and "look at this world" (this category devoted to heads of state, states of nations, presidential error and conflict in general).

On occasion someone's fight with her husband, battle with her mother-in-law or quarrel with society would come up and we would work together to find a solution.

OUR MOVE TO THE suburbs brought little change to the kaffeeklatching. It remained an afternoon tradition to set aside the things that needed to be done and take a break with the neighbors. The categories remained the same and there was always enough to say.

A year ago, after working for three years and not having the routine afternoon klatsch, I talked with Dr. Jeanine Gavin, director of Incentives, Inc., a private mental health clinic in Des Plaines. Part of our conversation revolved around the very thing I'd been doing all those years.

"We know that there are thousands of women having kaffeeklatsches, sitting with people they can trust, sharing the problems of their marriages, their affairs, their fears, etc.," Dr. Gavin said.

"The afternoon coffee, however can perpetuate some problems. There is no one to turn to and say, 'I hate my child.' The others will turn on her in anger and disgust. There is no one to tell her that this feeling is normal and natural. Sometimes the kaffeeklatsch can make a woman feel abnormal or sick."

DR. GAVIN ADDED that women (and men) have similar problems. The kaffeeklatsch can serve as a (and I hate the term) consciousness raising session, a therapy group or an encounter group.

It would be silly to deny that close friends don't get together and share their problems as well as their daily gripes and joys. I've heard intimate details of a person's life revealed during a pinochle game during my card club days.

Dr. Gavin feels this is dangerous. Your best friend can become your deadliest enemy while "helping" you work out a problem. She believes the helping is a job for a professional, not a friend.

Her feelings are shared by many others in the mental health field. Some are opening up groups for women which would provide the "helping." It's food for thought — maybe something to discuss this afternoon over a cup of coffee with good friends.

Behrel Cites Accomplishments In '72

Mayor Herbert Behrel called 1972 "not an exceptional year" but one that "saw a number of projects completed with considerable benefit to the people" in his annual report this week.

The report did not list project priorities for 1973.

Projects finished last year included:

- Widening and paving of Thacker-Dempster Street from Wolf Road to Elmhurst Road.
- Widening and improvement of Oakton Street west of Mount Prospect Road.
- Acquisition of downtown land for redevelopment.
- Membership in the Northwest Municipal Data System.
- Microfilming of city records.
- Dedication of fire station No. 1; the police bike program and participation in an area-wide blood donor program.

"I have indicated many other things that will need the attention of our city council during the coming year," the mayor said. Many of those projects were listed as top priorities last year.

Behrel said redevelopment of the downtown area "continued at an active pace." Redevelopment officials "are progressing about as rapidly as can be expected," he said. The city's $825,000 parking bond program led to opening of the Ellinwood parking lot as part of the program.

FLOODING IN fall 1972 led to a council decision to use federal revenue sharing funds for flood control, the mayor said. "The work is urgently needed." The city's proposed budget lists 12 revenue sharing projects totaling $830,500.

"There has been considerable discussion about the need for a new city hall. It is apparent that this need is even greater now than it was a couple of years ago," the mayor said.

The report predicts Des Plaines Mass Transit District officials "will soon be seeking a meeting with the aldermen for additional discussion concerning the United Motor Coach Company's problem." The city's transit district is expected to seek council authorization to contract an audit outlining possible purchase price of the bus firm.

The mayor predicted efforts to build senior citizen housing here "will now move steadily forward." Options recently were obtained to buy a site for an apartment building for the elderly.

"We continue our efforts to try and convince the Metropolitan Sanitary District to rearrange their plans and program to construct the proposed water reclamation plant at some location other than the Oakton and Ill. Rte. 83 site." Behrel said he is working "to get a release on land under the jurisdiction of the Department of Defense" near O'Hare Airport for the plant.

"It is not too early to mention that the John Sexton Co. landfill site on the north side of Central Road, east of the Des Plaines river, is now projected to have a life span of about seven years."

Art Gallery To Honor Oakton College President

Students and faculty members at Oakton Community College plan to establish an art gallery in behalf of Oakton Pres. William Koehnline, commemorating his third anniversary with the school.

The announcement was made Tuesday night during the monthly meeting of the college board of trustees by Walter Bobiewicz, psychology professor at Oakton. The Koehnline Gallery will include the art works of students and faculty members at Oakton as well as the work of professional artists.

Bobkiewicz presented Koehnline with a plaque that will be placed in the gallery with the inscription of Koehnline's words, "Art is a creative response to life." Barbara Bell, president of the student body at Oakton, dedicated the first four photographs to be placed in the gallery, three by students, and one by Oakton photography teacher Bernard Krule.

OAKTON IS one of the "few colleges in the country where educational innovation is not only talked about, but practiced — and practiced in an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect that makes the student-centered educational process an achievable ideal," said Bobkiewicz. The success of the college is due to the leadership of Koehnline, he said.

Speaking for faculty, students and staff of Oakton, Bobkiewicz said, "We look forward to associating with him in the years to come, to establishing with him a long and increasingly beneficial relationship among all the members of the college community, and to working with him toward a future for the college that builds upon its excellence in the past."

Koehnline was also honored in a reception held Tuesday afternoon on the campus attended by more than 100 students, staff and faculty members. Staff members purchased an art print by Miro, as a contribution to the Koehnline gallery.

Construction Delays Rapped

Junior High Open By July 1?

Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines may not be ready in time for summer school.

Grant Terrell, representative for the Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 architect, told the board Tuesday, "It is highly improbably to complete the work based on past performance."

Terrell said a "reasonable estimate" for completion is July 1.

The July 1 date is the fourth deadline that has been set for the building. Originally the building was to be ready at the first of the year, than in mid-March and then mid-May or June 1.

Terrell said, his opinion, "most of the problem was due to the mis-management" of Al Berg, the general contractor.

BERG did not attend the Tuesday meeting. Another meeting was set for last night with Berg, Terrell, other job contractors and the school board. It would be the third consecutive night of meetings the board has held on the delays.

Old Issue (Money) Tops Teacher Salary Talks

by WANDALYN RICE

Members of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education and representatives of the district's teachers tackled the issue that hung up last year's salary negotiations Tuesday.

The two sides quickly found themselves discussing the philosophy and history of teachers' salary demands and arguing over the purpose of their meeting.

The meeting was the second by a committee of the Dist. 214 Board that has been charged with finding alternatives to the present salary index used to determine the pay of Dist. 214 teachers. The index system was the major point of contention between the board and teachers during last year's negotiations.

Under the index system, pay for experienced teachers is a fixed percentage of the base pay. As a result of the way the index is set up, a raise of $100 in the salaries of beginning teachers results in a raise of more than $200 for teachers at the top of the salary scale.

THREE BOARD members, three administrators and three members of the Dist. 214 Education Association have been named to the committee.

Board member Richard Bachhuber, who serves as chairman, insisted Tuesday that all meetings of the committee will be open to the public because the committee is not directly involved in negotiations. Negotiations meetings are normally held behind closed doors.

Vince Carioti, president of the Education Association, briefly objected to the meetings being public, saying, "I would prefer it private but I understand the board can't do that. If at any time we feel this meeting is not functioning the way it should, we will withdraw."

Tre meeting began with an argument between Bachhuber and fellow board member Arthur Aronson about precisely what the committee's position is regarding the index.

BACHHUBER said that he believes the board has made a definite decision that it will not continue the index into the 1973-74 salary contract.

"This committee is a study of what we are going to do in place of it," he said.

When Carioti expressed the opinion that the teachers should not participate in the committee if elimination of the index was already determined, Aronson disagreed with Bachhuber's interpretation.

"The board certainly wants to get rid of the index, but that doesn't mean we will do it," Aronson said. "I'm openly against the index system, but after study we may come in and say the index is the best thing and we'll have to report that to the board."

THE COMMITTEE members received packets compiled by Assistant Supt. Robert Weber comparing Dist. 214's salary schedules to those of 11 other high school districts. Aronson pointed out that the only district with a more expensive schedule than Dist. 214 is the Leyden Township High School District.

Aronson said his main concern about the present index is that it results in higher pay for teachers than salary plans used in other school districts.

Carioti said teachers have found the index system necessary because it helped bring salaries up to a level that is comparable to the pay of other professionals.

"It's only been in the last four or five years that there have been large salary increases," he said. "The increases were forced by that index."

He added that it might now be possible for teachers to agree to be less rigid about the index because salaries are higher, but added, "It would have to be a point of education with the teaches. If we come up with an altered index we'll never sell it to some teachers."

When Bachhuber pointed to district budget projections that indicate Dist. 214 faces increasing budget deficits in the next few years, Carioti said the association has hired a private accountant to go over the district's projections to substantiate whether or not the district is in financial trouble.

"IF OUR accountant arrives at the same position you've arrived at," Carioti said, "We'd be damn fools not to reconsider the whole situation in negotiations."

He added, "It has never been the intent of the people in Dist. 214 to push this district to the (financial) brink. There has been question, though, about whether that brink is actually arriving."

Alternatives to the index system, the committee agreed, might include revised salary schedules with different base points, merit or modified merit pay systems or schedules that build in cost-of-living increases.

The committee will meet again Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, to continue the discussions.

Council Weighs Budget Tonight

The Des Plaines City Council will meet at 8 p.m. tonight as a committee of the whole to discuss the proposed 1973 budget.

A record $12.2 million proposed budget was released this week.

The proposal includes any hikes for elected officials and changes from a part-time to full-time city treasurer and city clerk.

'Prince And Pauper' Presentation Feb. 10

The Des Plaines Park District Children's Theater program will present the play, "The Prince and the Pauper" Feb. 10 at 2 p.m. at Maine West High School. Tickets are available at the door or at the park district office for 50 cents each.

"The Prince and the Pauper," by Mark Twain, is a lively tale of a little beggar boy who changes places with the rightful heir to the throne and becomes a bogus king. The play is presented by the Robin Hood Players, a professional acting company in Chicago. They are now in their ninth season.

In-Service Program For E. Maine Teachers

East Maine School Dist. 63 has scheduled a series of more than 20 courses for teachers as part of the district's in-service program. The courses are designed to give teachers opportunities to explore areas of interest and to improve their professional skills, school officials said.

Classes offered include school law, learning disabilities, art workshop creative dramatics, behavior modification, individualized instruction and differentiated staffing. They will be taught by visiting professors as well as Dist. 63 personnel. In addition, some teachers will use their in-service time to visit other schools in the area to observe innovative programs.

The sessions will be held Jan. 23, Jan. 30 and Feb. 27 from 1 to 4 p.m. Students will not attend school those afternoons.

The in-service program was developed through the efforts of Dist. 63's in-service committee. Members of the committee include Bob Bloomquist, chairman, Carol Thompson, Larry Jania, Stuart Liechti, Mary Devereux, Helen Farrell, Bruce Ramsden, Mary Jo Wilhelm, Ken Panczyk, Marge Kountzman, Doreen Olsen, Ted Leskiewicz, Joyce Recker, Nancy Bloomquist and Margaret Clarke.

Aide To Oakton President Quits

The resignation of Lena Lucietto, assistant to the president at Oakton Community College, was accepted by the college board of trustees at its meeting Tuesday night.

Miss Lucietto said she is leaving Oakton to become assistant to the president and associate professor of education at the University of Rhode Island. Oakton trustee Griffith MacDonald, chairman of the board personnel committee, said the board accepted her resignation with regret and extends its good wishes. The resignation is effective April 6.

As assistant to Oakton President William Koehnline, Miss Lucietto is in charge of public information, accreditation of college programs, special funding including government grants, communication within the college and long-range planning of college programs and facilities.

She joined the staff in May, 1970. Miss Lucietto received her undergraduate degree from Rosary College in River Grove, and masters and doctorate degrees from the University of Chicago. She was formerly employed as a foreign language consultant for the Chicago Public Schools.

Carioti said teachers have found the index system necessary because it helped bring salaries up to a level that is comparable to the pay of other professionals.

"It's only been in the last four or five years that there have been large salary increases," he said. "The increases were forced by that index."

He added that it might now be possible for teachers to agree to be less rigid about the index because salaries are higher, but added, "It would have to be a point of education with the teaches. If we come up with an altered index we'll never sell it to some teachers."

When Bachhuber pointed to district budget projections that indicate Dist. 214 faces increasing budget deficits in the next few years, Carioti said the association has hired a private accountant to go over the district's projections to substantiate whether or not the district is in financial trouble.

"IF OUR accountant arrives at the same position you've arrived at," Carioti said, "We'd be damn fools not to reconsider the whole situation in negotiations."

He added, "It has never been the intent of the people in Dist. 214 to push this district to the (financial) brink. There has been question, though, about whether that brink is actually arriving."

Alternatives to the index system, the committee agreed, might include revised salary schedules with different base points, merit or modified merit pay systems or schedules that build in cost-of-living increases.

The committee will meet again Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, to continue the discussions.

Council Weighs Budget Tonight

The Des Plaines City Council will meet at 8 p.m. tonight as a committee of the whole to discuss the proposed 1973 budget.

A record $12.2 million proposed budget was released this week.

The proposal includes any hikes for elected officials and changes from a part-time to full-time city treasurer and city clerk.

'Prince And Pauper' Presentation Feb. 10

The Des Plaines Park District Children's Theater program will present the play, "The Prince and the Pauper" Feb. 10 at 2 p.m. at Maine West High School. Tickets are available at the door or at the park district office for 50 cents each.

"The Prince and the Pauper," by Mark Twain, is a lively tale of a little beggar boy who changes places with the rightful heir to the throne and becomes a bogus king. The play is presented by the Robin Hood Players, a professional acting company in Chicago. They are now in their ninth season.

In-Service Program For E. Maine Teachers

East Maine School Dist. 63 has scheduled a series of more than 20 courses for teachers as part of the district's in-service program. The courses are designed to give teachers opportunities to explore areas of interest and to improve their professional skills, school officials said.

Classes offered include school law, learning disabilities, art workshop creative dramatics, behavior modification, individualized instruction and differentiated staffing. They will be taught by visiting professors as well as Dist. 63 personnel. In addition, some teachers will use their in-service time to visit other schools in the area to observe innovative programs.

The sessions will be held Jan. 23, Jan. 30 and Feb. 27 from 1 to 4 p.m. Students will not attend school those afternoons.

The in-service program was developed through the efforts of Dist. 63's in-service committee. Members of the committee include Bob Bloomquist, chairman, Carol Thompson, Larry Jania, Stuart Liechti, Mary Devereux, Helen Farrell, Bruce Ramsden, Mary Jo Wilhelm, Ken Panczyk, Marge Kountzman, Doreen Olsen, Ted Leskiewicz, Joyce Recker, Nancy Bloomquist and Margaret Clarke.

Crane Reintroduces Five Measures In Congress

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has reintroduced five legislative measures in the 93rd Congress that he sponsored unsuccessfully in the 92nd Congress.

Crane was sworn in for his third term when Congress convened last week.

Among the measures he is sponsoring are:

- A bill providing mandatory life imprisonment for persons convicted for the second time of illegally distributing "hard" drugs.
- A bill demanding life imprisonment for the second commission of a felony involving the use of firearms.
- A bill permitting taxpayers to deduct costs of education at colleges, universities, trade or vocational schools.
- A bill to remove restrictions on the private delivery of first-class mail.
- A bill to restore the right of private citizens to buy, sell and hold gold.

Rep. Philip Crane

CRANE'S drug and firearms bills, first introduced last spring, call for sentences of 2-to-25 years for first offenders. Current laws establish 1-to-10 year sentences for first offenders with firearms and 2-to-25 years for second offenses. Drug distribution laws provide indeterminate sentences up to 15 years for the first offense and up to 30 years for the second offense, in addition to fines of up to $15,000 and $30,000 respectively.

Crane's bill on drug pushers has the support of President Nixon, but was not acted upon by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The Congressman reported that a survey of his constituents taken in the fall showed that 97 per cent of those over 21 years of age supported stiffer penalties for drug pushers, as did 86 per cent of those under 21.

Crane said the certainty of long prison sentences for drug pushers and armed felons is the surest way to reduce these offenses.

His tax credit bill, he said, is aimed "at helping create a diversity in the kind of education available to taxpayers." Crane said he would be particularly valuable in encouraging youth not planning to attend college to further their education in vocational schools.

THE BILL would provide annual tax credits up to $1,000.

The bill removing restrictions on mail delivery, he said, would result in faster delivery of first-class mail at lower rates, adding that "various independent postal services have already proved they can handle the mail faster than the U.S. Postal Service," at lower costs.

His gold bill would repeal the 1934 prohibition against American citizens possessing gold.

Crane also has joined in sponsorship of legislation designed to halt aircraft highjacking, introduced last week by U.S. Rep. Ogden R. Reid, D-N.Y. The bill would authorize the President to suspend air service by foreign or domestic airlines between the United States and any foreign nation which harbors accused skyjackers, or any foreign nation which continued air service with such nations.

The bill would also prohibit any flights unless all passengers and carry-on baggage have been searched by metal-detection devices.

MSD Seeks Land For 2 Retention Basins

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District is trying to buy two tracts of land, comprising 265 acres, near the site of the controversial proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.

The two tracts are located on the southwest side of Des Plaines, south of the Northwest Tollway. The first, a 130-acre parcel, lies just west of Elmhurst Road and north of Higgins Road. The second, a 135-acre tract, lies between Elmhurst Road on the west, Mount Prospect Road on the east, the tollway on the north and Higgins Road on the south.

The land the MSD is seeking would be used for two retention reservoirs, not for a new location for the treatment plant, district officials said last week.

The MSD board is expected to adopt an ordinance Jan. 25 to authorize negotiations (and condemnation proceedings if necessary) to obtain the 130-acre site southwest of the O'Hare plant site. The additional land will be used as the reservoir for the Northwest suburban branch of the combined sewage overflow tunnels being built as part of the Chicago Underflow Plan.

THE DISTRICT board last month approved a similar ordinance to seek the 135 acres of land for the Willow-Higgins retention reservoir. That site includes land owned by the City of Chicago as well as privately-owned land southeast of the O'Hare plant site.

The district's plans to acquire the 130-acre site for the combined sewer overflow reservoir were discussed by MSD board members Tuesday at a study session on flood control projects.

Ben Sosewitz, district general superintendent, told the district board members about the two new reservoirs as a part of a status report to the board on various flood control projects underway in the district.

Sosewitz told the board the district hopes to obtain the City-of-Chicago-owned land from the old Ravenswood Airport, in exchange for providing a drainage outlet for a poorly drained portion of O'Hare Airport.

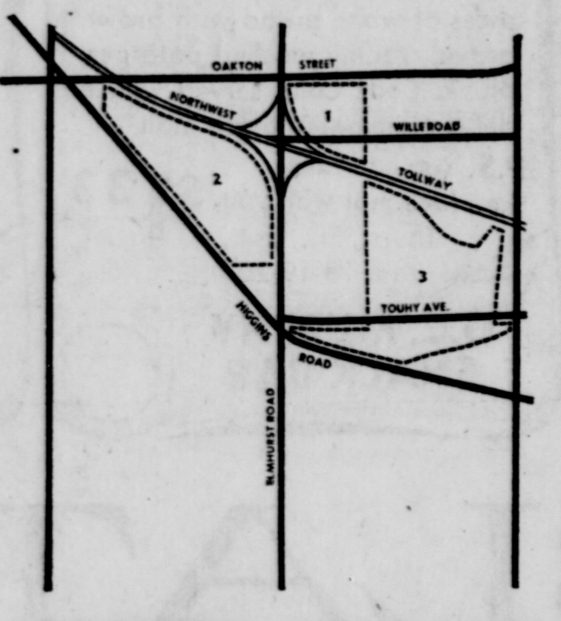
The sanitary district cannot condemn land owned by the city and must seek the city's cooperation in obtaining the land for the Willow-Higgins reservoir, Sosewitz explained.

SOSEWITZ SAID the district will also seek cooperation from the state in having the Illinois Division of Waterways dredge Willow-Higgins Creek farther south in Rosemont at a cost of $1.2 million. The combination of the reservoir and the dredging is designed to end flooding problems in southwestern Des Plaines and Rosemont as well as on the O'Hare property.

Pointing to the 130-acre site the district is seeking for the combined sewer overflow reservoir, Sosewitz told the board members it is located in a sparsely-populated, unincorporated area and said he doubts the district will meet opposition to locating the reservoir there.

He told the board members the district might also acquire the land located between the reservoir sites which is currently occupied by several trailer parks and by the Oasis Drive-in Theater. Sosewitz said the district would only acquire that land if the airport relocated the trailer park residents because of the park's proximity to a runway.

Sosewitz noted Des Plaines residents who oppose locating the new water reclamation plant at the southeast corner of Oakton and Elmhurst roads would prefer that the treatment plant be located on the unincorporated reservoir site.



LAND FOR TWO retention reservoirs in the area southwest of Des Plaines is being sought by the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The map shows: 1) location of the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant; 2) the 130-acre site sought for a combined sewer overflow reservoir, and 3) the 135-acre site sought for the Willow-Higgins surface water reservoir.

BUT HE SAID, in response to a question from Trustee Joanne Alter, to relocate the proposed plant would delay the district's construction timetable "considerably." Sosewitz said the district hasn't acquired the land for the basin yet, and that it would have to redesign engineering plans if the location were to be changed. He said acquiring the land could mean a two-to-three year delay in plant construction if the district were to change the plant location.

Sosewitz told Mrs. Alter the district purchased the 105-acre Oakton and Elmhurst site originally for the plant because it was "readily available."

The general superintendent, who is leaving the district Feb. 1 to join a private engineering firm, said he does not believe Des Plaines officials are totally opposed to the location of the plant at the present site. They are concerned with the overall needs for sewage treatment in the area, he said.

He said opposition to the plant location at Oakton and Elmhurst roads comes chiefly from, "some very vocal eighth ward citizens."

IN REPORTING to the MSD trustees on other flood control projects underway, Sosewitz said:

- The district should set priorities for needed reservoirs and use up a remaining $19 million in bond allocations for flood control programs already authorized by the General Assembly.
- Work on the Buffalo Creek Reservoir is awaiting the condemnation of land by the Lake County Forest Preserve District. He said once the MSD reaches an agreement with the forest preserve district in 3 or 4 months, the forest preserve district will seek federal funds to pay for the land.
- Work on the Mount Prospect reservoir is being delayed pending the designs for the underflow tunnel system. The reservoir was delayed because of Des Plaines refusal to cooperate several years ago, he said. The basin is needed to solve flooding from Weller Ditch.
- The district considers the Heritage Park Retention reservoir in Wheeling as completed.
- Numerous reservoirs in the Salt Creek area have been incorporated into the Salt Creek Work Plan.

Angelos Won't Take State Post; Cites 'Vicious Lies'

Charging he was the victim of "vicious and poisonous lies," Anthony G. Angelos withdrew from nomination as state director of insurance.

Angelos, a Chicago millionaire, has been under criticism since Gov. Daniel Walker nominated him several weeks ago.

"I am outraged that I have been libeled by the vicious and poisonous lies that have been spread about me by the self-styled vigilantes of the press," Angelos said.

Speaking softly, Angelos told reporters: "I have informed Gov. Walker I will not be the vehicle by which the rumormongers and his political opponents seek to undermine what is destined to be the finest administration in Illinois history."

WALKER, IN A statement from Springfield, said he asked Angelos Tuesday to reconsider his decision to withdraw, but that Angelos told him of "the impact of the past two weeks of unceasing personal attacks."

"I personally have been appalled by its viciousness," Walker said. He added, "This was not a campaign mounted just by media. And that too, is most unfortunate."

Angelos said Walker had "asked that I stay in the ring."

"He told me in the strongest terms possible that he would stick by his endorsement of me," Angelos said. "He expressed the willingness to fight for, and the confidence to obtain my confirmation.

"I wanted to do a job in behalf of the little guy — the one who has consistently gotten the lousy end of the stick," he said. "However, there are other factors which go beyond my desire to serve.

"I have a wonderful wife and two beautiful children who have been victimized. Terrorized is a better word. My wife Barbara is under a doctor's care . . . My 12-year-old daughter Cheryl has been harassed by both youngsters and adults . . . My son Robert is only 5 and has not been affected yet."

ANGELOS, ACCOMPANIED by a lawyer, recited a series of responses to the media criticisms and reports of his business interests and campaign contributions.

"If there remains any doubt as to the scurrilous nature of the libels printed against me, they will soon be dispelled.

"It is time to act, when the press maliciously identifies someone as the subject of an article and, in fact, the subject is someone else. It is time to act when stories place you at a scene where you have never been — or in an association you've never had.

"Therefore, I have instructed my attorneys, the firm of Jenner and Block, to review this entire series of events and to take those steps necessary to remedy the multitude of malicious and false statements that have been made about me."

AS SOON AS he finished his statement a reporter shouted a question. But Angelos quickly strode out the door and, with the lawyer matching strides, quickly entered a waiting elevator.

A reporter accompanied Angelos and the lawyer into the elevator. "Is it accurate to say," the reporter asked Angelos, "that you will have no answers to any questions about what you've just said?"

"The answers may be obtained from my attorneys," Angelos answered as he and the lawyer hurried to a waiting car.

Angelos Won't Take State Post; Cites 'Vicious Lies'

Charging he was the victim of "vicious and poisonous lies," Anthony G. Angelos withdrew from nomination as state director of insurance.

Angelos, a Chicago millionaire, has been under criticism since Gov. Daniel Walker nominated him several weeks ago.

"I am outraged that I have been libeled by the vicious and poisonous lies that have been spread about me by the self-styled vigilantes of the press," Angelos said.

Speaking softly, Angelos told reporters: "I have informed Gov. Walker I will not be the vehicle by which the rumormongers and his political opponents seek to undermine what is destined to be the finest administration in Illinois history."

WALKER, IN A statement from Springfield, said he asked Angelos Tuesday to reconsider his decision to withdraw, but that Angelos told him of "the impact of the past two weeks of unceasing personal attacks."

"I personally have been appalled by its viciousness," Walker said. He added, "This was not a campaign mounted just by media. And that too, is most unfortunate."

Angelos said Walker had "asked that I stay in the ring."

"He told me in the strongest terms possible that he would stick by his endorsement of me," Angelos said. "He expressed the willingness to fight for, and the confidence to obtain my confirmation.

"I wanted to do a job in behalf of the little guy — the one who has consistently gotten the lousy end of the stick," he said. "However, there are other factors which go beyond my desire to serve.

"I have a wonderful wife and two beautiful children who have been victimized. Terrorized is a better word. My wife Barbara is under a doctor's care . . . My 12-year-old daughter Cheryl has been harassed by both youngsters and adults . . . My son Robert is only 5 and has not been affected yet."

ANGELOS, ACCOMPANIED by a lawyer, recited a series of responses to the media criticisms and reports of his business interests and campaign contributions.

"If there remains any doubt as to the scurrilous nature of the libels printed against me, they will soon be dispelled.

"It is time to act, when the press maliciously identifies someone as the subject of an article and, in fact, the subject is someone else. It is time to act when stories place you at a scene where you have never been — or in an association you've never had.

"Therefore, I have instructed my attorneys, the firm of Jenner and Block, to review this entire series of events and to take those steps necessary to remedy the multitude of malicious and false statements that have been made about me."

AS SOON AS he finished his statement a reporter shouted a question. But Angelos quickly strode out the door and, with the lawyer matching strides, quickly entered a waiting elevator.

A reporter accompanied Angelos and the lawyer into the elevator. "Is it accurate to say," the reporter asked Angelos, "that you will have no answers to any questions about what you've just said?"

"The answers may be obtained from my attorneys," Angelos answered as he and the lawyer hurried to a waiting car.

Officials Ask Outline For Unit School District Study

by WANDALYN RICE

Administrators for High School Dist. 214 have been asked to design an outline for a study on forming unit school districts in the area.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday the administration should draw up an outline that could be submitted to an outside consultant if the board decides to hire one to study unit districting.

The study, board members decided, should include all issues, both educational and financial, involved in the question of whether unit or dual school districts are better.

At the same time, the board rejected the idea that it should aim its study at preventing Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 from forming a unit district in the southern half of Dist. 214.

Dist. 59 now has a feasibility study under way on whether to form one or more unit districts in its area. A unit district in all of Dist. 59 would remove Elk Grove and Forest View high schools from Dist. 214.

ALL SCHOOL districts in the area are now dual districts, with separate boards administering elementary and high schools.

The Dist. 59 study is due to be completed March 1. Dist. 214 board members debated whether they should aim their study at building a case that Dist. 59 should not be allowed to form a unit district, or whether they should undertake an overall study of the unit question.

Once the Dist. 59 feasibility study is completed, a petition may be filed asking for a referendum on formation of a unit district. The petition would be reviewed in a public hearing that would be held by Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick.

Board member Richard Greenfield summed up the opinions of the majority of the board by saying, "It is my feeling that we should make our study based on what is good for Dist. 214 as a whole. Realistically, if we went before the county superintendent when he was hearing Dist. 59's case and said we had a study in progress that might affect the whole area, any reasonable person would give us time to finish the study."

The study, board members agreed, would have to address itself to the question of whether Dist. 214 should form a single unit district, absorbing all its elementary districts, whether Dist. 214 should be broken up in several units, or whether the school organization should remain the same.

PRELIMINARY figures drawn up by the district's administration indicate that Dist. 214 would lose money if Dist. 59 forms a unit district on its own. However, a Dist. 214-wide unit district would bring an additional $12 million in revenue to area schools if current state school aid formulas are unchanged.

Board members pointed out that all figures indicating a financial advantage to unit districts might be changed either by pending court cases challenging the state aid formula or by legislative action.

Several board members said they were opposed to the idea of a unit district in all of Dist. 214 because it would include about 60,000 students. Board member Jack Matthews said, "We don't want to be another Chicago."

Supt. Edward Gilbert cautioned the board that it must carefully consider the impact of a study of unit districts. Gilbert asked, "Are you as a board prepared to live with the consequences of a study? It may very well be that the results of a study would show that there should be one large unit district in all of 214. Is the board willing to live with that result? You couldn't just walk away from it."

'My California' Presentation Set

Stan Midgley, producer of travel films on America, will present his most recent effort, "My California," at Maine West High School today at 8 p.m. This is the first of the Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult Education travel films for the winter program at Maine West.

Stan Midgley is one of the few major lecturers specializing on the United States. His pictures frequently are taken in spots far from the beaten path.

Season tickets for the remainder of the MONACEP travel series can be purchased for $3 either from the adult education offices in Park Ridge, at Oakton Community College, Building 3, 7946 N. Nagle, Morton Grove, or at the door the evening of the lecture. Single admission tickets will be sold for $1 the evening of the lecture.

Signups Scheduled For Adult Education

The Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing education program is holding registration for winter classes from 10 a.m. to noon this Saturday in building three at Oakton Community College, 7900 N. Nagle, Morton Grove.

Evening registrations are scheduled for 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. next week. Maine South, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge and Niles North, 9800 Lawler Ave., Skokie, are the scheduled locations for Monday evening sign-ups. Prospective students can register Tuesday, Jan. 23 at Maine East, 2601 W. On Thursday, Jan. 25, evening registrations can be made at Niles West, Oakton Street and Edens Expressway, in Skokie.

Registrations also will be accepted by mail and on the first evening of classes. Classes are scheduled to begin the week of Jan. 29. Information about courses and registrations may be had by calling MONACEP, 696-3600.

Dr. James Tito Medical Staff Head

Dr. James Tito, 903 Jeanette, Des Plaines, has been elected president of the Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini Hospital medical staff. Cabrini Hospital, 811 S. Lytle St., is one of three cooperative hospitals in Chicago owned and operated by the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart.

Stolen Traveler's Check Used In Store

An unidentified man purchased $625 worth of clothing from a Des Plaines store with a stolen traveler's check, according to police.

The man used a driver's license issued to a Chicago man to make the purchases at RT Distributors, Inc., 1530 Lee St., Des Plaines, with the stolen check.

According to Dennis Geraci, a salesman, the man using the license to identify himself came in twice to make smaller purchases at the store in the past.

Police said the check was one of eight stolen from another man from Toronto, Canada, recently. Six of the stolen checks have already been cashed in the clothing store.

House Burglarized

Property valued at over $1,630 was reported stolen Monday from the home of Richard Lange, 1273 Pennsylvania Ave., Des Plaines.

Police reports said the burglars broke into the house through the rear door and took stereo equipment from the basement, along with the front end and wheels to a motorcycle valued at $610 and a $370 color television set.

About $200 cash and $125 in jewelry were also stolen from the house.

Officials Ask Outline For Unit School District Study

by WANDALYN RICE

Administrators for High School Dist. 214 have been asked to design an outline for a study on forming unit school districts in the area.

The Dist. 214 Board of Education agreed Monday the administration should draw up an outline that could be submitted to an outside consultant if the board decides to hire one to study unit districting.

The study, board members decided, should include all issues, both educational and financial, involved in the question of whether unit or dual school districts are better.

At the same time, the board rejected the idea that it should aim its study at preventing Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 from forming a unit district in the southern half of Dist. 214.

Dist. 59 now has a feasibility study under way on whether to form one or more unit districts in its area. A unit district in all of Dist. 59 would remove Elk Grove and Forest View high schools from Dist. 214.

ALL SCHOOL districts in the area are now dual districts, with separate boards administering elementary and high schools.

The Dist. 59 study is due to be completed March 1. Dist. 214 board members debated whether they should aim their study at building a case that Dist. 59 should not be allowed to form a unit district, or whether they should undertake an overall study of the unit question.

Once the Dist. 59 feasibility study is completed, a petition may be filed asking for a referendum on formation of a unit district. The petition would be reviewed in a public hearing that would be held by Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick.

Board member Richard Greenfield summed up the opinions of the majority of the board by saying, "It is my feeling that we should make our study based on what is good for Dist. 214 as a whole. Realistically, if we went before the county superintendent when he was hearing Dist. 59's case and said we had a study in progress that might affect the whole area, any reasonable person would give us time to finish the study."

The study, board members agreed, would have to address itself to the question of whether Dist. 214 should form a single unit district, absorbing all its elementary districts, whether Dist. 214 should be broken up in several units, or whether the school organization should remain the same.

PRELIMINARY figures drawn up by the district's administration indicate that Dist. 214 would lose money if Dist. 59 forms a unit district on its own. However, a Dist. 214-wide unit district would bring an additional $12 million in revenue to area schools if current state school aid formulas are unchanged.

Board members pointed out that all figures indicating a financial advantage to unit districts might be changed either by pending court cases challenging the state aid formula or by legislative action.

Several board members said they were opposed to the idea of a unit district in all of Dist. 214 because it would include about 60,000 students. Board member Jack Matthews said, "We don't want to be another Chicago."

Supt. Edward Gilbert cautioned the board that it must carefully consider the impact of a study of unit districts. Gilbert asked, "Are you as a board prepared to live with the consequences of a study? It may very well be that the results of a study would show that there should be one large unit district in all of 214. Is the board willing to live with that result? You couldn't just walk away from it."

Dr. James Tito Medical Staff Head

Dr. James Tito, 903 Jeanette, Des Plaines, has been elected president of the Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini Hospital medical staff. Cabrini Hospital, 811 S. Lytle St., is one of three cooperative hospitals in Chicago owned and operated by the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart.

Stolen Traveler's Check Used In Store

An unidentified man purchased $625 worth of clothing from a Des Plaines store with a stolen traveler's check, according to police.

The man used a driver's license issued to a Chicago man to make the purchases at RT Distributors, Inc., 1530 Lee St., Des Plaines, with the stolen check.

According to Dennis Geraci, a salesman, the man using the license to identify himself came in twice to make smaller purchases at the store in the past.

Police said the check was one of eight stolen from another man from Toronto, Canada, recently. Six of the stolen checks have already been cashed in the clothing store.

House Burglarized

Property valued at over $1,630 was reported stolen Monday from the home of Richard Lange, 1273 Pennsylvania Ave., Des Plaines.

Police reports said the burglars broke into the house through the rear door and took stereo equipment from the basement, along with the front end and wheels to a motorcycle valued at $610 and a $370 color television set.

About $200 cash and $125 in jewelry were also stolen from the house.

Report Cites Lax Admissions Policies

Junior Colleges Violating State Law?

SPRINGRIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Many Illinois junior colleges may be violating state law because of lax admissions policies for some of their programs, according to a legislative commission report.

The report also says students entering junior colleges with the intention of eventually earning four-year college degrees are much less likely to succeed than those who begin in universities.

Sen. William Harris, R-Pontiac, issued the report of the Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission Tuesday. He is chairman of the panel.

THE REPORT CITES provisions of the public junior college act that "students allowed entry in college transfer programs must have ability and competence similar to that possessed by students admitted to state universities for similar programs."

That requirement, the report said, is not being met by many of the state's 48 junior colleges.

Comparison of test scores and high school grades for students entering junior college transfer programs and those entering universities as freshmen, the report said, shows junior college entrants rank lower on each scale.

Grade-point averages, based on a four-point scale, were a full half point lower for junior college entrants than for university freshmen, the report said.

FURTHER, the commission asked junior college heads about criteria for admission to transfer programs at their institutions.

"The response from 17 of the 48 campuses indicated 'no criteria.' Others listed minimal criteria . . . while still others took one full page of their catalogues to present elaborate criteria — which almost anyone could meet," the report said.

"The colleges which do not exercise these criteria for admission outlined in the law appear to be violating both the Illinois Junior College Board standards and the Public Junior College Act," the report said.

"When the junior colleges admit unqualified students to these programs and pass them on still unqualified to the universities, neither the student nor the public interest has been served," the report said.

"THE STUDENT probably would have been better off if early counseling had revealed the nature of his qualifications and had directed him toward the appropriate developmental programs or opportunities in the occupational curricula. From the public's viewpoint, limited resources have been misallocated."

The report also said junior colleges experience a higher dropout rate than four-year institutions and, when junior college students do transfer to universities, they have more academic difficulties than those who began there.

"For a student entering a junior college baccalaureate-oriented program, the odds are very much against his ever receiving a baccalaureate degree," the report said.

Entrance Standards Differ At Harper, Oakton Colleges

The Northwest suburbs' two junior colleges differ in the entrance standards they require of students for college transfer courses.

At Harper College in Palatine, students who want to enter a program designed to serve as the equivalent of two years at a four-year college or university must have a grade average of at least "C" or rank in the upper half of their high school graduating class, according to Donn Stansbury, Harper dean of admissions.

On the other hand, students entering Oakton College in Morton Grove are admitted to college transfer programs if they have high school diplomas. Oakton admissions director John Gegin said the college does not require different standards for college transfer students and those taking vocational courses.

A report by the Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission Tuesday charged that junior colleges in Illinois may be violating the law because their standards for admission to college transfer programs are not comparable to standards required by the state's four-year colleges and universities.

STANSBURY, AFTER hearing the commissions charges yesterday, pointed out that junior colleges have trouble deciding what "comparable" standards are because "admissions standards vary from one state school to another."

Some state four-year colleges, he said, require that a student be in the upper one-fourth of his graduating class, while others require that he be in the upper half. "The standards even differ from semester to semester," Stansbury said. "You can go to Southern Illinois University in the spring quarter with a lower grade average than in the fall quarter."

Stansbury added that high school graduates who fall below the minimum required for entrance into Harper's transfer programs are frequently counseled and placed in remedial programs for one semester and are later admitted to the transfer program.

"I don't really think Harper can be criticized very much for admissions procedures," he added.

Gegin at Oakton declined comment on the commission report except to say, "Our whole purpose of existence is to serve the community, not to set up barriers to education." Gegin added that the Illinois Junior College Board, which sets standards for the state's junior colleges, should address itself to the commissions charges.

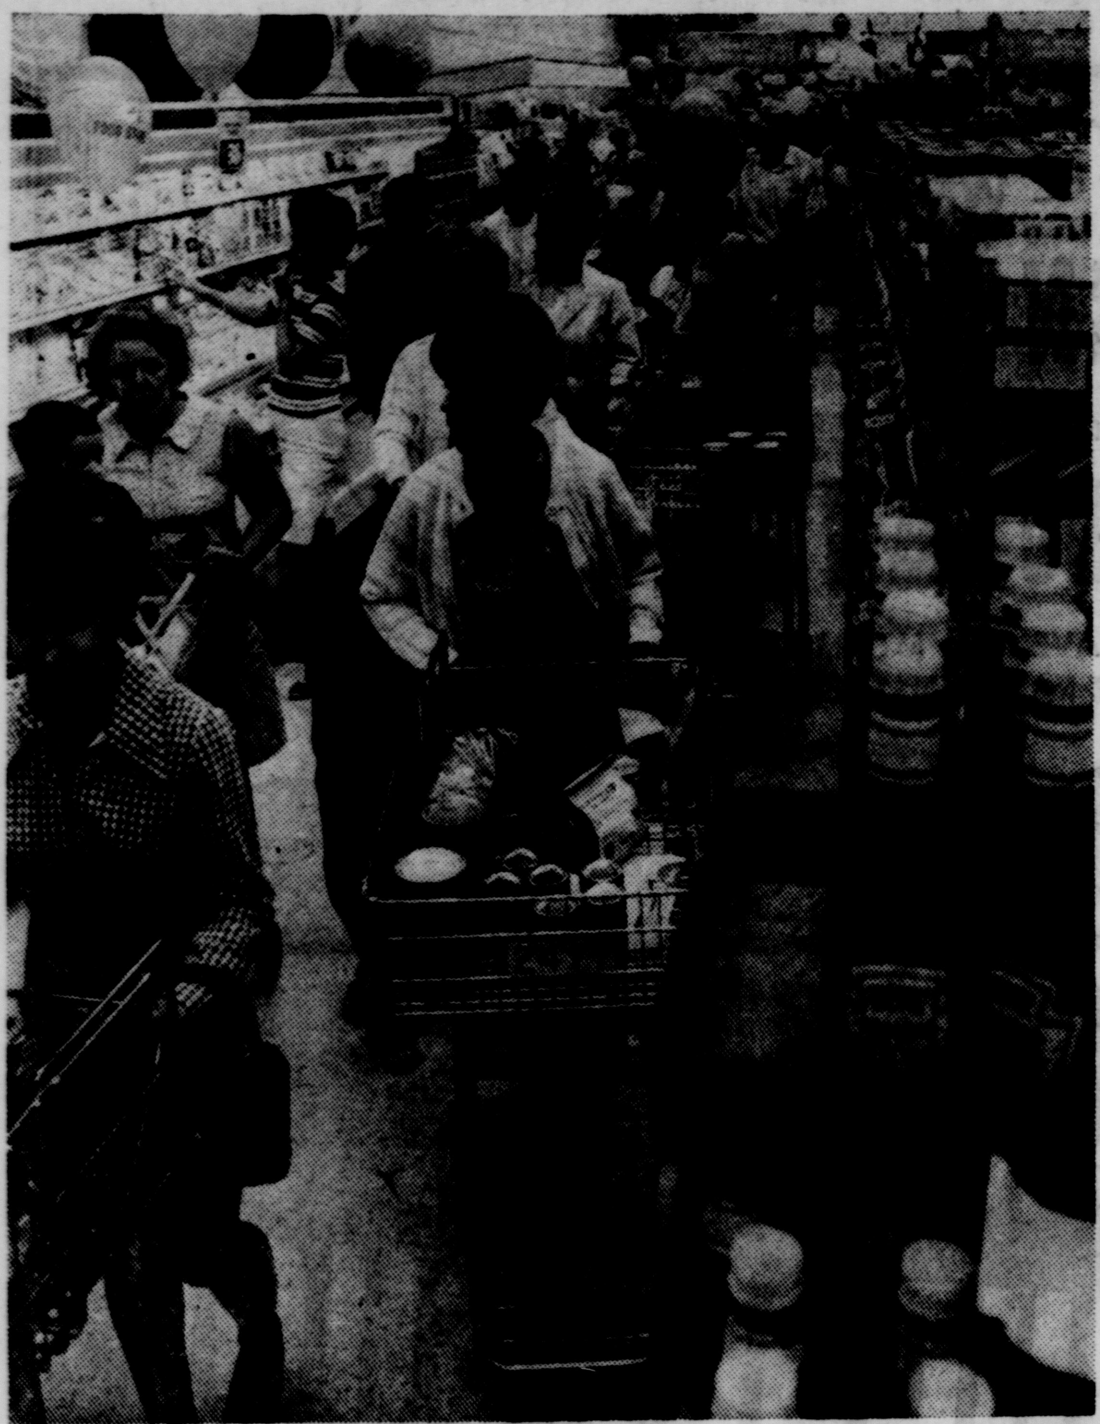
A&P Ad Claims Hit By Government

by MONICA WILCH

A little-publicized report issued last summer by the Federal Trade Commission, charging the A&P grocery chain with not delivering on advertised prices, was based in part on surveys in the Chicago area, The Herald has learned.

The proposed complaint, based on surveys in Chicago, Atlanta, Milwaukee, and 12 other cities, charged that the nation's largest retail food chain advertised sale prices for items which actually were not available at or below the advertised price, or were not available at all.

In Chicago, 21 per cent of the 284 advertised items checked in four A&P stores were unavailable or overpriced, according to the FTC report.



BARGAIN-CONSCIOUS housewives may have wondered why they couldn't always find advertised items at the advertised prices in some supermarkets. The Federal Trade Commission has alleged that this has been happening in some A&P stores in the Chicago area, in violation of FTC rules.

A recent check by The Herald of three local A&P stores disclosed the following:

IN THE STORE at 1601 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, sirloin steak was marked $1.49 per pound, and Porterhouse and T-bone were marked $1.79, although advertisements in newspapers that day (Wednesday) announced that sirloin steak was selling for $1.28 per pound and the other two cuts, $1.58. The next day, the meat was marked as advertised. But small print at the bottom of the ad had declared all prices effective beginning Wednesday.

Other items overpriced included Anacin tablets, advertised at $1.09 per bottle of 100, selling for $1.19; Italian dressing, advertised at 55 cents for a 16-ounce bottle, selling at 57 cents; and peanut butter, advertised at $1.19 for a 3-pound jar, unavailable on Wednesday, available at $1.39 on Thursday.

Some advertised items were not available at all. One brand of frankfurters was not in stock on Wednesday, but was available on Thursday. Another brand was not on the shelves either day.

Three kinds of A&P brand frozen potatoes were advertised at $1 for three 20-ounce packages. None of these were in the case, so a Herald reporter inquired about them. An employe checked in the stockroom and then said the potatoes were "only available in our Wheeling store." When he was shown the ad, which stated that all prices were effective in all A&P stores in Cook and DuPage counties, he said the store did not have the potatoes and offered the reporter a raincheck for the next weekend.

HOWEVER, ACCORDING to an FTC ruling issued last year, stores may not routinely issue rainchecks on advertised sales, but only if the item is unavailable due to non-delivery beyond the advertiser's control. The ruling requires that stores have sufficient supplies on hand to meet a "reasonable demand."

The same ruling forbids stores from reneging on sales by announcing that "not all items are available at all stores." If the sale is limited to certain stores, they must be specified in the ad.

The manager of the store declined to comment on the FTC complaint or on A&P pricing policies.

Surveys in the A&P stores on North Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights and on Ill. Rte. 83 in Mount Prospect, also on Wednesday, turned up only one mismarked item and fewer instances of advertised items not present on the shelves.

The FTC's proposed order, which was released last July 27 by Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection, would require A&P to fire store managers who knowingly violate the order and to submit a semi-annual report on store managers' compliance.

Following the complaint, A&P denied purposely not having sale items available. The company said its policy is "to provide in its stores all advertised items at advertised prices," but added that "the possibilities of human error on our part are great."

WHEN ASKED what problems might be encountered that would prevent an item from being made available, A&P's Chicago regional sales manager John White said the store manager "might not order enough or the supplier might at the last moment make it unavailable," but he added that these circumstances are infrequent. He said there has been no change in A&P's policy since last summer "because it has always been our policy to provide all advertised items at acvertised prices."

Since July the FTC and A&P have been negotiating a consent order, an agreement in which the company would voluntarily comply with FTC rules without admitting any violation. If such an agreement cannot be reached, the FTC could bring formal charges in court.

A&P Ad Claims Hit By Government

by MONICA WILCH

A little-publicized report issued last summer by the Federal Trade Commission, charging the A&P grocery chain with not delivering on advertised prices, was based in part on surveys in the Chicago area, The Herald has learned.

The proposed complaint, based on surveys in Chicago, Atlanta, Milwaukee, and 12 other cities, charged that the nation's largest retail food chain advertised sale prices for items which actually were not available at or below the advertised price, or were not available at all.

In Chicago, 21 per cent of the 284 advertised items checked in four A&P stores were unavailable or overpriced, according to the FTC report.

A recent check by The Herald of three local A&P stores disclosed the following:

IN THE STORE at 1601 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, sirloin steak was marked $1.49 per pound, and Porterhouse and T-bone were marked $1.79, although advertisements in newspapers that day (Wednesday) announced that sirloin steak was selling for $1.28 per pound and the other two cuts, $1.58. The next day, the meat was marked as advertised. But small print at the bottom of the ad had declared all prices effective beginning Wednesday.

Other items overpriced included Anacin tablets, advertised at $1.09 per bottle of 100, selling for $1.19; Italian dressing, advertised at 55 cents for a 16-ounce bottle, selling at 57 cents; and peanut butter, advertised at $1.19 for a 3-pound jar, unavailable on Wednesday, available at $1.39 on Thursday.

Some advertised items were not available at all. One brand of frankfurters was not in stock on Wednesday, but was available on Thursday. Another brand was not on the shelves either day.

Three kinds of A&P brand frozen potatoes were advertised at $1 for three 20-ounce packages. None of these were in the case, so a Herald reporter inquired about them. An employe checked in the stockroom and then said the potatoes were "only available in our Wheeling store." When he was shown the ad, which stated that all prices were effective in all A&P stores in Cook and DuPage counties, he said the store did not have the potatoes and offered the reporter a raincheck for the next weekend.

HOWEVER, ACCORDING to an FTC ruling issued last year, stores may not routinely issue rainchecks on advertised sales, but only if the item is unavailable due to non-delivery beyond the advertiser's control. The ruling requires that stores have sufficient supplies on hand to meet a "reasonable demand."

The same ruling forbids stores from reneging on sales by announcing that "not all items are available at all stores." If the sale is limited to certain stores, they must be specified in the ad.

The manager of the store declined to comment on the FTC complaint or on A&P pricing policies.

Surveys in the A&P stores on North Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights and on Ill. Rte. 83 in Mount Prospect, also on Wednesday, turned up only one mismarked item and fewer instances of advertised items not present on the shelves.

Since July the FTC and A&P have been negotiating a consent order, an agreement in which the company would voluntarily comply with FTC rules without admitting any violation. If such an agreement cannot be reached, the FTC could bring formal charges in court.

BARGAIN-CONSCIOUS housewives may have wondered why they couldn't always find advertised items at the advertised prices in some supermarkets. The Federal Trade Commission has alleged that this has been happening in some A&P stores in the Chicago area, in violation of FTC rules.

Herald Readers Responding To Drive

Herald readers this week continued to respond to an appeal for emergency funds to help The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center maintain its service to suburban families.

The Herald is asking readers to donate $1 or more to the fund which seeks to raise $5,000 by Jan. 31. Thus far, a total $4,152 has been contributed — much of it in $1, $2, and $3 donations but also larger gifts ranging from $5 and $10 up to $100 or more.

A number of donations have been accompanied by notes of support and encouragement. Typical was this endorsement from Mr. and Mrs. F. Douglas Baker, 916 Carmel Dr., Palatine:

"We are happy to contribute to The Salvation Army for any cause. We have great admiration for their work."

The center is a professional, full-time family service agency headquartered at 1797 Oakton St., Des Plaines, with branch offices in Schaumburg and Palatine. A third office will open soon in Arlington Heights.

AN AGENCY OF The Salvation Army Family Service Division, the center provides help to families in Wheeling, Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove Townships as well as the city of Des Plaines.

It presently is helping 834 suburban families cope with such crises as crushed marriages, drug abuse, alcoholism, teenage delinquency, unwed parenthood, old age, and other personal and family problems.

Since initiating its service in 1965, the center has helped more than 4,500 families in the Northwest area.

The agency is financed largely by The Salvation Army and United Fund campaigns. A modest fee structure is based upon each family's ability to pay, although no one is turned away if they cannot afford a fee.

As with most voluntary social agencies, however, the center traditionally operates at a deficit and must rely on the local communities it serves for additional funds to ensure continuation of its program.

Proceeds from the Herald emergency fund will be used to help defray the operating deficit for 1972. A similar appeal sponsored by the newspaper in 1971 averted a threatened shutdown of the family service agency.

Contributions may be sent to Herald Center Fund, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Names of all persons who donate $1 or more are published in the Herald. Checks should be made payable to The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center.

Doremus To Host Benefit Featuring Tulsa Choir

John Doremus

Radio personality John Doremus will be master of ceremonies for "Say It With Music," a benefit concert featuring the University of Tulsa Modern Choir.

It will be presented Friday, Jan. 26, at 8 p.m. in First United Methodist Church, Euclid and Prindle avenues, Arlington Heights.

Doremus and the choir are appearing under sponsorship of the Christian Church of Arlington Heights and other area churches.

Proceeds from the program will benefit The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center and Northwest Opportunity Center. Both agncies provide specialized services for suburban families.

The Salvation Army center provides individual and family counseling, and the Northwest Opportunity Center offers job and housing assistance to disadvantaged families.

The $2.50 admission will be equally divided between the two social agencies.

DOREMUS IS BEST known for his late-night program of recorded music on WGN, "The John Doremus Show." His previous broadcast assignments included radio shows for WIND, WMAG and WAIT as well as for the NBC television network.

He is an alumnus of Tulsa University, where he was a classmate of TV weatherman Harry Volkman and newscaster Jim Ruddle. Doremus is himself a former member of the Modern Choir, and for several years he has sponsored a choral scholarship at the university.

The widely acclaimed choir is under the direction of Arthur D. Hestwood, professor of voice and choral music at Tulsa and a former member of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, RCA Victor Chorale, and the Robert Shaw Collegiate Chorale.

It has received national recognition since it began touring the eastern United States over 20 years ago, performing on programs with such artists as Anita Bryant and Victor Borge.

Versatility is the key to the group's success. The concert program provides a wide range of selections, including classical numbers, Broadway show tunes, religious numbers and songs from such popular groups as Three Dog Night, the Carpenters and Elton John.

"We are most fortunate to have this outstanding choir perform in Arlington Heights," said Wilson Wadsworth, 1407 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights, chairman of the benefit. "The Modern Choir concert is more than a musical performance; it's an experience."

TICKETS MAY BE purchased from The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, 1797 Oakton St., Des Plaines; Northwest Opportunity Center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows, and Christian Church, 333 W. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights.

They also are available at the following Herald offices:

Lost Letter Cause Of Crash?

by RICH HONACK

The omission of a letter of the alphabet in a radio transmission has been disclosed as a possible cause for the collision of two jetliners last Dec. 22 at O'Hare Airport.

The omission was brought forth in the first day of hearings by a National Transportation Safety Board board of inquiry yesterday. The hearings are being conducted at the Sheraton-O'Hare Hotel in Des Plaines.

During testimony by Capt. Robert McDowell, pilot of a Delta Airlines Convair 880, which was struck by a North Central Airlines DC-9, it was found that either the letter "R" or "L" was left off a transmission with the ground controller.

According to McDowell's testimony, he landed his Delta flight 954 on Runway 14L heading southeast toward Runway 32R. When he reached the end of 32R he continued to taxi and took what is termed the "bridge route" south toward Runway 32L's holding pad.

While on the "bridge route," McDowell testified that he was told by the ground controller to "just pull over to 32 pad." It was in that transmission that officials think is an important piece of evidence.

ACCORDING TO transcripts of the communication and the testimony of McDowell, the controller apparently did not specify 32L or 32R. "Therefore," said McDowell, "Since I was heading toward 32L and it was impossible for me to turn an 880 around in the taxi area, I never thought of going to 32R."

The accident occurred when the Delta jet was crossing an active runway at the entrance of pad 32L.

Also disclosed for the first time during McDowell's testimony, was the fact that the ground controller assumed that flight 954 was holding on the 32R pad.

Charles Peters, spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said during the hearing, "For all purposes that jet was out there taxiing with no one knowing it was there. The controller assumed that when he landed on runway 14L and he got the message to go to pad 32 he would go to 32R."

However, as another aviation official said, "By the time the transmission was made, flight 954 was past that point."

McDowell also testified that in eight years of landing at O'Hare airport he has never held in pad 32R. He said it is also normal use at O'Hare to cross active runways and crossing areas without checking with controllers.

OFFICIALS ASKED McDowell and two other pilots, who testified earlier, if there are rules governing the crossing of active runways. They all answered "No."

Capt. George Ross, another Delta pilot who took off from O'Hare shortly before the crash, said he makes it a policy, however, to always check with the tower before crossing active runways.

"I have done it all my 26 years of commercial flying," said Ross. "There are however, no rules governing that procedure. It is just a personal thing with me."

McDowell also testified that before his jet was struck by the North Central plane, he saw the lights coming toward his tail section. "I was answering a question when I saw the plane and heard a noise. I yelled to the crew to check the passengers and saw a red glow in the fog," he said.

"I thought we were on fire and ordered the plane cleared. However, we did not have a fire and therefore had a very orderly evacuation of the aircraft," explained McDowell.

He said he then stopped a Chicago police car on the runway and asked the policeman to contact the tower to tell them to close down the runways in the crash area. He also asked police to call the emergency equipment.

"I would say the fire trucks took about 15 minutes to get to the scene from the time we evacuated the plane. The ambulances took another five minutes to get to us," said McDowell.

THE PILOT SAID he remembered the times because the crew was worried about a passenger who had a history of heart attacks. Only two persons were injured on the Delta plane. He also said the passengers were delayed in getting to the terminal by bus because a policeman would not release them without necessary information.

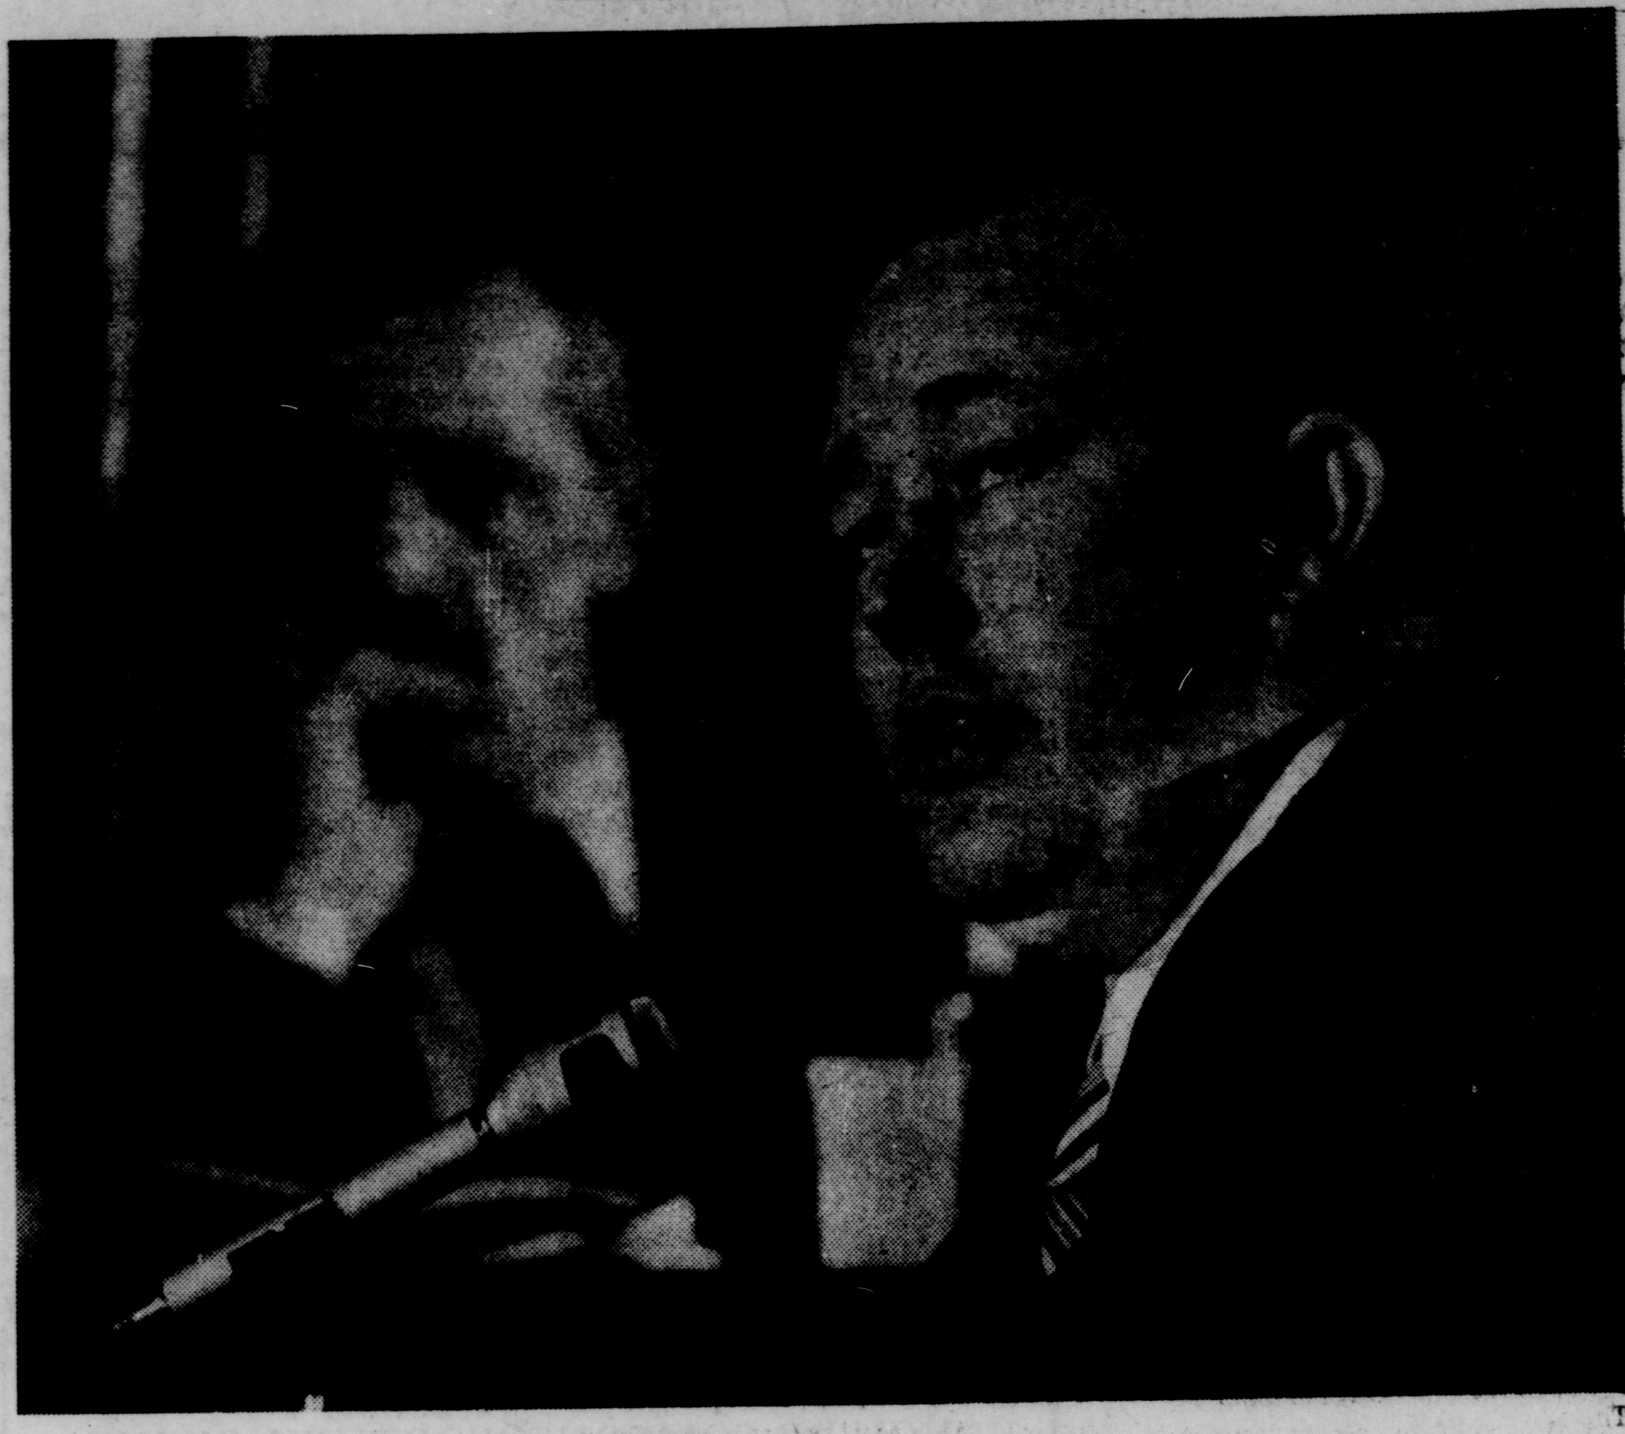
Under questioning by FAA officials, McDowell said he would have gone to the area of the crash no matter where he was when the controller's transmission came over the radio.

"The 32L pad is a natural holding area for Delta planes and if I heard the transmission to go to 32, I would naturally go to 32L no matter where I was," said McDowell, who at this point had been through almost two hours of questioning.

The board also heard testimony yesterday from other members of the Delta crew and is expected to call the captain and crew of the North Central plane to testify today. The hearing will begin at 9 a.m. at the Sheraton-O'Hare.

Ten persons were killed in the crash that took place on a foggy night at the airport. All were passengers on the North Central plane.

The NTSB board of inquiry will not make a decision on the cause of the crash for at least two months said one board member. He added that the board must consider the testimony of almost 40 witnesses and other evidence before making a final decision.



CAPT. ROBERT McDOWELL, pilot of the Delta Airlines Convair 880 that was struck by a North Central Airlines DC-9 Dec. 22, testified before a board of inquiry yesterday as to what happened in that crash. McDowell was questioned by members of the National Safety Transportation Board as well as officials from several other aviation agencies. The hearings into the crash that killed 10 persons will continue today in a Des Plaines hotel.

Another Delta Jet Lost On Night Of Fatal Crash

Delta Flight 954, which was involved in a crash at O'Hare Airport Dec. 22, was not the only Delta jet that had trouble that night.

Flight 750, which landed just before 954 and whose crew witnessed the crash, was lost for several minutes as it taxied around the airport.

According to testimony given by Flight 750's captain, Fredrick Haskell, it was his first time into O'Hare and when he got on the ground he became lost. Haskell said it added to the confusion when he was told to go to the "penalty box."

The "penalty box" is located in the southwest corner of the airport and is used as an area for incoming planes waiting for gate openings. Haskell testified that he had never heard the term before and was aware of no such area when he landed at the airport.

Haskell admitted to making several wrong turns and once having to make a 180-degree turn at one point to get back on course. In all, Haskell and his crew made at least 40 calls to the ground controller while they were on the ground.

HOWEVER, Haskell also testified that he thinks he was never on the radar scope of the ground controller. "I got the impression I was not on radar," he told the board of inquiry. Haskell said it was his first time into O'Hare and he qualified because he was able to land at Chicago's Midway Airport.

Haskell said that when he finally reached the penalty box, he saw a red flash and a fiery object slide past his plane. He radioed the tower and told them of crash and later was given permission to enter his gate area.

He said he had no idea where he was in relation to the gate area while he was in the penalty box.

The Federal Aviation Administration officials present at the hearing were critical of several of Haskell's statement's but officials from Delta and the Airline Pilot's Association said it was not Haskell's problem the board was studying.

After Haskell's testimony the chairman of the board, Louis Thayer, warned all officials to keep the questioning to the subject of the Delta-North Central crash.

The Struggle For Liberated Bathrooms

by MONICA WILCH

The "irresistible call of Mother Nature" should never be thwarted — especially by a pay toilet.

This is the clarion cry of a new activist organization, the Committee to End Pay Toilets in America.

Terming the frantic fumble for a dime an "unnecessary nuisance in the nation's restrooms," members of the organization outlined in Chicago their battle plan.

The American Crawl, the Stuff, the Sacrificial Lamb, the Doorman, the Nail-file, the Stick-It — these are not rock groups, but rather the tactics prescribed by CEPTIA for "resisting and liberating" pay toilets.

These methods involve crawling under the door, stuffing paper, wax or chewing gum into the lock, putting in one dime and holding the door open for friends, picking the lock, or placing tape over the moving bar of the lock.

However, a member of CEPTIA warned that "acts of violence" on pay toilets are "useless and malicious."

INDEED, VANDALISM is the reason pay toilets exist, according to Jim McDonald of the Chicago and North Western Railway.

"It's not a revenue device, that's for sure," McDonald said. He described the destruction wrought on C/NW's stations toilets "by kids with sledge hammers, bombs, bubble gum, matches..." Vandalism forced the company to lock up the entire station in Barrington, McDonald said.

"It's the only way we can keep them clean and neat, too," he said, adding, "We'd rather not do it."

While some public places, like department stores and libraries, have taken their chances with all "free" toilets, other establishments place locks on all but one toilet. Soon, however, more toilets in Chicago may be "liberated."

According to a spokesman for the Chicago Board of Health, there presently is no code or statute of any kind governing pay toilets, but one is being contemplated which would require half the toilets in a restroom to be free.

Meanwhile, Americans would be well-advised to carry an "emergency" dime at all times — or else master the techniques proposed by CEPTIA. Incidentally, the locked-toilet syndrome apparently is not a discriminatory act against women — as nearly as this female reporter can determine.

Minority Employment At Suburban Companies Sought

by BARRY SIGALE

A major effort to provide jobs for minorities while at the same time meeting the employment needs of suburban businesses and industry has been launched by the suburban division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

The program calls for a sharing of information between employment agencies, school counselors and organizations representing minorities and suburban companies in need of employes.

The program is being coordinated by the Minority Industrial Relations Council (MIRC), formed by SCLC to aid companies in effective recruitment of minorities and to serve as a watchdog to make certain there are equal opportunities for minorities throughout the suburbs.

THE THRUST of the MIRC campaign is directed at those companies which do business with or hold contracts with the federal government or those colleges or universities which get federal grants. These recipients are required by law to provide, essentially, equal employment opportunities for all minorities.

To date, MIRC has 12 members, including United Air Lines, Sears Roebuck Co., Harper College, Allstate, Scott Foresman and Co., Western Electric (Lisle division), DeSoto, Silver Burdett Publishing Co., TAB Products and Co., Searle Laboratories, Amersham Searle, and Mystik Tape Co.

At MIRC's second organizational meeting, held Tuesday at United Air Lines corporate offices in Elk Grove Village, Clyde Brooks, chairman of SCLC's suburban division, told of the reasons behind the program.

He explained that companies located in the suburbs have complained that there are not enough people willing to accept jobs with them and that the applicants they do get are either unqualified or unsuited for the specific job.

He said representatives of minority organizations doubt that suburban companies are sincere in their efforts to employ minorities, especially in professional or highly-skilled areas.

It is with these two basic differences that MIRC has begun to deal, he said.

"WE ARE HAVING this meeting," he told the audience of about 75 persons, "because we want to show that the black and brown brothers and sisters in the suburbs are not dead. And there is no better way to celebrate the birthday of Dr. (Martin Luther) King than by meeting here today.

"There must be minority visibility in the suburbs. Black and brown people must stand up and place a big spotlight on the opportunities out here. No one will solve our problems for us. Let's solve them for ourselves. We can solve them with people who are with us. Those not with us, let them stand aside."

Brooks agreed that the problem of job opportunities is both a company one and that of the minorities themselves. "Companies out here need us. They can't succeed without our support. And we can't be successful without their support. That's a pretty good marriage, isn't it?

"I'm not twisting anybody's (any company's) arm. I'm trying to stop companies from crying the blues about not being able to find employes. I'm sick and tired of hearing companies say they can't find qualified minority employes. We will show them there are qualified minorities. Let's put these companies to a test."

The MIRC program will maintain a list of all vacancies at member companies, receive referrals, screen and refer qualified applicants to those openings, keep in close contact with personnel departments and serve as a communications center between companies and minorities.

Clyde Brooks

TUESDAY'S MEETING provided a good example of what area companies are looking for in the way of employes, who minority representatives and school counselors have to offer to these companies and the problems that result when the two are incompatible.

Companies represented included Xerox and Rand McNally as well as some of the companies already members of MIRC. They were mostly looking for professional help, nuclear physicists, researchers, electrical engineers, chemists, laboratory technicians, salesmen and editors as well as clerks and typists and secretaries.

The employment agencies and minority organizations mostly had clients with less requirements for the job.

The failure to match up the job with the individual led to an objection that it was the qualifications that were too stringent and that some of the traditional hiring practices should be altered to fit the needs of the minorities.

It was also agreed upon that since the reality of open housing in the suburbs is probably a long way off, a temporary solution to the job problem lies with companies providing necessary transportation to interested applicants. It was contended the companies decided to locate in the suburbs and the burden for getting people to the jobs rests on their shoulders.. And the people would travel to a job if it was meaningful, it was concluded.

A Special Remembrance Of Dr. King

EDITOR'S NOTE: Locally and nationally, this week has been set aside for various remembrances in honor of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. In this area, the week will conclude with a Saturday night dinner in Dr. King's name at Arlington Park Towers Hotel. Many tributes have been uttered about the slain civil rights leader during the week, and today the Herald offers one with a special viewpoint — that of a 14-year-old black resident of Elk Grove Village, Cookie Brooks.

by COOKIE BROOKS

This week, all across the nation, people celebrated the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. In Chicago, Mayor Richard J. Daley declared Jan. 15 as Dr. Martin Luther King Day. Schools and some City Halls closed their doors to permit their students and employes to celebrate one of America's leaders. Perhaps one day all America will realize that Dr. King made as great a contribution to this nation as other American leaders and declare Jan. 15 a national holiday.

As a young black resident of suburbia, I am grateful for whatever good is done in the name of Dr. King. I pray that parents in suburban communities will promote within their children a greater appreciation for those leaders who represent different cultural backgrounds from their own. Many people forget that Dr. King promoted justice and equality, not just for black people, but for the elderly, the young, the sick, the jobless, and the homeless.

As a young person, I would like to focus this article on Dr. King's concern for youth. First, Dr. King urged that 18- to 21-year-olds be given the right to vote — today, they may do so. Dr. King was opposed to the Vietnam War, because he felt it was an immoral war — people were being killed without reason.

YOUNG AMERICANS, especially young white Americans, joined Dr. King in urging America to review its position in the war, stop the killing, and use its resources to help the poor, the elderly, and the minorities in this country. Dr. King urged young Americans to adopt the kind of values that focused on people rather than things — green grass, a new house, a car, etc. Now that Dr. King has been taken from us, we must continue what he started.

It is not really important that Dr. King was black, or that he won the Nobel Peace Prize. It is important, however, that we recognize that Dr. King was a loyal American, concerned about all of mankind. Dr. King believed that you cannot be what you ought to be until I am what I ought to be, and I cannot be what I ought to be until you are what you ought to be.

Another very important concern for young people is education. School is important, not only because it teaches us arithmetic, reading, spelling, etc., but for its importance in teaching morality and understanding. If a student attends an all-white suburban school, he may be exposed only to white leaders, accomplishments, and values. The same thing is true if a student goes to an all-black school. Students must be exposed to multi-racial situations, curriculum, and teachers of different racial backgrounds. To deny this denies the young mind the opportunity to develop fully.

Some people did not like Dr. King because he was black. Others did not like him because they believed he was a troublemaker. When Jesus chased the money changers out of the temple and urged people to end their wicked ways, he also was called a traitor and a troublemaker. Dr. King tried to help mankind — we must remember this.

He could have been the president of many universities, he was offered ambassadorships, and other high jobs, but he declined. His mission in life was caring about others. For these reasons, I want the whole wide world to know that as a young black teenager living in the suburbs, I am glad that God sent Dr. King this way, I am glad that he spoke out against injustices in America.

TODAY MANY young people in America remain concerned about the war. Dr. King was criticized by many Americans because he led demonstrations. They said he was promoting violence; they did not believe he was a man committed to non-violence. Yet these same critics criticized Dr. King for his stance against the war. Dr. King believed in the Bible verse that says "Thou shall not kill," but apparently Mr. Ray did not believe this, and so Dr. King was killed.

I am proud of many of our youth today. They are following Dr. King's example by looking at some of our values and challenging those ills that are un-American. Adults need to listen more to youth. Long hair and manner of dress should not deter adults from judging young people by their character. I need not remind you that George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Jesus Christ, and many others that we recognize as great contributors to mankind wore long hair.

As a young resident of suburbia, I am pleading with every student to take advantage of every available opportunity to learn and increase your understanding of the world in which we live. I urge you to react to the hate often distributed by adults with love. We must promote love and peace for all mankind.

Two Top Picks For Illinois

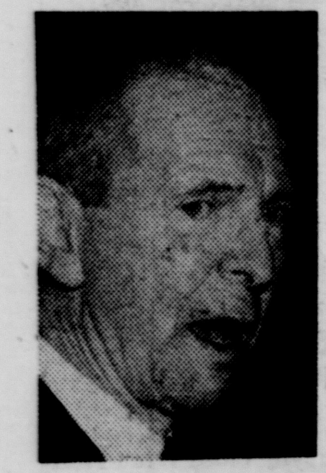
The furor is still being stirred over an attempted appointment of Gov. Daniel Walker, and justifiably so.

Walker until Wednesday stuck doggedly with his choice of Chicago millionaire Anthony Angelos as director of insurance, despite protests that included the threat that the state senate might refuse confirmation.

The charges against Angelos were numerous, and included reported links with the crime syndicate and operation of slum buildings.

We felt the appointment is a bad one, and strongly opposed it. But at the same time, there is much to be encouraged about in two other Walker appointments in a critical area for the state: conservation.

Those appointments deserve special mention among many good ones Walker has made, because their promise is so great in an area of such need.



William Rutherford

Walker has named Anthony Dean of Naperville as director of the department of conservation and William Rutherford of Peoria Heights as chairman of the advisory council to the department.

In so doing, he's elevated a young conservation activist (Dean, age 27) and an experienced one (Rutherford, 57) to positions of prime influence in addressing Illinois' environmental and conservation problems.

The accent is proper, and our hope is that Dean and Rutherford will have the latitude to carry through on those problems too long neglected in this state.

For Rutherford, it's the second time around. He was Richard Ogilvie's first director of conservation, an appointment widely applauded at the time.

Among his goals, he stressed reformation of the patronage-ridden department into one of professional service, and the acquisition of more park land to elevate Illinois from its dead-last position among the 48 continental states.

He made great strides in land acquisition, but before he could achieve reformation of the department, the system chewed him up. He was transferred to a position as coordinator of environmental quality, which he regarded as meaningless, and he finally quit state government.

The problems are still with us. Illinois still ranks far down the list of states in terms of park land set aside per population; the conservation department still is far from the level of professionalism that distinguishes states like Wisconsin and Michigan; and Illinois still remains a state where — given the choice between preservation and private interest — private interest is almost always the winner.

Rutherford has the experience and the sensitivity to know what has to be done. Dean seems to have the flame of a conservation activist who'll insist on priorities for preservation. His credentials include founding the Illinois Planning and Conservation League and the Illinois Environmental News, and he serves as adviser to the Great Lakes chapter of the Sierra Club.

There are some "ifs" — if Rutherford was appointed for more than his name value, and if both men will have a free hand to move.

But there's no reason at this point to believe that their appointments weren't made out of conviction, so our wish for them is speedy confirmation and full-bore concentration on shaking up the conservation system inIllinois.

Who Collects Cans?

Your typical scrap aluminum can collector is probably a youthful, civic-minded type doing it in the interests of ecology. Right?

Not according to a study by two University of Dallas graduate students.

The students, Charles Johnson and R. J. Wheelock, say the typical collector is male between 36 and 55 who drinks beer, works at a nonprofessional occupation at less than $10,000 a year and collects cans as a family project. His primary motivation is money, which "substantially outweighs" his concern for the environment.

Johnson and Wheelock questioned can collectors at Alcoa "Yes We Can" redemption centers in the Dallas and Fort Worth area, where collectors are paid 10 cents a pound for scrap cans. The reclamation study was undertaken to meet part of the requirements for their master of business administration degrees.

They found that the majority of scavengers, 72 per cent, collect cans on a fairly regular basis and, surprisingly, only 3 per cent do so to raise funds for Scout, civic or church-related efforts.

Since the "Yes We Can" program started two years ago in Dallas, Fort Worth and San Diego, some 300 million cans have been reclaimed and more than $1.5 million paid to the public.

Nationwide, the aluminum industry estimates that 1.5 billion aluminum cans were returned for recycling and reuse in the United States last year.

Britain's Press Gag Dilemma

For those who feel no concern over the growing tendency toward restrictions on the press in the United States, there is an interesting case study in the plight of the "thalidomide babies," whose tragedy triggered fleeting international anguish more than a decade ago.

It was a tragedy chiefly centered in Britain, where some 400 children were born with horrible deformities, to mothers who had been using the tranquilizer thalidomide.

Reports of the disaster brought cries of horror throughout the world. They also led to tightened restrictions on experimentation and marketing of drugs in the U. S. as well as in England.

The story lingered on from 1958 to 1961, when the drug was finally removed from the market — and it continued to receive wide attention until 1962, when the first lawsuit was filed against the English manufacturer of the drug.

The filing of that lawsuit invoked a stern British restriction on the press, which is prohibited from reporting on cases under consideration by the courts. The press of England docilely bowed to the law and the tragic story of the thalidomide babies was banished from the public prints.

It has now surfaced again, because one newspaper, The London Sunday Times, decided it could no longer defer to a law which was allowing what it called a "national shame," to be hidden from public view.

Bob Lahey

As recounted in the current issue of Time magazine, the manufacturer began in 1962 making efforts to settle the issue with parents of children born without arms, without legs, without vital organs.

The company's early offers ranged from $17,500 to $36,000 as lump sum settlements for children needing lifetime physical and psychological care, most of them now in early adolescence.

As Time reports, no proof of negligence has been established against the manufacturer, but the token settlements it offered were evidence of an awareness of a moral responsibility to the victims of its product.

The company was unable to escape with these paltry payments because a handful of parents of the deformed children refused to accept the condition that all lawsuits be withdrawn.

For ten years, they fought alone against one of England's giant manufacturers while the nation went unaware of their plight because its editors feared jail if they broke the restrictions imposed by the law.

Finally this fall, an editor by the name of Harold Evans decided to defy the court and began reporting on the plight of the children in the Sunday Times. A court ruled ("tortuously," as Time put it) that the first five articles in the Sunday Times did not constitute contempt, but warned that a sixth installment would.

The Times bowed to the ruling, but by that time the story had been taken up throughout the nation. "By Christmas," reports Time, "the story was front page news in nearly every daily in the country, and Britons began to raise a storm of protest."

The cry was taken up in the Parliament, and by the shareholders in the company, whose stock fell in value a total of $70.5 million in nine days.

At the time of Time's report, the pressure had led the company to raise its offer to the victims from $7 million to $51 million, which the parents were considering.

The public outcry was also bringing proposals for greater responsibility on the part of drug producers and increased rights for children crippled before birth.

"Finally," said Time, "the laws that gagged Britain's press, and allowed the affair to drag on unnoticed for a decade, may be radically altered, probably forever, by the courageous precedent of Editor Evans and the Sunday Times."

The case invites comparison to that cf the New York Times and the Pentagon Papers.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

'The Elderly Need The Downtown'

After reading a letter in your Jan. 10 Mount Prospect Herald, written by Mr. and Mrs. John Bowers, I felt I had to challenge their arrogant letter.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, just where do you suggest the proposed housing for the elderly be located? Maybe in the middle of some field out of touch with everything or behind a high fence so you wouldn't have to see it? Let's be realistic and get your head out of the clouds and down to earth. What makes you so sure the housing for the elderly won't upgrade downtown Mount Prospect? It could be a lift for downtown merchants.

The elderly do not want to be shut out of everything, they want to be where the action is just the same as you and I. They prefer to take care of themselves in their own way and at their own pace. If their housing is in the center of town, they will be able to do their grocery shopping, and other shopping, use the library facilities they helped pay for, walk to the theater, the bank, post-office, parks and trains without having to depend on anyone, for there comes a time when you no longer are able to drive a car and then one has to rely on our own two feet. It will be great to have these things accessible.

Maybe you have something special going for you where you will always have each other, always have good health, always be financially able to take care of your wants and needs, but these things do change, and if they do, hopefully it's good to know the place you choose with a limited income would be in the heart of town not in the boonies. Give this some serious thought, and I do mean serious, then maybe you can see the picture more clearly from the viewpoint of the silent majority. Incidentally, I am several years from retirement and not the silent type. I too hope to be at the zoning hearings to help those afraid to speak out.

'Cut Out The Nonsense' On Crime

War on crime seems to be a very difficult problem to lick. However it could be quite simple to make a big cut in crime if we cut out the nonsense. Forget the idea that everybody must have a college degree to get a good job whether or not they are inclined or can benefit by the schooling. This could very well take the "student cop-out" now inclined to be a dissident, out of the realm of valid excuses.

The mere thought of a college degree requirement sets up the problem of finances, whether the obligation is assumed by the parents or the government or industry sponsorship or the government G. I. Bill. Besides there are lots of people willing to work with their hands and could probably make more money than a college graduate who has no natural aptitude or desire for work of any kind.

Do away with the minimum wage laws as they increase unemployment affecting teen-agers, college students and the elderly who might otherwise be able to do menial tasks that will pay them to take care of a temporary need or a tide-over until better jobs come along. The 18 year old can now vote so he may be entitled to work for his keep and responsibility. If advisable and deemed appropriate provide them with vocational training and a dormitory to live in. This should relieve the temptation to rob and terrify the public.

A good county poor house would be the answer to help the welfare seeker, now in such numbers that they are getting out of hand. A home should also be provided for the unwed and abandoned married mothers with children. Just think of how it would do away with the slum landlords and the whole filthy business of administration for this sickening situation. The unemployed male should also be given the opportunity of vocational training and dormitory shelter and food that goes along with it.

Something should be done about the nonsensical idea of providing legal counsel for the habitual criminal, who when released on bail, will resort to the only thing he knows which is to resort to robbery again so that he can pay his lawyer to keep him free of a jail term. Oh, how a right to work law enforcement would help solve so many of these problems.

This is not asking much but I am sure it would help and might even help to balance the relationship between "haves" and "have nots."

Two Top Picks For Illinois

The furor is still being stirred over an attempted appointment of Gov. Daniel Walker, and justifiably so.

Walker until Wednesday stuck doggedly with his choice of Chicago millionaire Anthony Angelos as director of insurance, despite protests that included the threat that the state senate might refuse confirmation.

The charges against Angelos were numerous, and included reported links with the crime syndicate and operation of slum buildings.

We felt the appointment is a bad one, and strongly opposed it. But at the same time, there is much to be encouraged about in two other Walker appointments in a critical area for the state: conservation.

Those appointments deserve special mention among many good ones Walker has made, because their promise is so great in an area of such need.

William Rutherford

Walker has named Anthony Dean of Naperville as director of the department of conservation and William Rutherford of Peoria Heights as chairman of the advisory council to the department.

In so doing, he's elevated a young conservation activist (Dean, age 27) and an experienced one (Rutherford, 57) to positions of prime influence in addressing Illinois' environmental and conservation problems.

The accent is proper, and our hope is that Dean and Rutherford will have the latitude to carry through on those problems too long neglected in this state.

For Rutherford, it's the second time around. He was Richard Ogilvie's first director of conservation, an appointment widely applauded at the time.

Among his goals, he stressed reformation of the patronage-ridden department into one of professional service, and the acquisition of more park land to elevate Illinois from its dead-last position among the 48 continental states.

He made great strides in land acquisition, but before he could achieve reformation of the department, the system chewed him up. He was transferred to a position as coordinator of environmental quality, which he regarded as meaningless, and he finally quit state government.

The problems are still with us. Illinois still ranks far down the list of states in terms of park land set aside per population; the conservation department still is far from the level of professionalism that distinguishes states like Wisconsin and Michigan; and Illinois still remains a state where — given the choice between preservation and private interest — private interest is almost always the winner.

Rutherford has the experience and the sensitivity to know what has to be done. Dean seems to have the flame of a conservation activist who'll insist on priorities for preservation. His credentials include founding the Illinois Planning and Conservation League and the Illinois Environmental News, and he serves as adviser to the Great Lakes chapter of the Sierra Club.

There are some "ifs" — if Rutherford was appointed for more than his name value, and if both men will have a free hand to move.

But there's no reason at this point to believe that their appointments weren't made out of conviction, so our wish for them is speedy confirmation and full-bore concentration on shaking up the conservation system inIllinois.

Who Collects Cans?

Your typical scrap aluminum can collector is probably a youthful, civic-minded type doing it in the interests of ecology. Right?

Not according to a study by two University of Dallas graduate students.

The students, Charles Johnson and R. J. Wheelock, say the typical collector is male between 36 and 55 who drinks beer, works at a nonprofessional occupation at less than $10,000 a year and collects cans as a family project. His primary motivation is money, which "substantially outweighs" his concern for the environment.

Johnson and Wheelock questioned can collectors at Alcoa "Yes We Can" redemption centers in the Dallas and Fort Worth area, where collectors are paid 10 cents a pound for scrap cans. The reclamation study was undertaken to meet part of the requirements for their master of business administration degrees.

They found that the majority of scavengers, 72 per cent, collect cans on a fairly regular basis and, surprisingly, only 3 per cent do so to raise funds for Scout, civic or church-related efforts.

Since the "Yes We Can" program started two years ago in Dallas, Fort Worth and San Diego, some 300 million cans have been reclaimed and more than $1.5 million paid to the public.

Nationwide, the aluminum industry estimates that 1.5 billion aluminum cans were returned for recycling and reuse in the United States last year.

Britain's Press Gag Dilemma

For those who feel no concern over the growing tendency toward restrictions on the press in the United States, there is an interesting case study in the plight of the "thalidomide babies," whose tragedy triggered fleeting international anguish more than a decade ago.

It was a tragedy chiefly centered in Britain, where some 400 children were born with horrible deformities, to mothers who had been using the tranquilizer thalidomide.

Reports of the disaster brought cries of horror throughout the world. They also led to tightened restrictions on experimentation and marketing of drugs in the U. S. as well as in England.

The story lingered on from 1958 to 1961, when the drug was finally removed from the market — and it continued to receive wide attention until 1962, when the first lawsuit was filed against the English manufacturer of the drug.

The filing of that lawsuit invoked a stern British restriction on the press, which is prohibited from reporting on cases under consideration by the courts. The press of England docilely bowed to the law and the tragic story of the thalidomide babies was banished from the public prints.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most powerful weapon of all to compel industry to clean up the environment is being slowly applied.

There's no actual profit incentive to industry to be concerned about ecology. On the contrary, the research, the equipment and worker training to stop polluting the environment are expenses that look unproductive on the profit and loss line.

But one thing every industrial concern must have is adequate insurance. Industries that must pollute the air and water have the most trouble getting enough insurance because they are engaged in operations involving considerable risks.

INSURANCE companies are starting to threaten to refuse full coverage to such concerns unless they cooperate with the national ecological movement. Banks also are becoming more wary about making big loans to companies the authorities might crack down on because of pollution.

But it's the insurance companies that can apply quick pressure, according to Burton F. Harris, executive vice president of Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago. Harris said Insurance Co. of North America and seven or eight other major national carriers also have started applying such pressure. Continental Casualty is a member of the CNA Financial group.

Rather than turning on the heat directly with the blunt threat "Clean up in a hurry or we cancel your policies!" the insurance companies first work through industry trade associations. One is the National Solid Waste Management Association, members of which are vulnerable to lawsuits resulting from landfill and other refuse disposal operations, Harris said.

"We cannot in good conscience apply the pressure brutally because many firms would simply go broke if they lost their insurance overnight," Harris said. "They need at least a year to clean up."

CNA SAID the fear of loss of insurance protection was a greater incentive to clean up than local tax breaks, low interest loans or partial subsidies that various levels of government have tried.

CNA said the American Iron & Steel Institute and the Society of the Plastics Industry, representing industries with a history of insurance problems, have cooperated with insurance companies that offer their members coverage incentives to reduce pollution drastically.

But the pressure is not just a matter of threatening to withhold coverage, Harris said. "We also have developed a corps of loss prevention experts that has helped more than 100 companies solve pollution problems," he said.

Mortgage Funds To Be Available

An ample supply of mortgage funds will be available at the nation's savings and loan associations during 1973, although mortgage money may not be as plentiful as it was during the record year of 1972. This is the forecast by Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League.

The trade association executive said that the cost of home credit — as measured by mortgage interest rates — is likely to remain relatively stable during the coming year. The United States League is a nationwide trade organization of savings and loan associations.

Strunk said that some weeks ago there appeared to be a chance that long-term interest rates would continue to inch downward next year as they did during 1972.

But he added that the possibility now appears remote because of the recent run-up in short-term interest rates as a result of growing business and Treasury credit demands and by the news that peace in Vietnam is apparently further down the road than anticipated.

"THE EASING of long-term rates during the past year was a result of some moderation in inflation pressures which in turn reflected in part the impact of the wage-price control program as well as the general belief that war was fairly close to completion," said Strunk. "It remains unclear at this point, however, whether these pressures will continue to moderate in light of the broad and strong pickup in business, the heavy demands of the federal government for funds and the uncertainties about the war in Vietnam.

"The developments in the bond market in recent weeks make it clear that most long-term investors expect further progress in the fight against inflation to be quite slow, possibly painfully slow. Nevertheless, if this progress is made, then we could see some softening of long-term interest rates later in 1973."

The league official said he based his forecast of an ample supply of mortgage money on an expected continuation of favorable savings flows into the savings and loan associations. These associations in the past year provided two-thirds of all residential financing.

"There has been some slowdown in the rate at which Americans have been saving money in recent months," said Strunk. "No doubt this has reflected the considerable optimism about the prospects for peace and also about the prospects for the general economy. Presumably, consumer sentiment should remain quite favorable assuming resolution of some of the question marks about Vietnam that have been raised in recent weeks."

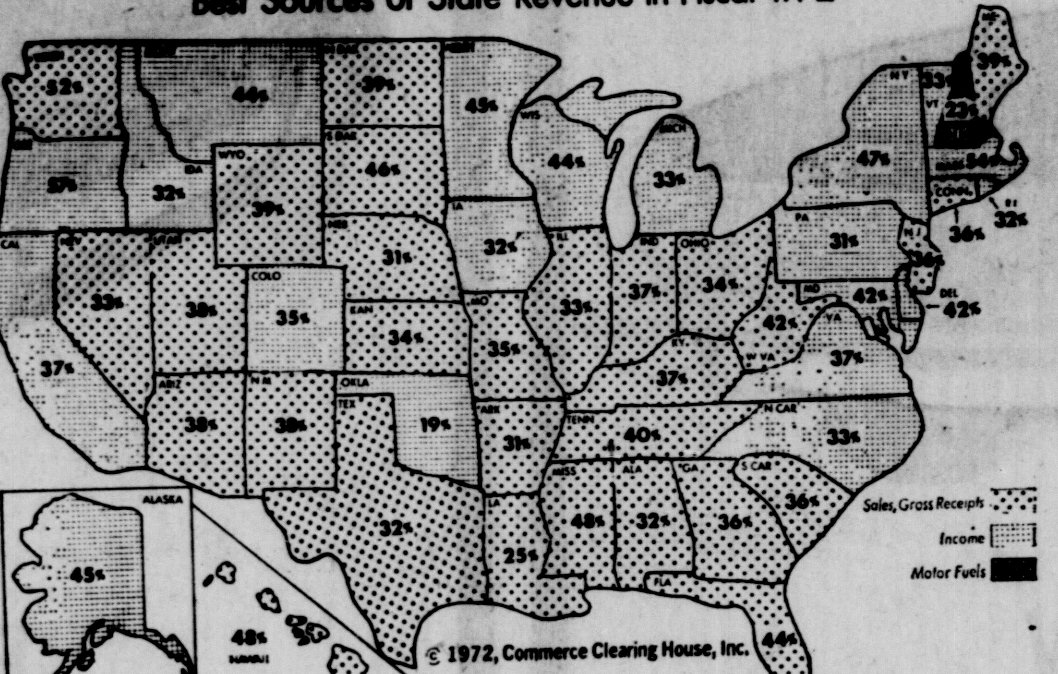
In addition to substantial savings flows, Strunk said that loan repayments to savings and loan associations now represent a larger and larger source of funds to be reinvested in the mortgage market. He noted, for example, that loan repayments in 1972 approximated $19 billion as compared to $11 billion only two years earlier.

BEYOND THESE factors, Strunk said, the Federal Home Laon Banks are in a strong liquidity position and have an ample supply of funds with which to make advances to savings and loan associations. He noted that as of the end of November, 1971, advances from the Home Loan Banks stood at $7.2 billion. In December, 1970, the advances topped out at $10.5 billion, dwindling to a low of $5.8 billion in May, 1972.

"New savings, loan repayments, and Federal Home Loan Bank advances are the traditional sources of funds to assist savings and loan associations in serving the home buyer. It is, of course, obvious that the expanded government role in supporting the mortgage market through the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Mortgage Corporation, and the Government National Mortgage Association also provides a measure of stability for the market which was not present some years ago."

Sales Tax Big Source Of State Cash

Best Sources of State Revenue in Fiscal 1972



© 1972, Commerce Clearing House, Inc.

Sales taxes continue to predominate as the leading state tax revenue source, Commerce Clearing House reported.

General sales and gross receipts taxes were the best source of state taxes in 29 states in fiscal 1972. Income taxes produced the most tax revenue in 20 states while motor fuel taxes topped the revenue-getting list in New Hampshire. Noteworthy, CCH said, was the fact the sales tax replaced the severance tax on natural resources as the top revenue raiser for the first time in a long time in Louisiana.

Total state tax collections jumped to $59.8 billion in the period, a 16.1 per cent increase over the $51.5 billion of fiscal 1971, according to the CCH review of Census Bureau data.

General sales and gross receipts tax collections rose 13.9 per cent to $17.6 billion — almost 30 per cent of all state tax collections. Individual income tax collections totaled $13 billion, a 28 per cent leap, while corporate income tax revenue rose 28.6 per cent to $4.4 billion. Motor fuel tax collections rose 8.9 per cent; receipts of taxes on tobacco products were up 11.6 per cent; alcoholic beverage taxes collections climbed 9.3 per cent and severance taxes increased 3.4 per cent, CCH noted.

Nearly one-half of all state tax revenue was collected in seven states. New York collected the largest amount, $7 billion. California garnered $6.7 billion; Pennsylvania, $3.9 billion; Illinois, $3.4 billion; Michigan, $3 billion; Texas, $2.6 billion, and Ohio, $2.2 billion.

All states except Alaska showed increases in total tax collections, CCH reported. Alaska's collections remained at $102 million. Twelve states (two in fiscal 1971) hiked collections by 20 per cent or more over the previous period.

Montana registered the highest percentage gain in collections, 34.6 per cent, trailed by Florida, 25.8 per cent and Pennsylvania, 24.9 per cent. Five states (10 in fiscal 1971) had increases of less than 6 per cent.

Rebirth For Idle Farm Land

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At least half of the nearly 60 million acres idled under government farm programs in 1972 have been unlocked for potential use in expanding crop and livestock output this year. And more may be turned loose later, administration officials indicate.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, reviewing the actions which turned loose the land, told a news conference Thursday he recalls that a similar move in the mid-1960s led to overproduction, surpluses and low farm prices. But this time Butz is confident there will be no such boomerang.

"I think we do see a strong continuing demand" for farm products including wheat, corn, soybeans and livestock, Butz said.

COMBINING ACTIONS announced last fall with those hurriedly rushed into effect this week after the shock of a near-record boom in December farm prices, here is what the administration has done to the land-idling "set-aside" programs for major crops:

Wheat: Instead of the total of 20 million acres "set aside" by farmers in 1972, the 1973 program is now geared so the acreage idled may be down to between 7 million acres and zero. The "freed" acreage will be between 13 million and 20 million.

Feed grains: Instead of the 36.5 million acres "set aside" in 1972, current estimates are that about 22 million acres will be idled. This makes an extra 14.5 million acres eligible for 1973 use.

Cotton: All of the 2 million acres "set aside" in 1972 will be freed for 1973 planting of almost any crop the farmer wants.

All told, 58.5 million acres were "set aside" last year by farmers qualifying for government supports in the three major crop groups. Now, the prospect is that between 30 million and 37 million of those acres may come back into production.

Dividend News

American Savings

A 35 per cent increase in total assets was achieved in the past year by American Savings and Loan of Schaumburg and Oak Park, announced president Arthur G. Erdmann Jr.

The record increase for the 60-year-old association boosted total assets to over $16.5 million.

Much of this growth has taken place in the quarter since the opening of American Savings' second office at 1010 Meacham Rd., across from Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg, explained Erdmann. In the three months since the new office opened Sept. 29, American Savings netted over $2 million in savings, a record for any three month period at the association.

Savings deposited at American Savings have been reinvested in first mortgage loans on selected homes in the Schaumburg and Oak Park areas.

American Savings, also located at 6720 W. Roosevelt Rd., Oak Park, was founded in 1913. The association is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most powerful weapon of all to compel industry to clean up the environment is being slowly applied.

There's no actual profit incentive to industry to be concerned about ecology. On the contrary, the research, the equipment and worker training to stop polluting the environment are expenses that look unproductive on the profit and loss line.

But one thing every industrial concern must have is adequate insurance. Industries that must pollute the air and water have the most trouble getting enough insurance because they are engaged in operations involving considerable risks.

INSURANCE companies are starting to threaten to refuse full coverage to such concerns unless they cooperate with the national ecological movement. Banks also are becoming more wary about making big loans to companies the authorities might crack down on because of pollution.

But it's the insurance companies that can apply quick pressure, according to Burton F. Harris, executive vice president of Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago. Harris said Insurance Co. of North America and seven or eight other major national carriers also have started applying such pressure. Continental Casualty is a member of the CNA Financial group.

Rather than turning on the heat directly with the blunt threat "Clean up in a hurry or we cancel your policies!" the insurance companies first work through industry trade associations. One is the National Solid Waste Management Association, members of which are vulnerable to lawsuits resulting from landfill and other refuse disposal operations, Harris said.

"We cannot in good conscience apply the pressure brutally because many firms would simply go broke if they lost their insurance overnight," Harris said. "They need at least a year to clean up."

CNA SAID the fear of loss of insurance protection was a greater incentive to clean up than local tax breaks, low interest loans or partial subsidies that various levels of government have tried.

CNA said the American Iron & Steel Institute and the Society of the Plastics Industry, representing industries with a history of insurance problems, have cooperated with insurance companies that offer their members coverage incentives to reduce pollution drastically.

But the pressure is not just a matter of threatening to withhold coverage, Harris said. "We also have developed a corps of loss prevention experts that has helped more than 100 companies solve pollution problems," he said.

Mortgage Funds To Be Available

An ample supply of mortgage funds will be available at the nation's savings and loan associations during 1973, although mortgage money may not be as plentiful as it was during the record year of 1972. This is the forecast by Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League.

The trade association executive said that the cost of home credit — as measured by mortgage interest rates — is likely to remain relatively stable during the coming year. The United States League is a nationwide trade organization of savings and loan associations.

Strunk said that some weeks ago there appeared to be a chance that long-term interest rates would continue to inch downward next year as they did during 1972.

But he added that the possibility now appears remote because of the recent run-up in short-term interest rates as a result of growing business and Treasury credit demands and by the news that peace in Vietnam is apparently further down the road than anticipated.

"THE EASING of long-term rates during the past year was a result of some moderation in inflation pressures which in turn reflected in part the impact of the wage-price control program as well as the general belief that war was fairly close to completion," said Strunk. "It remains unclear at this point, however, whether these pressures will continue to moderate in light of the broad and strong pickup in business, the heavy demands of the federal government for funds and the uncertainties about the war in Vietnam.

"The developments in the bond market in recent weeks make it clear that most long-term investors expect further progress in the fight against inflation to be quite slow, possibly painfully slow. Nevertheless, if this progress is made, then we could see some softening of long-term interest rates later in 1973."

The league official said he based his forecast of an ample supply of mortgage money on an expected continuation of favorable savings flows into the savings and loan associations. These associations in the past year provided two-thirds of all residential financing.

"There has been some slowdown in the rate at which Americans have been saving money in recent months," said Strunk. "No doubt this has reflected the considerable optimism about the prospects for peace and also about the prospects for the general economy. Presumably, consumer sentiment should remain quite favorable assuming resolution of some of the question marks about Vietnam that have been raised in recent weeks."

In addition to substantial savings flows, Strunk said that loan repayments to savings and loan associations now represent a larger and larger source of funds to be reinvested in the mortgage market. He noted, for example, that loan repayments in 1972 approximated $19 billion as compared to $11 billion only two years earlier.

BEYOND THESE factors, Strunk said, the Federal Home Laon Banks are in a strong liquidity position and have an ample supply of funds with which to make advances to savings and loan associations. He noted that as of the end of November, 1971, advances from the Home Loan Banks stood at $7.2 billion. In December, 1970, the advances topped out at $10.5 billion, dwindling to a low of $5.8 billion in May, 1972.

"New savings, loan repayments, and Federal Home Loan Bank advances are the traditional sources of funds to assist savings and loan associations in serving the home buyer. It is, of course, obvious that the expanded government role in supporting the mortgage market through the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Mortgage Corporation, and the Government National Mortgage Association also provides a measure of stability for the market which was not present some years ago."

Sales Tax Big Source Of State Cash

© 1972, Commerce Clearing House, Inc.

Sales taxes continue to predominate as the leading state tax revenue source, Commerce Clearing House reported.

General sales and gross receipts taxes were the best source of state taxes in 29 states in fiscal 1972. Income taxes produced the most tax revenue in 20 states while motor fuel taxes topped the revenue-getting list in New Hampshire. Noteworthy, CCH said, was the fact the sales tax replaced the severance tax on natural resources as the top revenue raiser for the first time in a long time in Louisiana.

Total state tax collections jumped to $59.8 billion in the period, a 16.1 per cent increase over the $51.5 billion of fiscal 1971, according to the CCH review of Census Bureau data.

General sales and gross receipts tax collections rose 13.9 per cent to $17.6 billion — almost 30 per cent of all state tax collections. Individual income tax collections totaled $13 billion, a 28 per cent leap, while corporate income tax revenue rose 28.6 per cent to $4.4 billion. Motor fuel tax collections rose 8.9 per cent; receipts of taxes on tobacco products were up 11.6 per cent; alcoholic beverage taxes collections climbed 9.3 per cent and severance taxes increased 3.4 per cent, CCH noted.

Nearly one-half of all state tax revenue was collected in seven states. New York collected the largest amount, $7 billion. California garnered $6.7 billion; Pennsylvania, $3.9 billion; Illinois, $3.4 billion; Michigan, $3 billion; Texas, $2.6 billion, and Ohio, $2.2 billion.

All states except Alaska showed increases in total tax collections, CCH reported. Alaska's collections remained at $102 million. Twelve states (two in fiscal 1971) hiked collections by 20 per cent or more over the previous period.

Montana registered the highest percentage gain in collections, 34.6 per cent, trailed by Florida, 25.8 per cent and Pennsylvania, 24.9 per cent. Five states (10 in fiscal 1971) had increases of less than 6 per cent.

Rebirth For Idle Farm Land

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At least half of the nearly 60 million acres idled under government farm programs in 1972 have been unlocked for potential use in expanding crop and livestock output this year. And more may be turned loose later, administration officials indicate.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, reviewing the actions which turned loose the land, told a news conference Thursday he recalls that a similar move in the mid-1960s led to overproduction, surpluses and low farm prices. But this time Butz is confident there will be no such boomerang.

"I think we do see a strong continuing demand" for farm products including wheat, corn, soybeans and livestock, Butz said.

COMBINING ACTIONS announced last fall with those hurriedly rushed into effect this week after the shock of a near-record boom in December farm prices, here is what the administration has done to the land-idling "set-aside" programs for major crops:

Wheat: Instead of the total of 20 million acres "set aside" by farmers in 1972, the 1973 program is now geared so the acreage idled may be down to between 7 million acres and zero. The "freed" acreage will be between 13 million and 20 million.

Feed grains: Instead of the 36.5 million acres "set aside" in 1972, current estimates are that about 22 million acres will be idled. This makes an extra 14.5 million acres eligible for 1973 use.

Cotton: All of the 2 million acres "set aside" in 1972 will be freed for 1973 planting of almost any crop the farmer wants.

All told, 58.5 million acres were "set aside" last year by farmers qualifying for government supports in the three major crop groups. Now, the prospect is that between 30 million and 37 million of those acres may come back into production.

American Savings

A 35 per cent increase in total assets was achieved in the past year by American Savings and Loan of Schaumburg and Oak Park, announced president Arthur G. Erdmann Jr.

The record increase for the 60-year-old association boosted total assets to over $16.5 million.

Much of this growth has taken place in the quarter since the opening of American Savings' second office at 1010 Meacham Rd., across from Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg, explained Erdmann. In the three months since the new office opened Sept. 29, American Savings netted over $2 million in savings, a record for any three month period at the association.

Savings deposited at American Savings have been reinvested in first mortgage loans on selected homes in the Schaumburg and Oak Park areas.

American Savings, also located at 6720 W. Roosevelt Rd., Oak Park, was founded in 1913. The association is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Quaker Oats

The board of directors of the Quaker Oats Co. declared a dividend of 18 cents a share on the outstanding common stock, and a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the preferred 20 to shareholders of record at the close of business on March 23 for the common and March 31 for the preferred stock.

Quaker is a Chicago-based manufacturer of foods, pet foods, toys, specialty chemicals, yarn and art needlecraft kits.

2 Swimmers Top State Honor Roll

by PAUL LOGAN
Swimming Editor

The Jan. 12 issue of the state honor roll demonstrated the dominance Herald area swimmers are showing this year, especially in two events.

According to the top 12 listings compiled by Evanston High School's Bill Sharp, five of the dozen best in the state in the 100-yard breaststroke are from this area. Three occupy exclusive position in the 100 butterfly, including St. Viator's Mike Salerno in first place.

The area also has individuals in the 200 freestyle, 200 individual medley, 100 freestyle and 50 freestyle. The latter two are filled by Prospect's Rick Fox, who is No. 1 in the state in the 50.

Many of the area's times have dropped since then as shown in this week's area honor roll, located elsewhere on this page.

"I think our area is just really coming in the breaststroke," said Arlington coach Don Anderson. "I don't know why."

Several other coaches were also polled, but none could come up with any reason for the area's superiority.

"The breaststroker needs a little more talent than a freestyler," said St. Viator coach John Fleck. Kevin Szarabjka, his fine junior, ranks fourth (see state rankings below) with 1:05.3.

Rick Fox

"Our district is the toughest in the state (in the breaststroke) with Highland Park and Deerfield."

Ranked behind Szarabjka are Maine North's Don Polz, Elk Grove's Scott Bolin, Maine North's Jeff Rusk and Prospect's John Todd.

"The kids I have are really dedicated," said Jerry Lovejoy, Prospect's coach. Besides Todd, Lovejoy has another fine breaststroker in Jeff Young. Young has beaten Todd this year and each pushes the other to lower times. Young will probably crack the top 12 when it comes out again late this month.

"John always hears those footsteps (or splashes, coach) over his shoulder," continued Lovejoy. Last week against Arlington, John won with 1:06.1 and Jeff was right behind with 1:06.8."

Intra-team competition at Maine North has also worked well with Polz, ranked fifth in the state, having teammate Jeff Rusk, ranked 10th, right beside him in practice and in duels.

Elk Grove coach Jim Harrington has versatile junior Scott Bolin doing well in both the breast (7th) and butterfly (11th) events.

"The backstroke is one event, it seems to me, where you really have to be a good swimmer," he said. "It seems that if you are just not born to be a backstroker, you cannot be a top one."

St. Viator's Salerno's middle name is "Butterfly" or so it seems, according to Fleck. His super senior showed his natural ability by being the best in the state by almost two seconds after having been out of the water six months because of mononucleosis. An illness that has plagued four St. Viator swimmers in the past year.

"The doctor thought it wise to knock off until September," said Fleck. Salerno had become sick around the districts last winter, but the doctor thought it was alright to continue. While other top backstrokers in the state were working out during the summer, St. Viator's ace was on the shore resting.

GARY GRUNWALD'S GETAWAY. Rolling Meadows' fine sprinter was one of only two individual swimmers to win against Maine East in a recent duel. Grunwald captured the 50 free (24.3) and 100 free (54.5) in a losing cause, 58-37 He also anchored the winning individual medley relay team.

CRUISING TO A PAIR of school records is Arlington's Charlie Dunn. He started the medley relay team off quickly in the backstroke as they chalked up a 1:45.5, tops in the Herald area, against Prospect. Dunn captured the individual medley (2:07.2) and smashed the team mark in the backstroke with 56.4, the second best time in the area. This fine junior paced his team to a convincing 67-28 victory over Prospect.

Cards Idle After Impressive Win

by PAUL LOGAN

SPOTLIGHT ON SWIMMING

A crushing victory, a stunning reversal and an extended winning streak highlighted action last weekend in Mid-Suburban League swimming.

Despite the tough losses that three teams absorbed, action resumes Friday afternoon with Elk Grove (2-0) at Wheeling (1-0), Hersey (1-1) at Prospect (0-2) and Forest View (0-1) at Rolling Meadows (0-2). Of the three dual meets, all of which are expected to be closely fought, only the Prospect hosted one begins at 4 p.m. The other two start at 4:30.

Arlington 67, Prospect 28

Pre-season prognosticators picked Arlington and Prospect as the two most likely teams to battle for the swim crown, following the Cardinals' hosted meet at Olympic Pool Friday.

Paul Lindquist

They're a fine squad, no question about that," said Prospect coach Jerry Lovejoy. "I'd have to rank them in the top 10 (in the state)."

Lovejoy was impressed because Arlington won nine out of 11 events en route to a commanding 67-28 victory.

"I think the medley relay really fired them up," said Card coach Don Anderson. His foursome of Charlie Dunn, Pete Wroblewski, Jim McWherter and Rex Hansen streaked home in 1:45.5 — best in the area so far and a school record. "That seemed to get everybody juiced up."

If the Cards weren't totally "juiced" or "fired" up, the 200 freestyle completed the job. Prospect's Rick Fox and Arlington's Joe Nitch, ranked 2-3 in the area honor roll last week, went head-to-head in the second event. That was a surprise to some for Fox usually performs in his super special events — the 50 and 100 freestyles.

"We were trying to outfox them a little bit, but it didn't work," said Lovejoy. Mitch, only a sophomore, turned in his best time ever as well as another second school record (1:53.6) to beat Fox (1:55.2). The latter, who is already at a 1:53.2 this season, was a little tired after having competed in the medley.

"They were very enthusiastic after that race," said Lovejoy. "It wasn't the turning point because we weren't in the meet anyway."

Joe Nitch also won the 400 freestyle (4:04.5) to join Charlie Dunn in the exclusive double win category. Dunn took the 200 individual medley (2:07.2) and the 100 backstroke (56.3), also a record. Both are underclassmen.

Anderson had special praise for his seniors who "really came through for us," especially Mike Nitch. Besides his third in the 200 free, Mike just barely trailed Fox again in the 100 free and anchored the winning 400 freestyle relay.

"He just had three outstanding swims," added Anderson.

Elk Grove 48, Hersey 47

"Last week I thought it was just a great team effort," said Elk Grove coach Jim Harrington, referring to the 48-47 win over Prospect. "Everybody swam well. This week we swam even better. I just couldn't believe it."

Neither could Hersey coach Herb Parsons. He's probably still talking to himself after suffering his second one-point loss in dual meets this season, 48-47. Reversals would have left the Huskies with a sparkling 7-1 mark.

Things looked bad to begin with since Brent Bolin, the Grove's outstanding freshman, wss sick and could not swim with the varsity. "We went into the meet thinking that we were in real trouble," said Harrington. "It was one of the best team efforts I've ever seen. It was unbelievable all down the line."

Trailing 30-13 after the first five events, the Grove began its startling comeback with a string of six straight firsts. This was how they came about:

Jim Henry, going three seconds faster than ever before, won the 100 butterfly (1:01.5); John Livesay, a speedy freshman, lowered his previous best in the 100 free (54.9); Jim Cashman, his frosh teammate, went four seconds better to win the 400 free (4:20.3); Steve Banach, an "old" sophomore, smashed his old time in the 100 backstroke (1:01.6); and Scott Bolin, the only double winner in the meet, raced to the wall to victory in the 100 breaststroke (1:06.5).

However, those wins and several very important thirds only cut the score to 47-41 in Hersey's favor. The 400 freestyle relay determined the meet.

Banach, Mark Fournier and Livesay stayed even with the visiting Huskies. Then Bolin — who just had a couple of minutes rest from the breaststroke — pulled away from Hersey and anchored his team to its best showing of the season in that event — 3:38.5. Hersey finished with 3:41.0.

This Grenadier surge overshadowed diver Allen Zasadny and the 400 free relay which established Hersey records of 227.4 and 3:41.0, respectively.

Wheeling 58, Rolling Meadows 37

A trio of Wildcats — Ken Bergman, Bill Modica and Paul Lindquist — nearly defeated the visting Mustangs singlehandedly. They combined for six individual victories and joined Mike Hyde in winning the 400 free relay (3:43.1).

Besides establishing a record in the re-

Lions Easily Handle Marist

St. Viator Hopes For Revenge Friday

"Race To Wire . . . But Lions Falter" — that was the headline last February when St. Viator, the perennial conference swim champion, lost the title to Marmion Military Academy.

Indicating that his team has some evening up to do, Lion coach John Fleck said his boys were eager to take on the hosting Cadets Friday at 4:30 p.m. in a dual meet.

If the Cadets are as down in outstanding swimmers as Marist was last week, it should be no contest. The Lions crushed their visiting opponents, 71-24.

Leading the list of winners, as usual, was Mike Salerno with a pair of victories. Competing in the individual medley — an event he had never swum before in varsity competition — Salerno set a school record of 2:13.4 despite a breaststroke that "was terrible," according to a chuckling Fleck.

Salerno, tops in the state in his specialty — the backstroke, swam the 100 freestyle instead. He won it in 54.0.

With his opening effort in the medley relay, the Lions cruised to victory with 1:46.4 — lowest time of the season. Joining him were Kevin Szarabajka, Monte McCollum and Jeff Iversen.

Other winners were Tom Ponsot in diving (184.6), Ed Fitzsimmons in the 200 freestyle (1:56.3), Jim Wolf in the 100 butterfly (58.2), Chris Kenny in the 400 freestyle (4:25.2), Szarabajka in the 100 breaststroke (1:07.9) and the 400 free relay team of Joe McMahon, Mike Skarzynski, Iversen and Fitzsimmons (3:37.3).

Posting seconds were Kenny in the 200 free (2:00.7), McMahon in the 50 free (24.5), Jerry Tully in diving (142.4), McCullom in the butterfly (58.7) and the backstroke (1:06.8) and Wolf in the breaststroke (1:09.9).

Iversen was the only third-place winner with his showing in the individual medley (2:19.5).

CRUISING TO A PAIR of school records is Arlington's Charlie Dunn. He started the medley relay team off quickly in the backstroke as they chalked up a 1:45.5, tops in the Herald area, against Prospect. Dunn captured the individual medley (2:07.2) and smashed the team mark in the backstroke with 56.4, the second best time in the area. This fine junior paced his team to a convincing 67-28 victory over Prospect.

Cards Idle After Impressive Win

SPOTLIGHT ON SWIMMING

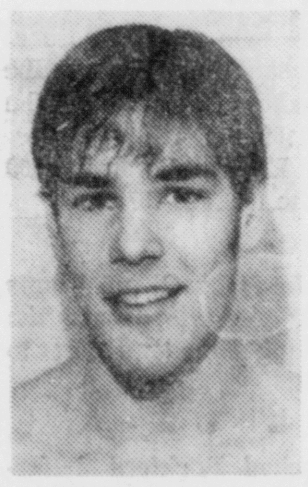
A crushing victory, a stunning reversal and an extended winning streak highlighted action last weekend in Mid-Suburban League swimming.

Despite the tough losses that three teams absorbed, action resumes Friday afternoon with Elk Grove (2-0) at Wheeling (1-0), Hersey (1-1) at Prospect (0-2) and Forest View (0-1) at Rolling Meadows (0-2). Of the three dual meets, all of which are expected to be closely fought, only the Prospect hosted one begins at 4 p.m. The other two start at 4:30.

Arlington, leading the MSL with a 2-0 mark, is idle in the conference.

Arlington 67, Prospect 28

Pre-season prognosticators picked Arlington and Prospect as the two most likely teams to battle for the swim crown, following the Cardinals' hosted meet at Olympic Pool Friday.



Paul Lindquist

They're a fine squad, no question about that," said Prospect coach Jerry Lovejoy. "I'd have to rank them in the top 10 (in the state)."

Lovejoy was impressed because Arlington won nine out of 11 events en route to a commanding 67-28 victory.

"I think the medley relay really fired them up," said Card coach Don Anderson. His foursome of Charlie Dunn, Pete Wroblewski, Jim McWherter and Rex Hansen streaked home in 1:45.5 — best in the area so far and a school record. "That seemed to get everybody juiced up."

If the Cards weren't totally "juiced" or "fired" up, the 200 freestyle completed the job. Prospect's Rick Fox and Arlington's Joe Nitch, ranked 2-3 in the area honor roll last week, went head-to-head in the second event. That was a surprise to some for Fox usually performs in his super special events — the 50 and 100 freestyles.

"We were trying to outfox them a little bit, but it didn't work," said Lovejoy. Mitch, only a sophomore, turned in his best time ever as well as another second school record (1:53.6) to beat Fox (1:55.2). The latter, who is already at a 1:53.2 this season, was a little tired after having competed in the medley.

"They were very enthusiastic after that race," said Lovejoy. "It wasn't the turning point because we weren't in the meet anyway."

Joe Nitch also won the 400 freestyle (4:04.5) to join Charlie Dunn in the exclusive double win category. Dunn took the 200 individual medley (2:07.2) and the 100 backstroke (56.3), also a record. Both are underclassmen.

Anderson had special praise for his seniors who "really came through for us," especially Mike Nitch. Besides his third in the 200 free, Mike just barely trailed Fox again in the 100 free and anchored the winning 400 freestyle relay.

''He just had three outstanding swims," added Anderson.

Elk Grove 48, Hersey 47

"Last week I thought it was just a great team effort," said Elk Grove coach Jim Harrington, referring to the 48-47 win over Prospect. "Everybody swam well. This week we swam even better. I just couldn't believe it."

Neither could Hersey coach Herb Parsons. He's probably still talking to himself after suffering his second one-point loss in dual meets this season, 48-47. Reversals would have left the Huskies with a sparkling 7-1 mark.

Things looked bad to begin with since Brent Bolin, the Grove's outstanding freshman, wss sick and could not swim with the varsity. "We went into the meet thinking that we were in real trouble," said Harrington. "It was one of the best team efforts I've ever seen. It was unbelievable all down the line."

Trailing 30-13 after the first five events, the Grove began its startling comeback with a string of six straight firsts. This was how they came about:

Jim Henry, going three seconds faster than ever before, won the 100 butterfly (1:01.5); John Livesay, a speedy freshman, lowered his previous best in the 100 free (54.9); Jim Cashman, his frosh teammate, went four seconds better to win the 400 free (4:20.3); Steve Banach, an "old" sophomore, smashed his old time in the 100 backstroke (1:01.6); and Scott Bolin, the only double winner in the meet, raced to the wall to victory in the 100 breaststroke (1:06.5).

However, those wins and several very important thirds only cut the score to 47-41 in Hersey's favor. The 400 freestyle relay determined the meet.

Banach, Mark Fournier and Livesay stayed even with the visiting Huskies. Then Bolin — who just had a couple of minutes rest from the breaststroke — pulled away from Hersey and anchored his team to its best showing of the season in that event — 3:38.5. Hersey finished with 3:41.0.

This Grenadier surge overshadowed diver Allen Zasadny and the 400 free relay which established Hersey records of 227.4 and 3:41.0, respectively.

Wheeling 58, Rolling Meadows 37

A trio of Wildcats — Ken Bergman, Bill Modica and Paul Lindquist — nearly defeated the visting Mustangs singlehandedly. They combined for six individual victories and joined Mike Hyde in winning the 400 free relay (3:43.1).

Besides establishing a record in the re-

Lions Easily Handle Marist

St. Viator Hopes For Revenge Friday

"Race To Wire . . . But Lions Falter" — that was the headline last February when St. Viator, the perennial conference swim champion, lost the title to Marmion Military Academy.

Indicating that his team has some evening up to do, Lion coach John Fleck said his boys were eager to take on the hosting Cadets Friday at 4:30 p.m. in a dual meet.

If the Cadets are as down in outstanding swimmers as Marist was last week, it should be no contest. The Lions crushed their visiting opponents, 71-24.

Leading the list of winners, as usual, was Mike Salerno with a pair of victories. Competing in the individual medley — an event he had never swum before in varsity competition — Salerno set a school record of 2:13.4 despite a breaststroke that "was terrible," according to a chuckling Fleck.

Salerno, tops in the state in his specialty — the backstroke, swam the 100 freestyle instead. He won it in 54.0.

With his opening effort in the medley relay, the Lions cruised to victory with 1:46.4 — lowest time of the season. Joining him were Kevin Szarabajka, Monte McCollum and Jeff Iversen.

Other winners were Tom Ponsot in diving (184.6), Ed Fitzsimmons in the 200 freestyle (1:56.3), Jim Wolf in the 100 butterfly (58.2), Chris Kenny in the 400 freestyle (4:25.2), Szarabajka in the 100 breaststroke (1:07.9) and the 400 free relay team of Joe McMahon, Mike Skarzynski, Iversen and Fitzsimmons (3:37.3).

Posting seconds were Kenny in the 200 free (2:00.7), McMahon in the 50 free (24.5), Jerry Tully in diving (142.4), McCullom in the butterfly (58.7) and the backstroke (1:06.8) and Wolf in the breaststroke (1:09.9).

Iversen was the only third-place winner with his showing in the individual medley (2:19.5).

GARY GRUNWALD'S GETAWAY. Rolling Meadows' fine sprinter was one of only two individual swimmers to win against Maine East in a recent duel. Grunwald captured the 50 free (24.3) and 100 free (54.5) in a losing cause, 58-37 He also anchored the winning individual medley relay team.

Grenadiers Impress At Invite

Almost every top team in the state received an invitation for the annual Freshman Invitational at Hinsdale Central.

This fact made Elk Grove's showing in the Saturday meet all the more impressive. The Grenadiers landed sixth place in a meet that had 19 teams scoring points. And, even more dazzling, Coach Jim Harrington's youngsters were in second place until the last two events.

"Everywhere we swam we placed," said Harrington of his five-swimmer, one-diver team.

Thanks to some impressive seconds and thirds, the Grenadiers were second behind Hinsdale Central heading into the breaststroke. However, Harrington didn't have anyone to compete in that event or the 400 freestyle relay.

John Livesay's pair of seconds in the 50 freestyle (24.6) and the 100 freestyle (54.0) and Brent Bolin's (just coming back from a bout with the flu), runner-up in the 50 breaststroke (31.9) led the fine showing.

Bolin placed third in the 100 individual medley (1:02.5) and joined Livesay, Jim Cashman and Jay Perry to take third in the 200 medley relay (1:55.7).

Cashman took the only sixth with 1:31.0 in the 150 freestyle.

Posting eighths were Jim Spencer in diving (121.5) and Cashman in the 400 freestyle (4:21.5).

Perry took a ninth in the 50 butterfly (30.4).

Arlington's only point-getter was Glen Seaman with ninth in diving.

The final team standings went like this:

Countryside 'Y' Splits With Evanston

Countryside YMCA (Palatine) swimmers met Evanston Saturday. The girls traveled to Evanston and the boys hosted their meet at St. Viator.

While the girls lost a close one 178-169, the boys crushed Evanston 248-70. With power distributed among the age groups for boys' tankers, the victory was a team effort. The girls' strength came from the preps, Juniors and Midgets, all winning their divisions.

2 Swimmers Lead State List

"The reason why he bounced back so fast is, No. 1, he's a hard worker and, No. 2, he has natural talent."

Arlington junior Charlie Dunn is the third fine backstroker in this field.

Fox of Prospect is the same type of individual. "He just thrives on work," said Lovejoy. "You just can't give him enough to do. He has a great attitude.

I think this year Rick has matured tremendously," he continued while explaining his lofty positions in the state. "He's grown several inches and put on weight. Last year I could look down on him, but his year it's almost eyeball to eyeball."

Dunn ranks fourth in the 200 individual medley and Maine West's Larry Bierwirth is second in the 200 freestyle to round out the top individuals. St. Viator's medley relay team is 12th as of the Jan. 12 date.

2 'Bobs' Pace Hersey To Victory

A pair of Bobs — Larue and Bosley — had a hand in six of Hersey's nine event win as the Huskies submerged hosting Libertyville Saturday, 68-27.

Larue won the 50 freestyle (24.3) and the backstroke (1:04.8) along with handling the anchor of the 200 medley which set a school record of 1:51.9. Joining him were Jeff Siler, George Dodgen and Dave Colburn.

Bosley took the 200 free (2:02.7) and 400 free (4:32.2). He also swam the third leg of the 400 freestyle relay that finished with 3:43.8. The rest of the winning efforts was made possible by Bob Butler, Dave Henderson and Kevin Taylor.

Taylor set a record in the 100 free (53.3) with Butler right behind (56.9).

Allen Zasadny captured diving with a 163.05 — the point total from two judges. Jeff Speakman was third (115.65).

Other seconds were registered by Butler in the 200 free (2:08.0), Taylor in the individual medley (2:21.6) Colburn in the 100 butterfly (1:07.4), Siler in the backstroke (1:06.8) and Dodgen in the breaststroke (1:12.1).

Siler also had a third in the individual medley (2:31.2).

The victory boosted the Huskies' overall mark to 5-3, including two losses by a single point.

Romps Highlight Lower Levels

Five lopsided meets and two close ones highlighted action in lower level swimming last week.

Heading the list of romps was St. Viator's over Marist, 80-19. Mark Nelles again paced the Lions with double victories in the 200 free (2:06.3) and 400 free (4:33.7).

Wheeling had a trio of two-time winners in taking 10 of 11 events against Rolling Meadows. Leading the Wildcats to a 73-22 victory were these swimmers:

Dave Mede in the 200 free (2:11.7) and 400 free (4:47.2), Dan Spaulding in the individual medley (2:34.0) and the butterfly (1:15.4) and Kelly Bauer in the 50 free (25.8) and 100 free (58.7).

Arlington's 70-24 win over Prospect was keyed by Kiernan Mack. He won the 200 individual medley (2:25.0) and the 100 breaststroke (1:09.1).

Prospect's Gary Eichhorst won the 200 free (2:06.5) and the 100 free (57.5).

Despite double firsts by Glenn Adams in the 200 and 200 freestyle events, the Mustangs of Rolling Meadows lost to Maine East, 60.5-34.5.

Forest View rocked Rockford Jefferson, 73-21, behind the showings of jayvee performers Doug Schlak and Kevin Redig. Schlak anchored the medley relay to victory as well as winning the 50 freestyle (24.4) and the 100 free (54.1). Redig took the 200 (2:05.0) and the 400 (4:25.0) along with anchoring the 400 free relay.

Hersey was involved in both blanket finishes — winning one and losing one.

The Huskies lost a heartbreaker to Elk Grove, 48-47, as Tom Szerelmey and Jay Perry turned in double victories. Szerelmey won the 50 free (26.4) and 100 free (58.3); Perry took the 100 butterfly (1:10.4) and the 400 free (4:41.4).

Paced by Chris Tague's two wins, the Huskies handed Libertyville a 49-46 setback. Tague went 4:38 in the 400 free and 2:10.6 in the 200 free.

Talented Rockford Tops Forest View

Forest View made its second trip to Rockford for a swim meet this season. However, the results weren't too good.

The Falcons of Coach John Hillary, finishers far back in the pack in the Rockford Holiday Invitational Dec. 30, dropped a dual meet to Rockford Jefferson, 84-11, Saturday.

Hillary swam some of his top varsity underclassmen on the junior varsity level which caused the lopsided loss.

Jeff Geisler was the only swimmer to crack runner-up honors with his showing in the 100 backstroke (1:02.5). The rest of the Falcons took seconds:

Geisler in the 200 individual medley (2:34.9), Rich Martinek in both the 100 butterfly (1:07.2) and the 100 breaststroke (1:13.0;, Mark Alfrejd in the 50 freestyle (32.4) and the 100 free (1:13.5), Jim Forssander in diving (120.55) and Joel Oliver in the 400 freestyle (4:55.5).

2 'Bobs' Pace Hersey To Victory

A pair of Bobs — Larue and Bosley — had a hand in six of Hersey's nine event win as the Huskies submerged hosting Libertyville Saturday, 68-27.

Larue won the 50 freestyle (24.3) and the backstroke (1:04.8) along with handling the anchor of the 200 medley which set a school record of 1:51.9. Joining him were Jeff Siler, George Dodgen and Dave Colburn.

Bosley took the 200 free (2:02.7) and 400 free (4:32.2). He also swam the third leg of the 400 freestyle relay that finished with 3:43.8. The rest of the winning efforts was made possible by Bob Butler, Dave Henderson and Kevin Taylor.

Taylor set a record in the 100 free (53.3) with Butler right behind (56.9).

Allen Zasadny captured diving with a 163.05 — the point total from two judges. Jeff Speakman was third (115.65).

Siler also had a third in the individual medley (2:31.2).

The victory boosted the Huskies' overall mark to 5-3, including two losses by a single point.

Grenadiers Impress At Invite

Almost every top team in the state received an invitation for the annual Freshman Invitational at Hinsdale Central.

This fact made Elk Grove's showing in the Saturday meet all the more impressive. The Grenadiers landed sixth place in a meet that had 19 teams scoring points. And, even more dazzling, Coach Jim Harrington's youngsters were in second place until the last two events.

"Everywhere we swam we placed," said Harrington of his five-swimmer, one-diver team.

Thanks to some impressive seconds and thirds, the Grenadiers were second behind Hinsdale Central heading into the breaststroke. However, Harrington didn't have anyone to compete in that event or the 400 freestyle relay.

John Livesay's pair of seconds in the 50 freestyle (24.6) and the 100 freestyle (54.0) and Brent Bolin's (just coming back from a bout with the flu), runner-up in the 50 breaststroke (31.9) led the fine showing.

Bolin placed third in the 100 individual medley (1:02.5) and joined Livesay, Jim Cashman and Jay Perry to take third in the 200 medley relay (1:55.7).

Cashman took the only sixth with 1:31.0 in the 150 freestyle.

Posting eighths were Jim Spencer in diving (121.5) and Cashman in the 400 freestyle (4:21.5).

Perry took a ninth in the 50 butterfly (30.4).

Arlington's only point-getter was Glen Seaman with ninth in diving.

Hinsdale Central 237, Peoria Richwoods 148, Highland Park 105, Evanston 102, Maine South 100, Elk Grove 96, New Trier East 87, Thornridge 57, La Grange 56, Proviso West 42, Homewood-Flossmoor 51, New Trier West 32, Sandburg 28, Hinsdale South 22, Riverside-Brookfield 16, Glenbrook South 9, Arlington 4, Oak Park 4, and Thornwood 2.

2 Swimmers Lead State List

"The reason why he bounced back so fast is, No. 1, he's a hard worker and, No. 2, he has natural talent."

Arlington junior Charlie Dunn is the third fine backstroker in this field.

Fox of Prospect is the same type of individual. "He just thrives on work," said Lovejoy. "You just can't give him enough to do. He has a great attitude.

I think this year Rick has matured tremendously," he continued while explaining his lofty positions in the state. "He's grown several inches and put on weight. Last year I could look down on him, but his year it's almost eyeball to eyeball."

Dunn ranks fourth in the 200 individual medley and Maine West's Larry Bierwirth is second in the 200 freestyle to round out the top individuals. St. Viator's medley relay team is 12th as of the Jan. 12 date.

Hersey was involved in both blanket finishes — winning one and losing one.

The Huskies lost a heartbreaker to Elk Grove, 48-47, as Tom Szerelmey and Jay Perry turned in double victories. Szerelmey won the 50 free (26.4) and 100 free (58.3); Perry took the 100 butterfly (1:10.4) and the 400 free (4:41.4).

Paced by Chris Tague's two wins, the Huskies handed Libertyville a 49-46 setback. Tague went 4:38 in the 400 free and 2:10.6 in the 200 free.

Talented Rockford Tops Forest View

Forest View made its second trip to Rockford for a swim meet this season. However, the results weren't too good.

The Falcons of Coach John Hillary, finishers far back in the pack in the Rockford Holiday Invitational Dec. 30, dropped a dual meet to Rockford Jefferson, 84-11, Saturday.

Hillary swam some of his top varsity underclassmen on the junior varsity level which caused the lopsided loss.

Jeff Geisler was the only swimmer to crack runner-up honors with his showing in the 100 backstroke (1:02.5). The rest of the Falcons took seconds:

Geisler in the 200 individual medley (2:34.9), Rich Martinek in both the 100 butterfly (1:07.2) and the 100 breaststroke (1:13.0;, Mark Alfrejd in the 50 freestyle (32.4) and the 100 free (1:13.5), Jim Forssander in diving (120.55) and Joel Oliver in the 400 freestyle (4:55.5).

Plays 'Answer Man' Role To Perfection

Harry Caray Captures Some More Fans

'When I'm screaming, I know you're screaming . . . When I'm mad, I know you're mad,' says Harry Caray in describing his unique style.

"I hate Harry Caray!"

A youngster growled that comment early in the summer of '64. He had only listened to the St. Louis Cardinal announcer once in a while and was turned off by his yelling.

Then the Philadelphia Phillies began to lose their big lead in the National League . . . The Cardinals started coming . . . This kid started listening every night . . . And he found himself admitting he was wrong about Caray.

Most if not all of those who came to the Paddock Publications Pro Sports Club Luncheon had to be caught up in the captivating, charismatic quality of this voice of the Chicago White Sox. His unique personality didn't sway me, however. I've been a fan of his since that summer of '64.

Caray answered more questions than any of the past speakers at the luncheons. The hands were still waving for attention when the discussion had to stop, already running overtime.

The following are questions that either came up at the luncheon or afterwards during an interview with Caray:

Q. Where did "holy cow" originate?

A. Very simple. I came from a neighborhood where most of the people now have been in prison (St. Louis). To keep away from the language accustomed to there, I cam eup with holy cow.

Q. How do you describe your voice?

A. I think there's the element of excitement in it. I don't think it's a great voice by commercial standards.

Q. How do you think the Cubs will do?

A. Oh, they'll show up.

Q. What's a description of your character?

A. Expressive . . . enthusiastic . . . colorful.

Paul Logan

Q. How would you describe Howard Cosell in one sentence?

A. I've been doing for 25 years what Howard Cosell is famous for doing now. He's the first guy to do it on a national basis. I have great respect for him.

Q. Is baseball too slow?

A. I don't think it needs speeding up at all. The intentional pass — how much time is it going to save? I saw Ray Sadecki make two wild pitches while trying to put a man on in the Polo Grounds and he lost the ball game.

Q. What was your biggest boner on the air?

A. With so many lovely ladies here, I can't tell you about it, sir. I'll write you a letter.

Q. Even though you have an obvious enthusiasm for baseball, isn't the season just too long?

A. I don't know. Is hockey, or football and basketball too long? It's an economic necessity.

Q. Has a player ever taken a swing at you after you were critical of his play?

A. Never. You know, I'm an old Golden Glover.

Q. Just what makes Chuck Tanner such an exceptional manager?

A. He's the right kind of guy for the times. I don't think he could have been as good a manager 10 years ago or 10 years from now. Youngsters cannot be dictated to these days. You don't drive youth. You make them do something and then make them think they thought of it first. Tanner makes his players think they are better than they really are sometimes and gets more out of them.

Q. Is there anybody else managing in the majors who is like Tanner?

A. Billy Martin. They're on an equal plane. Two different types that get similar results.

Q. Who's the greatest all-round player you ever saw in baseball?

A. I honestly believe the overall greatest player was Roberto Clemente. Even greater than Willie Mays. Clemente was more consistent than Mays. He had the greatest arm I've ever seen. One time he made three spectacular throws against the Cardinals. He threw one out at third, one at the plate and a perfect throw skipped through the catcher's legs. The official scorer gave Clemente an error. It was a case of one right fielder making three assists in one inning. Then he caught a fly ball to end the inning.

Q. Are you in favor of inter-league along geographic lines?

A. Definitely. It's so ridiculous about the pinch hitting rule being added when you could be doing something really vital. Attendance would zoom. That's what it's all about — drawing crowds. The National League, as a rule, thinks it's in a better position because it has so many new ball parks. Therefore, they think they draw more. But St. Louis is steadily seeing its attendance going down the drain, Houston is static, San Diego is a problem child, Cincinnati isn't drawing as well as it should, San Francisco is in trouble and Pittsburgh isn't having as big a gate as it should with that kind of ball club. In another few years the pendulum is going to swing in the other direction.

Q. What are your opinions on the reserve clause in baseball? Do you think this is the only way the sport can be run?

A. I think that in a few years there will be a rule stating that after so many years in baseball, a player can become a free agent.

Q. You were quoted once in the Sporting News as saying that "Other than the World Series, televised baseball leaves much to be desired." You'll be on the TV end regularly this year with the Sox. What type of format will be followed to liven up the broadcasts or is baseball just not a good sport for television?

A. By its very structure you can't do as much for baseball as for other sports. The panorama is too wide. I defy one cameraman to follow all of the action when a ball is hit to the outfield. While he's following the ball, the runner is heading around the bases. If he follows the runner, he fails to see the cutoff play. They (NBC-TV's "Game of the Week") do a helluva job, but they don't give you the whole ball game. In baseball, you have to be there in person to appreciate the whole game. When you're there, you can fill in the slow spots by buying a hot dog or a beer, arguing with somebody sitting next to you, looking at a pretty chick that's passing by. You can't do that sitting at home in front of the set.

Q. What do you think of Charlie Finley?

A. He's very entertaining. He's a good friend of mine. I left Oakland basically because it's so far away from home — the midwest.

Q. Who has been the hardest sports performer to interview?

A. I never found any hard. Some just aren't that articulate. Those are a challenge to interview.

Q. Has Richie Allen changed his personality?

A. He hasn't changed. What has made the difference has been Tanner. When Richie's team lost the pennant in '64, the management had already printed the World Series tickets. Who did they decide to blame the whole thing on — the local boy, Richie. He was a rookie who had made the most errors of any third baseman. They tried to put the rap on him. When a young kid is subjected to that kind of criticism, it's bound to affect him. The fans forgot everything Allen had done for them. He was their strength and they got rid of him.

Q. Who would you like to see as commissioner of baseball?

A. Me! I'd make a helluva commissioner. I know the game, the owners, the players. If it wasn't for the owners and a weak commissioner, there wouldn't have been a Marvin Miller. If he (Bowie Kuhn) didn't have a ring in his nose and had the guts to sell the bill of goods to the owners, they'd buy.

Q. What was your greatest announcing thrill?

A. To see Notre Dame beaten by Missouri at South Bend last year. I never thought I'd live to see it.

Q. What's been the greatest challenge in your job over the years?

A. It wasn't tough selling the Cardinals to the fans in St. Louis what with the many successful seasons and big-name ball players. It wasn't too tough at Oakland either for they also have some top names. But the only guy fans had heard about when they hired Chuck Tanner, Roland Hemond and Harry Caray was me. The club had just won 56 games the year before and only drawn something like 490,000. Selling the fans on the White Sox that first year was a challenge!

Q. What do you think about the World Champion A's and their trades?

A. I think they've weakened themselves. They traded away a very valuable player from last year in Mike Epstein. Everybody's helped themselves but the World Champions. The division is balanced.

Q. What channel are you going to be broadcasting on now?

A. Channel 44. Can you get it out here? Good. I can't get it where I stay.

Des Plaines Gymnastics Action

Norsemen Win; East, West Falter

Maine North picked up one win while everyone else lost this past weekend during Des Plaines area varsity gymnastics.

The Norsemen of coach Art Wildner earned a third victory against five losses last Saturday by outpointing Glenbard South, 49.9 to 38.6.

That followed a Friday evening loss to Niles West, 121.3 to 60.3.

In other meets, Maine West was a two-time loser and is now winless in eight duals. The Warriors surrendered to Prospect, 111.2 to 85.4, and New Trier West, 89.8 to 81.9.

Maine East competed only once, losing 124.1 to 93.3 to Glenbrook South. East is now 2-7.

The weekend's individual high scores were divided up entirely among West and East gymnasts.

West's Mark Schuldt had a 7.25 in free exercise against New Trier West. Teammate Bill Lumpp scored a 7.3 on side horse, also against the Cowboys.

Finally, West's Ken Heller led Des Plaines area gymnasts with his 7.05 on trampoline.

Blue Demon gymnast Joe Darby earned the best scores in high bar (5.2), parallel bar (5.25) and still rings (6.95).

Maine East's strongest event against Glenbrook South was still rings. The Blue Demons scored 19.7 points but still trailed the high scoring Titans by nearly three.

The Titans scored 20 or more points in three events — trampoline 20.45, parallel bar 20.40 and rings 22.30. And they came close in free exercise (19.15) and side horse (18.95).

As usual, the Blue Demons severely hurt themselves by falling nearly flat in one event. This past weekend, East managed just nine points on side horse.

It was the meet's second event. And after free exercise, the Blue Demons trailed only 19.15 to 18.20.

But the winning Titans scored nearly ten points more than East on side horse. That gave Glenbrook South a commanding 38.1 to 27.45 lead that Maine never threatened.

East's other top scores against GBS were Steve Slaw's 6.5 in free exercise, Steve Stein's 5.7 side horse routine and John Jurica's 4.85 trampoline performance.

Maine West fell below a double figure score just once during 12 events in two weekend meets. The Warriors scored only 8.4 on parallel bar against New Trier West.

Their highest totals were in floor exercise during both the New Trier and Prospect losses. Schuldt, Heller and Ken Henderson combined for a 17.7 against Prospect and 16.55 against New Trier.

Their individual scores were Schuldt 7.25 and 7.15, Henderson 4.3 and 5.05 and Heller 5.0 and 5.5.

Steve Taylor gave the Warriors their best weekend high bar score with a 5.5 against New Trier West. Phil DaPrato scored 5.8 on rings against New Trier and 4.8 on parallel bars against Prospect, also weekend highs for the Warriors.

Sports infant Maine North had only seven scores of four points or higher while losing to Niles West and defeating Glenbard South.

Joe Lechner gave the Norsemen two of their "low highs" when he had 5.05 and 5.3 in his weekend free exercise routines.

The Scarola brothers — Roger and Rich — each turned a 4.00 routine on still rings.

Other scores were Larry Sachs 4.15 in free exercise, Brad Stridde 4.35 on parallel bars and Jim Andrews 4.2 on side horse.

On Friday, Maine North hosts Niles North at 7 p.m. and Glenbrook North visits East one-half hour earlier.

Saturday, North visits Rolling Meadows at 2 p.m. and Glenbrook North visits West at 1:30 p.m.

Baseball Meeting At Maine West

The Des Plaines Boys Baseball Association will hold a meeting at 8:00 tonight in the Maine West High School faculty cafeteria.

All mothers and fathers of boys aged 14 to 18 years who are interested in summer baseball are urged to attend.

The meeting will include election of officers, organization of committees and discussion of fund raising projects.

A large turnout is imperative if this program is to remain operative.

Exhibition Set For Maine West

Hungarian National Gymnasts To Visit

One of four Stateside exhibitions between prominent American gymnasts and the Hungarian National Team will be held on Feb. 16 and 17 at Maine West.

The Hungarian men and women are also scheduled to appear at Indiana State, Penn State and Temple universities during their swing through this country.

Maine West has been a target for prominent gymnastics exhibitions of late. The United States Olympic Trials were held there last June.

Warrior head coach Sid Drain will act as official sponsor for the Hungarians. He also helped coordinate the Olympic Trials.

Drain has announced a U. S. mens team that will include Herald area great Gary Morava, now an All-American at Southern Illinois University.

Morava, Illinois all-around state champion while at Hersey, will be joined by a congregation of former Olympians and All-Americans.'

Former Iowa State All-American Dave Butzman will conclude Morava as Southern Illinois' entry. Butzman now does graduate work and handles assistant coaching duties for Bill Meade at the Carbondale based university.

Brent Simmons, another Iowa State grad, will compete in the meet which begins at 7:30 p.m. on both mid-February weekend evenings.

Two years ago, Simmons won the Nissen Award, symbolic of the nation's finest collegiate gymnast.

Other American men will include Olympian Jim Iveck of New Mexico, Illinois-Circle freshman Charles Wanner (formerly of Steinmetz high school) and Olympic qualifier Ted Marti who competed for Michigan.

The men will be coached by two-time Olympian Bill Roetzheim, present head coach at Illinois-Circle.

Prominent American female gymnasts Cathy Rigby and Kim Chase unfortunately will not compete in this two-day meet.

Miss Rigby retired from competitive gymnastics after getting married in January. Kim Chase could not receive permission to leave her high school in West Palm Beach, Fla.

But three U. S. women Olympians will compete — Joanne Moore of Philadelphia, Penn., Roxanne Pierce of Maryland and Nancy Thies of downstate Champaign.

They'll be joined by Debbie Hill of Denver, Colo., and two Kentuckians — Connie Israel and Donna Payton.

Fourteen-year-olds Miss Payton is highly regarded as America's next great female gymnast, according to Maine West's Drain.

The women will be coached by Ruth Ann McBride who handles Miss Pierce.

The Feb. 16 and 17 meet has been broken up with three mens and two womens sessions per evening.

During the Friday evening session, men will compete in free exercise, side horse and still rings with women on vaulting and uneven parallel bars.

Women complete their competition with floor exercise and balance beam. Men will vault and also work parallel and high bars.

Maine East Tankers Topple Meadows, 58-37

Maine East broke open a donnybrook swim meet that had one tie, a lead change and another near tie before the Blue Demons could post a 58-37 non-conference victory over Rolling Meadows last Saturday afternoon.

It was all over for the Mustangs when East's Ken Meyer and Jerry Kosberg went one-two in the 100 breaststroke.

That provided East with a 51-37 lead and victory as only one event remained.

Winning gave Maine its fourth triumph against five defeats. Rolling Meadows carries a 4-3 record into Saturday's 4:30 p.m. home meet with Forest View.

Meadows squeaked to a 7-0 lead after one event against Maine. And it was truly a squeak!

Mustangs Romulo Iturralde, Ken Stahnke, Paul Volkommer and Gary Grunwald completed the 200 medley relay in 1:52.87, exactly one-tenth faster than East. Blue Demon coach Ron Davitt entered Wayne Westman, Greg Erickson, Bob Miner and John Klein.

Swimming in their own pool, Maine East battled back for the meet's only tie, 8-8, when Meyer and Scott Strauss finished one-two in 200 freestyle. Rolling Meadows got the third place point from Jeff Gillen.

Throughout the next four events, Maine registered a 22-14 advantage for a 30-22 lead.

After the 8-8 tie, Maine's Westman and Erickson finished one-three in 200 individual medley. Stahnke managed second for the Mustangs who trailed 14-11.

Grunwald's first place in 50 freestyle for Meadows helped close the gap to an 18-16 deficit as Maine's Brad Kroll and Miner finished two-three.

It was no contest in diving, Maine's Tom McKervey and Glen Sedjo totaling 238.15 and 216.40 respectively. Third went to Meadows' Jim Donehey, 157.0.

The McKervey-Sedjo sweep effected the meet's largest margin to that point, a 26-17 spread for Maine East.

Rolling Meadows went up five points and East four in the 100 butterfly with Vollkommer (1:03.6) first for the Mustangs as East's Strauss (1:04.2) and Miner (1:05.3) trailed.

The Mustangs' strongest comeback attempt followed when Grunwald and John Schmitt swam one-two in the 100 freestyle. East's Kroll finished third.

That shrank Blue Demons' lead to 31-30. But it started soaring away for good when Matt Kane bettered Meadows' Gillen by nine seconds for first in 400 freestyle.

Maine's John Warner was third, giving the Blue Demons six team points and a 37-33 lead.

Westman and Erickson pulled another one-three finish for East, this time in 100 backstroke as Iturralde was second for Meadows.

It was 43-36, Maine leading, when the 100 breaststroke began. Meadows needed a good showing that never materialized as Meyer and Kosberg provided the Blue Demons eight team points.

Maine-Northfield Signup Scheduled For Jan. 20-21

First two days of registration for Maine-Northfield Little League's 1973 season will be this Saturday, Jan. 20 and Sunday, Jan. 21 at Flick Park, north of Glenview Rd., between Pfingsten and Longmeadow, Glenview. Sign-up hours are 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday and noon until 3 p.m. on Sunday.

All boys who will be eight years old before Aug. 1 through 15 years old by July 31 and who live within the MNLL boundaries are eligible to register provided a parent or guardian accompanies them. The MNLL region includes the unincorporated area from Dempster St. to Euclid-Lake Rd., Shermer Rd. to Route 83 and also includes part of Mount Prospect proper. The boys come from parts of Des Plaines, Niles, Morton Grove, Glenview, Northbrook, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect. Boys who have played in the league before must register as well as newcomers, and all registrants must bring birth certificates with them.

All former MNLL players ages 16 through 18 who are interested in playing Big League ball also should register at this time.

Of special interest to 13 year old boys and their parents is the "Senior PREP" division instituted last year. This division was formed to provide equal competition for those boys who by their size or experience are judged not to be quite ready for full Senior League competition this year, or who do not wish to make the full change to Senior ball.

Registration notices were distributed through the schools and additional information will be provided at registration.

Try-out dates and game schedules will be distributed when available. For those unable to register this week end, a final registration will be held at the same hours on Jan. 27 and 28 at Flick.

Men from the MNLL communities who are interested in managing in one of the divisions may call Howard Bersh at 296-6218 for an appointment to meet with the manager screening committee. Those interested in sponsoring teams may contact Bill McCarty at 299-1286.

The Maine-Northfield regular season opens May 6.

GOOD NEIGHBOR... GOOD NEWS

Due to a drop in the number of claims in parts of Illinois, car insurance rates for most of my policyholders have been reduced.

Of course, they'll continue to enjoy the same high-quality protection and dependable service that have made State Farm the world's number one car insurer. Now, it just costs them less.

If you're not now one of my State Farm neighbors, why not call or visit me and compare. I may have some good news for you, too.

Baseball Meeting At Maine West

The Des Plaines Boys Baseball Association will hold a meeting at 8:00 tonight in the Maine West High School faculty cafeteria.

All mothers and fathers of boys aged 14 to 18 years who are interested in summer baseball are urged to attend.

The meeting will include election of officers, organization of committees and discussion of fund raising projects.

A large turnout is imperative if this program is to remain operative.

Exhibition Set For Maine West

Hungarian National Gymnasts To Visit

One of four Stateside exhibitions between prominent American gymnasts and the Hungarian National Team will be held on Feb. 16 and 17 at Maine West.

The Hungarian men and women are also scheduled to appear at Indiana State, Penn State and Temple universities during their swing through this country.

Maine West has been a target for prominent gymnastics exhibitions of late. The United States Olympic Trials were held there last June.

Warrior head coach Sid Drain will act as official sponsor for the Hungarians. He also helped coordinate the Olympic Trials.

Drain has announced a U. S. mens team that will include Herald area great Gary Morava, now an All-American at Southern Illinois University.

Morava, Illinois all-around state champion while at Hersey, will be joined by a congregation of former Olympians and All-Americans.

Former Iowa State All-American Dave Butzman will conclude Morava as Southern Illinois' entry. Butzman now does graduate work and handles assistant coaching duties for Bill Meade at the Carbondale based university.

Brent Simmons, another Iowa State grad, will compete in the meet which begins at 7:30 p.m. on both mid-February weekend evenings.

Two years ago, Simmons won the Nissen Award, symbolic of the nation's finest collegiate gymnast.

Other American men will include Olympian Jim Iveck of New Mexico, Illinois-Circle freshman Charles Wanner (formerly of Steinmetz high school) and Olympic qualifier Ted Marti who competed for Michigan.

The men will be coached by two-time Olympian Bill Roetzheim, present head coach at Illinois-Circle.

Prominent American female gymnasts Cathy Rigby and Kim Chase unfortunately will not compete in this two-day meet.

But three U. S. women Olympians will compete — Joanne Moore of Philadelphia, Penn., Roxanne Pierce of Maryland and Nancy Thies of downstate Champaign.

They'll be joined by Debbie Hill of Denver, Colo., and two Kentuckians — Connie Israel and Donna Payton.

Fourteen-year-olds Miss Payton is highly regarded as America's next great female gymnast, according to Maine West's Drain.

The women will be coached by Ruth Ann McBride who handles Miss Pierce.

The Feb. 16 and 17 meet has been broken up with three mens and two womens sessions per evening.

During the Friday evening session, men will compete in free exercise, side horse and still rings with women on vaulting and uneven parallel bars.

Women complete their competition with floor exercise and balance beam. Men will vault and also work parallel and high bars.

Maine East Tankers Topple Meadows, 58-37

Maine East broke open a donnybrook swim meet that had one tie, a lead change and another near tie before the Blue Demons could post a 58-37 non-conference victory over Rolling Meadows last Saturday afternoon.

It was all over for the Mustangs when East's Ken Meyer and Jerry Kosberg went one-two in the 100 breaststroke.

That provided East with a 51-37 lead and victory as only one event remained.

Winning gave Maine its fourth triumph against five defeats. Rolling Meadows carries a 4-3 record into Saturday's 4:30 p.m. home meet with Forest View.

Meadows squeaked to a 7-0 lead after one event against Maine. And it was truly a squeak!

Mustangs Romulo Iturralde, Ken Stahnke, Paul Volkommer and Gary Grunwald completed the 200 medley relay in 1:52.87, exactly one-tenth faster than East. Blue Demon coach Ron Davitt entered Wayne Westman, Greg Erickson, Bob Miner and John Klein.

Swimming in their own pool, Maine East battled back for the meet's only tie, 8-8, when Meyer and Scott Strauss finished one-two in 200 freestyle. Rolling Meadows got the third place point from Jeff Gillen.

Throughout the next four events, Maine registered a 22-14 advantage for a 30-22 lead.

After the 8-8 tie, Maine's Westman and Erickson finished one-three in 200 individual medley. Stahnke managed second for the Mustangs who trailed 14-11.

Grunwald's first place in 50 freestyle for Meadows helped close the gap to an 18-16 deficit as Maine's Brad Kroll and Miner finished two-three.

It was no contest in diving, Maine's Tom McKervey and Glen Sedjo totaling 238.15 and 216.40 respectively. Third went to Meadows' Jim Donehey, 157.0.

The McKervey-Sedjo sweep effected the meet's largest margin to that point, a 26-17 spread for Maine East.

Rolling Meadows went up five points and East four in the 100 butterfly with Vollkommer (1:03.6) first for the Mustangs as East's Strauss (1:04.2) and Miner (1:05.3) trailed.

The Mustangs' strongest comeback attempt followed when Grunwald and John Schmitt swam one-two in the 100 freestyle. East's Kroll finished third.

That shrank Blue Demons' lead to 31-30. But it started soaring away for good when Matt Kane bettered Meadows' Gillen by nine seconds for first in 400 freestyle.

Maine's John Warner was third, giving the Blue Demons six team points and a 37-33 lead.

Westman and Erickson pulled another one-three finish for East, this time in 100 backstroke as Iturralde was second for Meadows.

It was 43-36, Maine leading, when the 100 breaststroke began. Meadows needed a good showing that never materialized as Meyer and Kosberg provided the Blue Demons eight team points.

The meet closed with Maine's 400 freestyle relay win swum by Carl Andersen, Klein, Kroll and Strauss.

Maine-Northfield Signup Scheduled For Jan. 20-21

First two days of registration for Maine-Northfield Little League's 1973 season will be this Saturday, Jan. 20 and Sunday, Jan. 21 at Flick Park, north of Glenview Rd., between Pfingsten and Longmeadow, Glenview. Sign-up hours are 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday and noon until 3 p.m. on Sunday.

All boys who will be eight years old before Aug. 1 through 15 years old by July 31 and who live within the MNLL boundaries are eligible to register provided a parent or guardian accompanies them. The MNLL region includes the unincorporated area from Dempster St. to Euclid-Lake Rd., Shermer Rd. to Route 83 and also includes part of Mount Prospect proper. The boys come from parts of Des Plaines, Niles, Morton Grove, Glenview, Northbrook, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect. Boys who have played in the league before must register as well as newcomers, and all registrants must bring birth certificates with them.

All former MNLL players ages 16 through 18 who are interested in playing Big League ball also should register at this time.

Of special interest to 13 year old boys and their parents is the "Senior PREP" division instituted last year. This division was formed to provide equal competition for those boys who by their size or experience are judged not to be quite ready for full Senior League competition this year, or who do not wish to make the full change to Senior ball.

Registration notices were distributed through the schools and additional information will be provided at registration.

Try-out dates and game schedules will be distributed when available. For those unable to register this week end, a final registration will be held at the same hours on Jan. 27 and 28 at Flick.

Men from the MNLL communities who are interested in managing in one of the divisions may call Howard Bersh at 296-6218 for an appointment to meet with the manager screening committee. Those interested in sponsoring teams may contact Bill McCarty at 299-1286.

The Maine-Northfield regular season opens May 6.

GOOD NEIGHBOR... GOOD NEWS

Due to a drop in the number of claims in parts of Illinois, car insurance rates for most of my policyholders have been reduced.

Of course, they'll continue to enjoy the same high-quality protection and dependable service that have made State Farm the world's number one car insurer. Now, it just costs them less.

If you're not now one of my State Farm neighbors, why not call or visit me and compare. I may have some good news for you, too.

U.S. Suffers 'Demi-Inflation'

by DICK WEST

Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Phase III of President Nixon's multi-stage program to control inflation has now begun, and not a minute too soon.

But some economists doubt it will work very well either.

They point out that Phase III and its predecessors were structured to cope with full inflation, whereas what we actually are confronted with is demi-inflation — meaning that only half the economy is inflated, depending on which half you happen to be in.

If you are a worker, demi-inflation occurs when the prices you pay rise faster than the wages you earn. If you are a businessman, demi-inflation occurs when the wages you pay rise faster than the prices you charge.

IT IS CLEAR from the screams of labor leaders, and from the outcries in the business community, that America has been going through a period of what economists refer to as double demi-inflation.

Which is to say that prices have been rising faster than wages, and wages have been rising faster than prices.

Thus a program to control inflation is not the antidote. What is needed is a program to balance inflation. As long as all segments of the economy are being inflated at the same rate, inflation causes very few problems.

In fact, it may even be good for a few laughs.

The first step toward achieving balanced inflation, which we may label for identification purposes as Phase IV, is scrapping the old wage-price guidelines.

These guidelines were based on percentages, which are notoriously unbalanced. If, for example, you take $2,000 in wages and $3,000 in prices and raise them both by 6 per cent, you are not raising them by the same amount.

SORRY TO HAVE to put you through this mathematical drill, but it's the only way you're ever going to learn anything. To achieve inflationary balance, we must have a new measurement by which to compare wage and price increases. I recommend replacing percentage points with fainting spells.

On measuring the inflationary impact of food prices, a government statistician would stand at a supermarket checkout counter and count the number of customers who fainted when they saw their bill.

Then food prices would be adjusted on a prorated basis to balance the number of persons with leaky waterpipes who swooned when they heard how much union plumbers were being paid per hour.

Phase IV would continue until we achieved inflationary equilibrium. Or until all the consumers passed out. Whichever came first.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Recently within one week of each other my two sons, aged 18 and 20, came down with what the doctor said was epididymitis, starting with swelling of the throat glands and after a week of treatment, both were pronounced well but within a few hours of going off antibiotics, they began to swell in the testicles — as large as an eggplant — with a fever of 104+.

After a week of this high temperature and pain, they were told to rest for another week. One is okay, but the 18-year-old is still sore and does not feel like working.

Would you tell me something of this and what the prognosis is. The doctor just said that it was an infection. I am concerned about the 18-year-old going to college, and I feel he should postpone his schooling if necessary.

Dear Reader — Epididymitis refers to inflammation of the cordlike structure along the body of the testis. It can be inflamed, along with the body of the testicle, which is more correctly called epididymitis and orchitis. With such large swelling as you describe I would suspect that might be the case.

In young men, a common infection that is associated with swelling in the throat or neck glands followed by inflammation of the testicles with marked swelling is mumps. I can't tell from your description whether the neck swelling was mumps.

Glands that swell in the neck from mumps do so because of inflammation from the mumps virus. The same inflammatory process can cause swelling of the testicles. These individuals are pretty sick, just as you described your sons.

Often there isn't a great deal one can do except provide symptomatic treatment for the discomfort until the disease has run its course. There is no way to predict whether there will be any residual damage or not until after the illness is over, and a complete examination is done.

Once the acute episode has subsided, each individual has to judge for himself how he feels and what he is able to do. If there is still considerable soreness and discomfort, perhaps it would be well to postpone any significant physical activity until the symptoms have abated.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Last night I read the letter to you from a reader who tried to do sit-up exercises with her feet up on the couch. She found it impossible to do. This morning I tried it, and I did ten sit-ups exercises. Later in the day I did eight more. I had no trouble at all. I am a woman 67 years young.

Dear Reader — Congratulations! That means you have relatively good abdominal muscles and have probably taken good care of yourself.

You are way ahead of the reader who couldn't do situp exercises with his feet on the couch or the chair. This type of sit-up exercise is particularly good to increase the amount of work the abdominal muscles have to do.

If you do sit-up exercises with the legs stretched out flat on the floor, much of the work will be done by the muscles which bend the hips rather than the abdominal muscles.

If one cannot do exercises with the knees bent and the feet up on the couch to prevent this occurring, a second choice is to do sit-up exercises with the knees bent and up in the air and the feet flat on the floor.

Doctors Are Key Factor In Cost Of Medical Care

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several representatives of physicians' organizations acknowledged that the doctor is the key factor in the cost of health care.

The House's Health benefits subcommittee held a one-day hearing on the role of the physician in reforming the nation's health delivery system.

"Doctors control the medical schools, nurses, hospitals and certainly their relationship with the patient," Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., the chairman, said in an opening statement. "Indeed, doctors have direct control over about 80 per cent of the health dollar."

Testifying were Drs. Joseph L. Dorsey, Harvard Community Health Plan; Philip Hampton, Tampa, Fla., chairman of legislation for the American Medical Association (AMA); Robert Jaggard, Oelwein, Iowa, president of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeon; and Bernard Challenor, chairman of the Physician's Forum and assistant dean at Columbia University, New York.

WALDIE ASKED each one if the doctor was the primary factor in determining not only what the health care would be, but how much it would cost.

With the exception of Jaggard, who represents a conservative group that believes the individual is primarily responsible for his own health care, the witnesses agreed.

Hampton said the AMA has developed a national health insurance program called Medi-credit utilizing a system of tax credits.

Challenor proposed a far-reaching plan in which fee-for-service practices would be discouraged in favor of non-profit, salaried, prepaid, group practice medicine.

Since January 28, 1913, the sign outside our door has meant security, safety, convenience—an assurance of a bright, progressive future for our customers. Today, as we approach our 61st year, our residential and commercial customers look to us, the First bank in town, for a lot more than the routine services of conventional banks.

They know First National is big enough to finance civic projects or to provide a commercial loan up to $750,000, while devoting just as much attention to an auto loan or a free checking account. In addition, First National is a great place to borrow money for a new home or to improve the old one. Plan a complete vacation or business trip without a service charge. Buy or sell securities. Set up a living trust. Buy license plates in one stop.

Make a midnight deposit. Enjoy a 62 hour, 6 day week drive-up banking convenience. Or, bank by mail, postage free. And businessmen may utilize our computer for payroll processing, take advantage of lock box services and establish trusts for profit-sharing, pensions and retirement.

Behind our sign stands 60 years of experience, a full staff of highly trained banking specialists and over 40 different services. No wonder we've been the First since 1913.

Since January 28, 1913, the sign outside our door has meant security, safety, convenience—an assurance of a bright, progressive future for our customers. Today, as we approach our 61st year, our residential and commercial customers look to us, the First bank in town, for a lot more than the routine services of conventional banks.

They know First National is big enough to finance civic projects or to provide a commercial loan up to $750,000, while devoting just as much attention to an auto loan or a free checking account. In addition, First National is a great place to borrow money for a new home or to improve the old one. Plan a complete vacation or business trip without a service charge. Buy or sell securities. Set up a living trust. Buy license plates in one stop. Make a midnight deposit. Enjoy a 62 hour, 6 day week drive-up banking convenience. Or, bank by mail, postage free. And businessmen may utilize our computer for payroll processing, take advantage of lock box services and establish trusts for profit-sharing, pensions and retirement.

Behind our sign stands 60 years of experience, a full staff of highly trained banking specialists and over 40 different services. No wonder we've been the First since 1913.

'Silver Dollar Sale' No Real Bargain

by MORT REED

From the "Numismatic Watchdog," Virgil Hancock of Bellaire, Tex., comes word that a California firm is using the notoriety created by the "Great Silver Dollar Sale" conducted by the General Services Administration as a means of unloading a hoard of silver dollars on the unsuspecting public.

Under the heading, "The Great Nineteenth Century Dollar Sale," the ad offers "Uncirculated U.S. Silver Dollars of the 1882-1883 and 1884 vintage, Packaged in Clear Lucite Diamond!" for only $19.95 each.

The coins are represented as being from the very same series " . . . you've heard about on national television and in major newspapers througout the nation, the very same series the United States Government is offering at $30 EACH AND UP on a bid basis . . ."

The advertisement goes on to promise that "undeniably . . . Uncirculated silver dollars in these series are expected to increase in value way beyond the existing market price; and as such these particular coins probably are the soundest money investment to be made."

HOWEVER, NOWHERE in the ad does the firm establish whether the coins advertised are specimens of the Carson City Mint. The coins offered are merely identified as being " . . . in the same series . . ." as those sold by the General Services Administration, and this is the gimmick.

Silver dollars were issued from all four mints in the years 1882, 1883 and 1884, and except for those struck at Philadelphia, all carry a mint letter identifying their point of origin. "O" for New Orleans, "S" for San Francisco, and "CC" for Carson City, Nev.

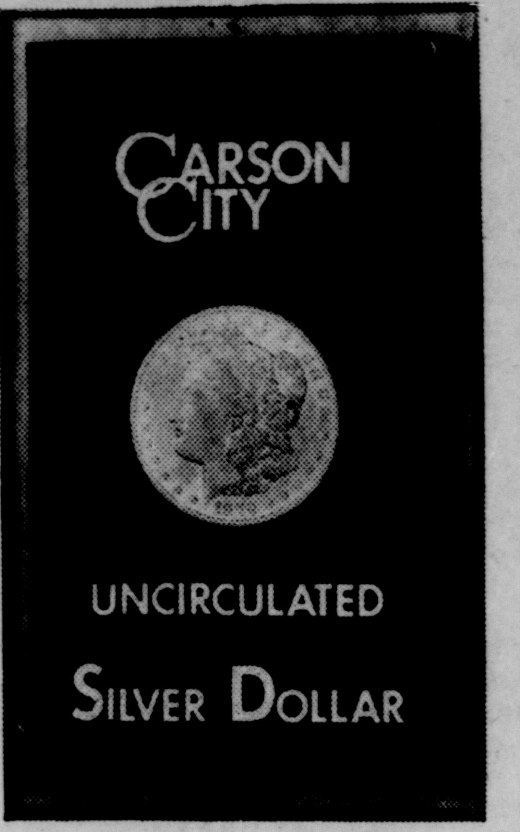
U.S. Trends, a weekly coin value feature of Coin World, lists the value of silver dollars in 1882, 1883 and 1884 series (all mints other than Carson City) as follows: 1882 $4.75; 1882-O $4.50; 1882-S $4.75; 1883 $4.75; 1883-O $4.50; 1883-S $80; 1884 $4.75; 1884-S $170; and 1884-O $4.50. None in excess of $5.00 with the exception of 1883-S and 1884-S. (The value of the "CC" coins is currently a matter of debate, but the government's minimum $30 figure is not unreasonable.)

YET THE FIRM responsible for the advertisement offering coins in " . . . the same series . . ." as the Carson City issues currently available through the General Services Administration would have the prospective buyer believe he is receiving a bargain at $19.95 per coin, when he is actually paying close to four times the top market value.

According to an article in Coin World, the sales conditions are closely related to those established by the GSA. "Each buyer may order only one coin in each of the three categories. Orders may not be withdrawn."

It continues: "Coins classified as 'Uncirculated' have not previously been put into circulation. No other express or implied warranties are made. Coins may have scratches, nicks, bag marks; therefore, all coins are sold on an 'as is' basis. All sales are final and no refunds or exchanges shall be made."

TO PUT IT simply, a Carson City silver dollar bought through the General Services Administration must bear the mint mark "CC" and be contained in a holder (see illustration). Any silver dollars other than the 1883-S and 1884-S, of the same year date as the Carson City coins, priced above $5.00 for conditions less than proof should be avoided.



Virgil Hancock is chairman of the American Numismatic Association Authentication Committee, and a member of the ANA Complaints Committee, and after reading the advertisement in the Houston Texas Chronicle, he brought it to the attention of authorities.

Win At Bridge

Here is a hand that would have been easy to bid three-no-trump back in the thirties. North would respond two hearts (a one-round force) and rebid to three clubs after South went to two no-trump. South would continue to three no-trump and the hand would play there.

It is just as easy to reach three no-trump by the use of the Jacoby transfer. North's two diamonds is the transfer to hearts and his three-club bid shows the two-suit nature of his hand.

South has nearly all his strength in spades and diamonds and goes to three no-trump. North has told his story and passes.

You may also land at three no-trump with modern methods that do not include the transfer bid. North either jumps to three hearts and passes when South bids three no-trump or North responds with a Stayman two clubs; bids three hearts after the two-spade rebid and passes at three no-trump.

As we say, you might get there. When this hand was played in a regional pair game the transfer players did play and make three no-trump. It wasn't difficult. There are nine easy tricks.

The others landed at four hearts or five clubs and were all at least one trick short of their contract.

A REPORT TO OUR SAVERS:

As 1973 begins, we are grateful that our progress has been due in great measure to our customers' efforts along the line of thrift and home ownership.

The year 1972 saw the savings and loan business achieve its largest growth both on the savings and the mortgage side of the operations. We are proud to report that this growth pattern was also reflected here at Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Assets of your local association have grown over the 17 million mark, we are happy to report. Loyalty of our savers has been unswerving and will continue our friendly and personal service as an institution large enough to help and small enough to know its customers.

In our opinion 1973 should be another year of growth for the community we serve. Our local housing and real estate markets should remain active. Savings flows should continue strong and assure an amply supply of mortgage money to finance home and apartment purchases.

The Canada Post Office will release its first 1973 stamp to commemorate the 359th anniversary of the birth of Francois de Montmorency-Laval, one of the builders of New France and a prominent figure in Canada's history.

The 8-cent adhesive will make its debut on Jan. 31 with a total production of 24 million being printed in three color lithography by Ashton-Potter Ltd., of Toronto.

Designed by Michael Fog and Gerry Lorange of Montreal, the entire issue will be Ottawa Tagged. Marginal inscriptions bearing the designers' names appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps.

Born April 30, 1623 in Montigny-sur-Avre in the Chartres district of France, deLaval was educated by the Jesuits at LaFleche and ordained a priest in 1647. He became the first bishop of Quebec in 1674.

During his 30 years as bishop, Msgr. deLaval founded an average of one parish a year. He died in Quebec City May 6, 1708, after spending 50 years of his life in New France.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the 8-cent deLaval stamp should send their stamped, self-addressed envelopes to First Day Cover Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., K1A OB5. Be sure to enclose the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed and a 5-cent service charge for each cover (in Canadian funds). If the value of the postage to be affixed is more than 16 cents, the service charge is waived.

Mint stamps also are available through the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., K1A OB5.

THE U.S. Postal Service will accept requests for first-day cancellations for both the Eugene O'Neill and the "Someone Special" stamps until Jan. 31. This is due to the short notice before release of these two issues.

Requests for the $1 O'Neill coil should be addressed in care of Postmaster, Hempstead, N.Y., 11551. The stamp was released Jan. 12.

THE SMITHSONIAN Institution's National Air and Space Museum is offering collectors a special postmark used with a recent Smithsonian cachet that celebrated "100 years, Haenlein to Apollo."

The date of the cachet was Dec. 13, the 100th anniversary of the flight of the Haenlein airship, the first aircraft propelled by the internal combustion engine. It was a balloon driven by two propellers.

The National Museum of History and Technology is also offering collectors a special postmark that was used for the opening of the Hall of Stamps and Mails on November 17. The cancellation features a replica of the Headsville Post Office.

Collectors desiring these special cancellations should send stamped, self-addressed envelopes to:

"Air Museum, c/o Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013" or to "Headsville, Hall Opening, c/o Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013" not later than Feb. 28.

Cancellations will bear the date of mailing. Envelopes submitted for either of the cancels should be addressed in the lower right-hand corner since both postmarks have pictorial devices. Requests must be sent separately since servicing will be handled by the respective museum.

Do-It-Yourself

Taking care of last year's summer furniture is an excellent winter-spring chore. Worked on an evening or so at a time in a warm basement or heated garage, the items will be ready to use by warm weather time.

Most of last summer's furniture needs cleaning and some of it will need repairing as well. Check it over and then tackle one piece at a time.

Dust it all and see which pieces are really soiled. Scrub the dirty pieces with detergent and water. Wood and plastic pieces can be cleaned with a mild solution. Use a stiff brush.

Aluminum pieces get dingy, and at worst, pitted. Fine steel wool will brighten them. There are special aluminum cleaners in paste form that simplify cleaning.

EXAMINE EVERY piece of furniture carefully for loose joints. Tighten these before putting the items away. Screws and nuts and bolts can be tightened without much trouble. If you find some with stripped threads or badly covered with rust, replace them.

Nuts and bolts that are badly rusted will work loose after treatment with penetrating oil. Replace with plated nuts and bolts.

Joints should work easily. Those that don't need lubrication. Use a light machine oil but clean the joints first before applying.

In time, fabric parts will wear out or tear. There are plastic replacement parts available in kit form. You can buy entire seats or backs or webbing.

Sheet metal screws are used to attach webbing to metal frames; tacks or staples on wooden frames. When using screws, pick some with large heads or use washers so that they will not pull through.

WASHING MAY not cause dingy fabrics on upholstered furniture to look any brighter but wash anyway. Once clean, they can be redone with special coatings available in spray cans.

If you have to repaint wood or metal furniture, remember the usual rules about advance preparation hold. Clean everything first. Sand any flaking or blistered paint from wood.

Sand rusty spots on metal right down to the bare metal, prime and then paint. Do not use house paint. Use a good grade of outdoor enamel and apply in two coats.

Redwood, supposedly, needs no finish but get some of the special redwood sealers and apply them anyway. The furniture will look better and will be stain resistant as well.

Parts of wooden furniture that touch the ground need extra protection. Give these spots extra coats of sealer or wood preservative. Joints that gather and hold moisture need extra protection.

Aluminum furniture is pretty weatherproof but it does get dingy in time and pitted after long use. After you have cleaned and polished it, apply a couple of coats of wax. Auto wax is a good choice.

by BERNADINE M. RECHNER

The Canada Post Office will release its first 1973 stamp to commemorate the 359th anniversary of the birth of Francois de Montmorency-Laval, one of the builders of New France and a prominent figure in Canada's history.

The 8-cent adhesive will make its debut on Jan. 31 with a total production of 24 million being printed in three color lithography by Ashton-Potter Ltd., of Toronto.

Designed by Michael Fog and Gerry Lorange of Montreal, the entire issue will be Ottawa Tagged. Marginal inscriptions bearing the designers' names appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps.

Born April 30, 1623 in Montigny-sur-Avre in the Chartres district of France, deLaval was educated by the Jesuits at LaFleche and ordained a priest in 1647. He became the first bishop of Quebec in 1674.

During his 30 years as bishop, Msgr. deLaval founded an average of one parish a year. He died in Quebec City May 6, 1708, after spending 50 years of his life in New France.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the 8-cent deLaval stamp should send their stamped, self-addressed envelopes to First Day Cover Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., K1A OB5. Be sure to enclose the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed and a 5-cent service charge for each cover (in Canadian funds). If the value of the postage to be affixed is more than 16 cents, the service charge is waived.

Mint stamps also are available through the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., K1A OB5.

Arlington Heights

TAX PROFILES:

	MEDIAN HOME VALUE	AVG. TAX RATE/$100
Arlington Heights	$35,500	$7.728
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	31,416	7.755
Chicago	21,200	7.861

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Arlington Heights is a large, primarily residential suburb located along the northwest "finger of communities" paralleling the C&NW Railroad. In 1972 the town's population is approximately 70,000, which is a 155.3% increase since 1960. Originally called Dunton after its founder, the village changed its name to Arlington Heights because of its altitude, 704 ft. above sea level (106 ft. higher than Chicago). A good highway system is readily available but the C&NW remains the primary method of commuter travel, and nearly 6,000 Loop commuters use these facilities daily.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The actual history of Arlington Heights began with the arrival of Asa Dunton and his family from New York in 1836. Dunton took a homestead here for himself and each of his two sons, then left the area. His son, William, returned to lay out the town along the Illinois and Wisconsin Railroad tracks.

In the next two decades the town flourished. A hotel was built; a sewing machine factory and foundry begun. The village suffered during the depression but revived during the post World War II prosperity and since that time has experienced a fantastic growth, both in size and population. While performing all the necessary services to keep pace with this rapid growth, the village has developed comprehensive long-range plans for improving the downtown area and is attempting to attract industry into other areas of the village to balance the community and stabilize the tax base.

MEDIAN INCOME:

Arlington Heights	$16,590
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	14,140
Chicago	9,883

SCHOOLS:

In Arlington Heights proper 15 elementary public schools (including 4 junior highs) and 5 high schools. Arlington Heights now has grown into two neighboring school districts which provide comparable educational facilities. Pupil-teacher ratio is 22.1 with $780 spent annually per pupil.

Parochial: Catholic, 2 elementary, 1 girls' school, 1 boys' high school, 1 junior high school. Lutheran: 1 elementary.

All Arlington Heights residents pay taxes to three school districts: an elementary school district, High School District 214 and Harper Junior College District 512. All school districts are governed alike in that a seven-member school board, elected by the public on staggered three-year terms, is charged with full power to provide a sufficient number of schools and to operate those schools and levy taxes to support them. Each school board selects the district superintendent (or President, in the case of the junior college), the administrative head of the district, whose duties include employment and supervision of all personnel, public relations and all phases of educational programs and policies.

VILLAGE GOVERNMENT:

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Arlington Heights is a large, primarily residential suburb located along the northwest "finger of communities" paralleling the C&NW Railroad. In 1972 the town's population is approximately 70,000, which is a 155.3% increase since 1960. Originally called Dunton after its founder, the village changed its name to Arlington Heights because of its altitude, 704 ft. above sea level (106 ft. higher than Chicago). A good highway system is readily available but the C&NW remains the primary method of commuter travel, and nearly 6,000 Loop commuters use these facilities daily.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The actual history of Arlington Heights began with the arrival of Asa Dunton and his family from New York in 1836. Dunton took a homestead here for himself and each of his two sons, then left the area. His son, William, returned to lay out the town along the Illinois and Wisconsin Railroad tracks.

In the next two decades the town flourished. A hotel was built; a sewing machine factory and foundry begun. The village suffered during the depression but revived during the post World War II prosperity and since that time has experienced a fantastic growth, both in size and population. While performing all the necessary services to keep pace with this rapid growth, the village has developed comprehensive long-range plans for improving the downtown area and is attempting to attract industry into other areas of the village to balance the community and stabilize the tax base.

MEDIAN INCOME:

Arlington Heights	$16,590
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	14,140
Chicago	9,883

SCHOOLS:

In Arlington Heights proper 15 elementary public schools (including 4 junior highs) and 5 high schools. Arlington Heights now has grown into two neighboring school districts which provide comparable educational facilities. Pupil-teacher ratio is 22.1 with $780 spent annually per pupil.

Parochial: Catholic, 2 elementary, 1 girls' school, 1 boys' high school, 1 junior high school. Lutheran: 1 elementary.

All Arlington Heights residents pay taxes to three school districts: an elementary school district, High School District 214 and Harper Junior College District 512. All school districts are governed alike in that a seven-member school board, elected by the public on staggered three-year terms, is charged with full power to provide a sufficient number of schools and to operate those schools and levy taxes to support them. Each school board selects the district superintendent (or President, in the case of the junior college), the administrative head of the district, whose duties include employment and supervision of all personnel, public relations and all phases of educational programs and policies.

Will Local Builders Be Threatened?

What happens to the local builder when manufacturers begin (as industry experts say they eventually must) to supply neighborhood needs for homes and commercial buildings? Will he be economically threatened as small merchants were when supermarkets first hit town?

No, says Marsh Trimble, publisher of Professional Builder magazine. He sees small and medium-sized builders and developers as essential to the future of manufactured, or industrialized, building. (In industrialized building, components are produced in a factory, shipped to the site, and speedily put together like a giant erector set. This differs from the slow and increasingly costly conentional method of building "stick-by-stick" on site.)

"Even with industrailized construction," says Trimble, "local builders will continue to be entrepreneurs of the building industry. As a matter of practicality, large industrialized firms will have to establish healthy working relationships with them." The reason is that local builders will still:

Find and develop land.

Understand the building needs and consumer preferences of the neighborhood.

Know the local codes and zoning.

Know what prices and rentals the area can support.

Bring in the utilities and put in foundations.

Do the renting and selling. So, explains Trimble, while giant industrial producers can be expected to grow, they won't freeze out the small builder. "It's a matter of record that many of the largest producers of factory-built housing find their greatest market among small builders," he pointed out.

"BUILDING manufacturers can — and must — serve the builder/developer and vice-versa, because each performs valuable functions that supplement their mutual interests."

This mutuality of interests and the "undeniable significance" of industrialized building to the entire construction industry have been evidenced, Trimble says, at meetings of INBEX, the Industrialized Building Exposition and Congress.

Trimble calls INBEX a "business meeting for the industry. Industralization has seen greater progress in the last three or four years than it did in the previous three or four decades," he declares.

"One reason is the willingness of the construction industry across-the-board — big and small builders, manufacturers, architects, code officials, developers, equipment and materials producers, financiers, market researchers and realtors — to become involved in industrialized building. Being good businessmen," he says, "they recognize their stake in its future."

All-Time Sales Volume For Baird, Warner

An 87 per cent increase in November dollar volume has catapulted Baird & Warner, diversified Chicago real estate organization, to an all-time sales dollar volume of $191,896,961 with the month of December remaining to extend the record.

John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager, said November volume spurted to $22,592,555, nearly doubling the $12,034,984 reported a year ago.

That performance carried the firm's cumulative dollar volume for the year beyond the prior record of $180,039,274 for all of 1971 by more than 6 per cent.

Unit production came within an eyelash of setting another record after only 11 months. Cumulateve results for the year through Nov. 30 are 3,571 sales participations compared with the production record of 3,668 units in 1971.

For the first 11 months of 1971, Hall reported that unit sales of 3,571 are 3.6 per cent ahead of last year's 3,447 while the dollar volume of $191,896,961 for the same period is 13 per cent ahead of the volume of $169,292,184 for the same period last year.

In addition to the 87 per cent increase in dollar volume, unit production for the month of November climbed 18.6 per cent from 204 units a year ago to 241 sales for the current month.

Prefab Homes Getting Better

The dull-design prefab houses of the 1940s have as much resemblance to today's factory-built homes as the Kitty Hawk has to the 747.

Most of the manufactured models now on the market are indistinguishable from conventionally-built residences. Many can match high-priced custom-builts for beauty. In some cases, industry emphasis on esthetics has encouraged manufactured housing to adopt the latest and most sophisticated designs, while conventionally-built homes lag behind.

The reason for this, says Richard Bullock, executive vice president of the National Association of Building Manufacturers, is "a growing awareness that while technology can end numerical shortages in housing, it takes something more to correct 'emotional' deficiencies in buildings." With some unhappy recollections of the box-like, cookie-cutter prefabs of the past, manufacturers have "set out to make fine design the hallmark of today's manufactured housing."

To do this, says Bullock, manufacturers are budgeting sizable amounts of money, time and expertise for "people planning" — an industry phrase that includes imaginative styling, livable layouts, customlike detailing, high-performance materials, quality construction — "everything, in short, that turns houses into homes." The better-homes-for-better-living concept extends outdoors, he adds, with attention being paid to land design and environmental planning.

While manufactured housing has made measured, but steady, advances since its inception almost 30 years ago, Bullock says it now has entered "the inevitable age of acceptance and acceleration." Industry statistics bear him out. In 1971, factory-produced housing recorded new highs. Modular housing production almost tripled. This year, production figures are expected to rise by another 25 to 35 per cent.

Bullock calls quality and design the "twin spurs" in manufactured housing's stride toward full potential.

289 Single-Family Units Sold By Centex

Centex Homes Corporation announced recently it has sold all 289 single family homes comprising the first phase of its Winston Grove community, Elk Grove Village. The houses were sold within a six-month period.

Winston Grove sales manager Philip Cook said the biggest seller was the four-bedroom Birchwood. The raised ranch, priced at $39,990, also features two bathrooms and a two-car garage. "The Birchwood's unfinished lower level proved appealing to many homebuyers inasmuch as it reduced the price by $2,000," Cook stated.

Second most popular home was the three-bedroom Aspen, a split-level selling for $35,990. It contains 1½ baths, finished family room and a garage. All of the houses include carpeting.

Cook said that Winston Grove's five model homes will continue to be opened to the public from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

V.A. Loan, Realtors Help Vets Buy Homes

by John Touhy

A competent realtor can make it easy for a veteran to purchase a home through the Veterans Administration financing. Much of our office's business comes through veterans. Gladstone, Realtors, which also has offices in Franklin Park, Villa Park, Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village, teaches Veterans Administration and FHA financing in the Gladstone, Realtors school.

I recently purchased a home myself under the VA. I know the value of the Veterans Administration benefits and the home loan guarantees division. Many veterans come to us looking for a rental for their family and we show them the way to become a home owner.

Often veterans fail to realize that they can acquire a VA loan with no money down up to purchase price of $50,000, while an FHA loan down payment is regulated on a sliding scale depending on the purchase price of the home. Another benefit to the buyer under the VA program is the low closing cost of one per cent, regulated by law, whereas conventional closing is higher. The Veterans Administration regulations protect the purchaser and the seller in a real estate transaction.

All veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict with 90 days active service, qualify for a VA loan. Others need 181 consecutive days in service and be honorably discharged.

The Realtor can be of great help to the veteran desiring a home if they know exactly what is needed for speedy processing. The property should be realistically priced so that it is properly appraised by the VA appraiser. The Realtor should know in advance the information to be procured under VA regulations so that there is no delay in the transaction, and he should work with a lending institution which will consider processing under the Veterans Administration regulations. If all this knowledge is gathered beforehand, the paper work can proceed smoothly in the same time as regular financing.

One of the first things sales personnel of Gladstone, Realtors does with a prospective customer is to sit down and discuss his income, what sort of outstanding debts he has, what his prospective income is, and if his wife is working. With this background, the buyer can then be placed into the proper home price bracket.

One such fortunate veteran who came to us now owns a home of his own. The man had been orphaned as a small child and no longer knew his proper name. When processing his credit, it was found that several problems existed because his credit ratings were under his real name and the name he thought was his.

Through the perseverance of our sales staff and investigation and help from the credit bureau, his record was cleared. Gladstone, Realtors was able to get him VA financing with very, very low down payment. His family, which had been separated because of lack of housing, are now reunited in a home of their own.

The coordinating ability and knowledge of a competent and qualified Realtor was used in a second case to purchase a home for a young Viet Nam veteran and his wife and young child.

Hours of behind the scenes work by the entire staff of Gladstone, Realtors to get this veteran VA financing made the purchase possible.

The home they wished to buy was located in an unincorporated area. Therefore, arrangements had to be made to have the home inspected by the Cook County Building and Zoning Council. Because the home had a well and septic system water inspection was necessary, as well as termite inspection and checking of heating, plumbing and electrical systems. All of this was done for the prospective purchaser because Gladstone, Realtors had knowledge of the requirements for VA financing.

Today the happy couple is living in the two bedroom home, enjoying the fireplace and half acre site thanks to the efforts of the willing real estate staff. Meanwhile, the sellers were relocated in a home in Cincinnati, found for them through the transferree services provided by Gladstone, Realtors.

Six Models Open In Tahoe Village

Tahoe Village, now ready for inspection on Buffalo Grove Road in Wheeling, will feature six models of townhouses and townhomes, according to an announcement by Ben Pekin Corporation, builder/developer of Northbrook.

The 80-acre site, including a 14-acre man-made lake, is now being developed as Tahoe Village with four styles of townhouses, and two different townhome styles.

"We are developing Tahoe Village as a 782-unit complex of townhouses and town homes," a Pekin spokesman reported. "The variety of models will present a choice of housing to accommodate the life style of large as well as small families with living areas from 1,065 square feet to 1,500 square feet plus full basement in the townhouses. Prices ranging from $23,500 to $36,900," he reported.

TAHOE VILLAGE'S townhomes have models with two and three bedrooms and one and one-half baths. The Townhouses are available in three or four-bedroom models with as many as two and one-half baths.

Among the features in all the models will be central air conditioning; spacious living rooms; decorator designed kitchens equipped with refrigerator, range, dishwasher and waste disposal; central foyer hall with guest powder room; wall-to-wall carpeting and large walk-in closets with folding doors. The exterior will be fully landscaped with sod, shrubs and trees.

Tahoe Village is designed by Milton Schwartz and Burton L. Samuels, architects and planners, of Chicago.

All Tahoe homeowners will automatically become members of the Homeowner's Association, providing a voice in shaping the future of the community. Home-ownership also includes membership in the Swim and Tennis club with its wide range of social and recreational facilities.

THE SWIM AND Tennis Club will include an olympic-style pool, sundeck, wading pool, tot lot, championship tennis courts, shower facilities and separate rooms for games and parties.

Residency in Tahoe Village also will bring all the comforts of home ownership including tax deductibles and the opportunity to build equity and the freedom from the inconveniences of maintenance," according to Ben Pekin, president of the building/development organization.

He characterized the town of Wheeling as "an established community with winding streetsn fine schools at all levels, police and fire protection, churches of all denominations and nearby golf courses and forest preserves." In proximity to Randhurst and North Point Shopping Plazas, Wheeling also is accessible to the Tri-State Tollway and Edens Expressway via Dundee Road. Models are open from 10 A.M. to dusk daily and full information is available at 541-6060.

Equal Opportunity Favored By Real Estate Association

Policies for increasing the supply of mortgage money for residential property, supporting equal opportunity in the housing market, making property taxation more equitable and improving the effectiveness of housing programs for low-income families recently were adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The recommendations are included in a policy statement issued by the association following its annual convention in Honolulu.

"Our national housing goals can be accomplished only in an economic environment that fosters an ample supply of mortgage money at interest rates which bring the cost of home ownership within the financial reach of potential home buyers," the report says. To achieve this, the association asks the closest scrutiny of federal expenditures, toward attainment of a balanced budget; flexibility in interest rates on federally insured mortgages, or negotiated discounts between buyer and seller; greater availability of 95 per cent mortgage loans; and discontinuance of the practice of lenders demanding an equity interest in property as a condition of the loan.

THE STATEMENT asks local boards of realtors to adopt the association's code for equal opportunity, pledging members to offer equal services to all clients or prospective clients, without discrimination of any kind, and to actively discourage panic selling. Anti-sign ordinances adopted in some communities do not further a free and open housing market, the statement contends, and are not in the public interest.

The current theory that new housing must be provided those who require subsidies is inequitable and discriminatory, NAREB believes. In place of such programs the statement urges broadening of the program which authorizes local housing authorities to lease homes for occupancy by low-income families, and expanded testing to direct housing allowances. In addition the rent supplement program would be expanded to provide new construction in areas where needed, and the existing housing subsidy programs identified as Sections 235 and 236 would be scrapped.

"We are grateful that our early initiatives in promoting a system of federal revenue sharing have yielded results," the report says. It urges the expansion of the program in a way that will provide mandatory tax relief to property owners. The statement notes the disproportion between real estate taxes and the expenditure of such tax funds for purposes related to real estate and asks for limits on the total property tax, and the corollary development of other revenue sources.

THE REPORT also is critical of the practice of issuing state and local revenue bonds as a way around limits on borrowing power and of the creation of additional tax-exempt areas, thus reducing the total tax base. An upgrading of assessment procedures and greater use of qualified assessors is also called for.

Other recommendations contained in the statement include:

- Termination of residential rent controls, to allow the current rate of home building and the vacancy factor to hold rent increases to a minimum.
- Exemption of mortgage transactions from the requirement that detailed schedules of all credit terms be presented.
- Establishment of the Federal Housing Administration as a separate agency, independent of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, to assure the FHA's continuation as an underwriter of sound mortgages.
- Continued involvement on the part of realtors in environmental decision-making, and acceptance of a leadership role among environmentally-concerned people.

400 Attend Area Realtor Meeting

Four hundred people attended the January meeting of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors on Thursday, Jan. 11, at the Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

Four actives, 100 associates and one affiliate member were installed.

The guest speaker was James Munton, manager, Dale Carnegie Sales Course. His talk, "Listen and Live in Luxury" was created to help salespeople to do a better job in building confidence in themselves, handling objections, and closing sales easier.

Munton has had 33 years of experience in selling, sales management and sales training — from Fuller brushes to heavy industry. He has personally field trained more than 1,000 people and made over 45,000 sales presentations.

Munton gives about 100 talks per year throughout the country, in addition to running shirt sleeve selling seminars.

Good Heating Lets TV Viewing Be Comfortable

No wonder they call it the "boob tube." Next to sleeping Americans spend more time watching television than anything else they do. According to the latest statistics, an average of six hours and 45 minutes each day during the winter months is devoted to television in each household.

Moreover, more and more money is spent for gadgets which can turn sets on and off and change channels by remote control. Many homes have more than one set, and the second set is usually put in the bedroom where it is controlled from the bedside.

Yet, does it make sense to spend all that money for television in homes where the people are continually leaving their chairs to adjust the thermostats to be comfortable?

In homes with hydronic (modern hot water) heating, baseboard heating panels are installed at ankle height on the perimeter of the house and blanket the walls with gentle warmth. There is only a minimum difference in temperature between the floor and ceiling, and starting with the Today show and ending with the late-late show, the house is always comfortable.

THE 14-BY-16-FOOT master bedroom on the first floor of the Model 50 home at Dartmouth Village in Wheaton and Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows is spacious enough for a breakfast area with a private garden view. The room actually serves as a private suite and features walk-in wall-to-wall closet.

Circulator Can Update Hot Water System

Many old gravity hot water and steam systems can be updated for quicker response by installing a circulator, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Controlled by the room thermostat, the circulator pumps the water, forcing it through the system to provide heating comfort where it is needed.

A Trend To More Deluxe Bedrooms

The desire today for more deluxe bedrooms is becoming a trend which promises to see more sumptuous bedrooms and bedroom suites incorporated into the planning and design of an increasing number of luxury homes for mature buyers in the opinion of a Chicago-area developer.

"Preference for a bedroom or suite that is virtually a self-contained apartment, with ample space for many built-in comfort features, is especially apparent among those adults whose children have grown and left the nest," says Albert Riley, builder.

"Facing reduced responsibilities as parents, these mature couples now are free to seek housing that is more suitable to their changing lifestyles, and big, luxurious bedrooms appear to be one of the features most in demand."

RILEY has pioneered planned adult communities in the Chicago area since 1965, and his research and experience have enabled him to determine the preferences of his customers. In some of his homes, to meet the demand, he is incorporating into the designs two spacious, deluxe master bedrooms. Others of his homes have two master bedrooms and a third, smaller bedroom.

Typical of Riley's adult communities is the 116-home Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows. The sizable bedroom concept is well illustrated in the two-story, three-bedroom Lexington model (Model 50), priced at $58,900, and featuring two full baths, formal living-dining room, two-car garage, walled-in private terrace, and enclosed private patio.

One master bedroom, on the ground floor, measures 14 by 16 feet, and features walk-in wall-to-wall closets. The bath with two entrances, conveniently serves as a guest powder room.

The second master bedroom, 14 by 20 feet, is on the upper floor and includes bathroom and dressing area, large walk-in closets, and an 8 by 12-foot area reserved for storage. The third bedroom, also upstairs, is 12 by 12 feet and is designed to be easily converted into an office, study, library, music or game room, den or guest bedroom.

"BECAUSE OF the spaciousness of the master bedrooms," Riley observes, "they lend themselves to almost every conceivable arrangement, allowing a couple the indulgence of modern comforts and conveniences."

One benefit, he notes, is that there is plenty of room for a king-size bed, which measures 76 inches wide by 80 inches, or a queen-size bed, 60 inches wide by 80 inches.

"With the more than adequate space of the master bedrooms in the Lexington home, the bigger and better bedding allows the adult couples the luxurious escape from the smaller standard double or full-size bed," Riley said. "And the bigger bedding, in addition to providing more comfort, adds to the overall richness of the room's decor."

Aside from the personal touches of decor, the more comfortable bedding, the extra-large built-in wardrobes, dressing room, and beautifully appointed attached bathroom, the master bedrooms of the Lexington home offer the space for many modern innovations, Riley asserts.

"If the buyer wants to install these conveniences, they indeed can convert the room into a self-contained suite or apartment."

What are some of the innovations?

Built-in kitchenettes, especially designed for bedrooms, come equipped with miniature sink, stove, under-counter refrigerator, and shelves for dishes. Riley observes: "The conveniences are perfect for snacks or breakfasts and are a boon in the event of illness."

OTHER BUILT-IN features available on today's market include television and hi-fi systems with automatic controls; closed circuit television to monitor other rooms in the house and the entrances; and a control panel, which can be placed conveniently close to the bed to operate everything electrical.

"The master bedrooms in the Lexington home contain the spaciousness for virtually any addition of luxury that may be desired," Riley states.

THE LEXINGTON model, which is one of five home designs available in Fairfax Village, does not confine its luxury or the potential for added luxury to the bedrooms alone, he stresses.

In addition to a 22 by 25-foot formal living room and dining room, the home provides a 14 by 18-foot second living room, described as an informal activities center.

A spacious 10 by 14-foot all-electric kitchen is equipped with self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, and disposer, and includes rich wood cabinets, an inlaid vinyl floor, and a fully luminous ceiling.

ENTRANCE to the home is through a 440-square foot landscaped, private terrace, which leads to a quarry tiled entrance foyer adjoining the main living room and to insulated sliding glass doors which lead to the second living room.

Four additional home models, two-story and ranch-style, ranging from $42,900 to $58,900, also are offered at Fairfax Village, and all five models also are available at Albert Riley's Dartmouth Village in Wheaton. The counterpart to the Lexington model in Dartmouth Village is the Squire.

Models of the homes are open for display seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows is on west Frontage Road west of Rt. 53 one-half mile south of Kirchoff Road. Dartmouth Village is located in Wheaton on Westhaven Drive, one-and-one-half miles west of Naperville Road and two blocks south of Roosevelt Road (Alt. 30).

THE 14-BY-16-FOOT master bedroom on the first floor of the Model 50 home at Dartmouth Village in Wheaton and Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows is spacious enough for a breakfast area with a private garden view. The room actually serves as a private suite and features walk-in wall-to-wall closet.

Circulator Can Update Hot Water System

Many old gravity hot water and steam systems can be updated for quicker response by installing a circulator, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Controlled by the room thermostat, the circulator pumps the water, forcing it through the system to provide heating comfort where it is needed.

A Trend To More Deluxe Bedrooms

The desire today for more deluxe bedrooms is becoming a trend which promises to see more sumptuous bedrooms and bedroom suites incorporated into the planning and design of an increasing number of luxury homes for mature buyers in the opinion of a Chicago-area developer.

"Preference for a bedroom or suite that is virtually a self-contained apartment, with ample space for many built-in comfort features, is especially apparent among those adults whose children have grown and left the nest," says Albert Riley, builder.

"Facing reduced responsibilities as parents, these mature couples now are free to seek housing that is more suitable to their changing lifestyles, and big, luxurious bedrooms appear to be one of the features most in demand."

RILEY has pioneered planned adult communities in the Chicago area since 1965, and his research and experience have enabled him to determine the preferences of his customers. In some of his homes, to meet the demand, he is incorporating into the designs two spacious, deluxe master bedrooms. Others of his homes have two master bedrooms and a third, smaller bedroom.

Typical of Riley's adult communities is the 116-home Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows. The sizable bedroom concept is well illustrated in the two-story, three-bedroom Lexington model (Model 50), priced at $58,900, and featuring two full baths, formal living-dining room, two-car garage, walled-in private terrace, and enclosed private patio.

One master bedroom, on the ground floor, measures 14 by 16 feet, and features walk-in wall-to-wall closets. The bath with two entrances, conveniently serves as a guest powder room.

The second master bedroom, 14 by 20 feet, is on the upper floor and includes bathroom and dressing area, large walk-in closets, and an 8 by 12-foot area reserved for storage. The third bedroom, also upstairs, is 12 by 12 feet and is designed to be easily converted into an office, study, library, music or game room, den or guest bedroom.

"BECAUSE OF the spaciousness of the master bedrooms," Riley observes, "they lend themselves to almost every conceivable arrangement, allowing a couple the indulgence of modern comforts and conveniences."

One benefit, he notes, is that there is plenty of room for a king-size bed, which measures 76 inches wide by 80 inches, or a queen-size bed, 60 inches wide by 80 inches.

"With the more than adequate space of the master bedrooms in the Lexington home, the bigger and better bedding allows the adult couples the luxurious escape from the smaller standard double or full-size bed," Riley said. "And the bigger bedding, in addition to providing more comfort, adds to the overall richness of the room's decor."

Aside from the personal touches of decor, the more comfortable bedding, the extra-large built-in wardrobes, dressing room, and beautifully appointed attached bathroom, the master bedrooms of the Lexington home offer the space for many modern innovations, Riley asserts.

"If the buyer wants to install these conveniences, they indeed can convert the room into a self-contained suite or apartment."

What are some of the innovations?

Built-in kitchenettes, especially designed for bedrooms, come equipped with miniature sink, stove, under-counter refrigerator, and shelves for dishes. Riley observes: "The conveniences are perfect for snacks or breakfasts and are a boon in the event of illness."

OTHER BUILT-IN features available on today's market include television and hi-fi systems with automatic controls; closed circuit television to monitor other rooms in the house and the entrances; and a control panel, which can be placed conveniently close to the bed to operate everything electrical.

"The master bedrooms in the Lexington home contain the spaciousness for virtually any addition of luxury that may be desired," Riley states.

THE LEXINGTON model, which is one of five home designs available in Fairfax Village, does not confine its luxury or the potential for added luxury to the bedrooms alone, he stresses.

In addition to a 22 by 25-foot formal living room and dining room, the home provides a 14 by 18-foot second living room, described as an informal activities center.

A spacious 10 by 14-foot all-electric kitchen is equipped with self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, and disposer, and includes rich wood cabinets, an inlaid vinyl floor, and a fully luminous ceiling.

ENTRANCE to the home is through a 440-square foot landscaped, private terrace, which leads to a quarry tiled entrance foyer adjoining the main living room and to insulated sliding glass doors which lead to the second living room.

Four additional home models, two-story and ranch-style, ranging from $42,900 to $58,900, also are offered at Fairfax Village, and all five models also are available at Albert Riley's Dartmouth Village in Wheaton. The counterpart to the Lexington model in Dartmouth Village is the Squire.

Models of the homes are open for display seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows is on west Frontage Road west of Rt. 53 one-half mile south of Kirchoff Road. Dartmouth Village is located in Wheaton on Westhaven Drive, one-and-one-half miles west of Naperville Road and two blocks south of Roosevelt Road (Alt. 30).

Second Mortgage Can Be Useful

Most families consider a mortgage only as a handy credit instrument that makes it possible to purchase a home when they only have a fraction of the price available in cash.

"But most lenders are willing to extend additional credit on the home for good purposes like paying for a college education or home remodeling or to liquidate major medical expenses," said John Domeier, chairman and president of Oak Park Federal Savings & Loan Association.

"In a number of cases, this is the best way to secure funds in comparison to a short-term loan at high interest rates," continued Domeier.

"But we discourage refinancing a home to pay for a vacation or to purchase an auto or an appliance that lasts only a few years."

In the latter case, you are securing long-term credit for an intermediate life purchase.

"We jut don't think it economically sound to commit yourself to go on paying for something years after it has outlived its usefulness."

There are two ways in which mortgage credit can be used as an installment device to increase family financial resources.

Most familiar is to re-finance the home. This actually involves securing a new mortgage loan on your home.

FOR EXAMPLE, if you originally borrowed $25,000 to buy your home and you have already repaid $10,000 of the principal, by refinancing your home back to its original face value you would be borrowing $10,000 for other expenses.

Domeier noted that all mortgages issued by Oak Park Federal on single-family residences stipulate that the borrower has the privilege of securing an additional loan to the original face amount of the loan. Many other lenders extend the same privilege.

"However, it is not automatic," said Domeier. "Good lending practices still apply. Some of the things we review are the record of payment; the current value of the property; and, of course, to ascertain that the loan application is made by the original borrower of the current mortgage."

Domeier pointed out that because a home is refinanced at current interest rates there are times when it may not be advisable to re-finance.

"This is particularly true if the interest rate on your original loan is substantially less than the new rate you will be paying when you re-finance.

"Assume that the interest rate on the existing mortgage for which you have an unpaid balance is five per cent, which is true if you obtained your mortgage in the mid-1960s. If you refinance to $25,000 at a current rate of about 7.25 per cent for another full-term mortgage, the cost of the $10,000 you are actually borrowing could be prohibitive in the long run."

AN ALTERNATIVE, which is available at the discretion of the lender, is known as an "additional advance."

This type of loan has several advantages to the borrower, who ordinarily would be considered for it on the basis of such factors as a large equity in the home, prepayment on the loan, and a good payment record.

For one, there is no need for a full title search — which is required for re-financing. An additional advance loan requires only a short title search for which there is a small charge.

Generally, the extra service charges for processing the additional advance loan are lower than the service fees to re-finance a mortgage — although neither comes close to the closing costs usually required to service the original mortgage application.

Second, the additional advance loan can be processed faster than a refinancing application.

FINALLY, AND most significantly, the interest charges may be lower than those applied to re-financing a home. Current market rates are always applied to refinancing; a somewhat lower rate at a point between the original mortgage rate and current rates may on occasion be available for an additional advance.

"In the final analysis, it is somewhat hazardous to make generalities because of the variables in each situation. We simply want people to be aware of their home mortgage as a potential credit instrument. It's best to sit down with your mortgage lender to discuss your own particulars," advised Domeier.

Bulky Heating Unit A Thing Of The Past

The next major confrontation may take place when a liberated woman meets a hard-hatted heating contractor, and unless the contractor is up on the latest techniques of home heating, bet on him to lose.

Large bulky radiators and oversized heating plants are 'out' in the plans of today's space minded home decorators. More and more, homemakers are turning to modern hydronic (hot water) heating for quality comfort and decorating freedom.

One of the first casualties in this battle is the free-standing radiator. When they are replaced by low, wall-hugging baseboard heating panels, rooms seem much larger. Furniture can be placed against the walls, even touching the baseboard panels without blocking the heat. Draperies can hang even to floor length and won't scorch because the baseboard never gets too hot to the touch.

Also, the panels can be painted to blend or contrast with the color of the wall. With regard to comfort, tests at the University of Illinois show that perimeter hydronic baseboard heating emits uniform warmth with a minimum temperature difference between floor and ceiling.

Another area where a confrontation may be avoided is in the basement. Replacing the old-fashioned large fuel-eating boiler is the easiest way to convert a cellar into a finished basement. Today's boilers are trim and are designed to be part of the living area. Although they are small, they are more efficient and will save up to 25 per cent in fuel consumption. Moreover, they can be placed anywhere — inaa closet, in a corner, and sometimes even hung ona wall.

By saving all this space, the basement can be arranged into a pleasant work or play area.

Best of all, the battle of the century may turn out to be the waltz of the flowers.

Snow On Your Roof?

If there is snow on your roof several days after the storm, it is a sign that your home is well-constructed. It shows there is ample insulation keeping the heat inside. Otherwise the snow would melt. ulso, by keeping the heat out in the summer, the house will be cooler.

Draperies can hang even to floor length and won't scorch because the baseboard never gets too hot to the touch.

Also, the panels can be painted to blend or contrast with the color of the wall. With regard to comfort, tests at the University of Illinois show that perimeter hydronic baseboard heating emits uniform warmth with a minimum temperature difference between floor and ceiling.

Another area where a confrontation may be avoided is in the basement. Replacing the old-fashioned large fuel-eating boiler is the easiest way to convert a cellar into a finished basement. Today's boilers are trim and are designed to be part of the living area. Although they are small, they are more efficient and will save up to 25 per cent in fuel consumption. Moreover, they can be placed anywhere — inaa closet, in a corner, and sometimes even hung ona wall.

By saving all this space, the basement can be arranged into a pleasant work or play area.

Best of all, the battle of the century may turn out to be the waltz of the flowers.

Snow On Your Roof?

If there is snow on your roof several days after the storm, it is a sign that your home is well-constructed. It shows there is ample insulation keeping the heat inside. Otherwise the snow would melt. ulso, by keeping the heat out in the summer, the house will be cooler.

United Van Lines Expands Phone Information Service

United Van Lines Inc., has expanded its Telephone Information Service to allow customers to call United's World Headquarters here toll-free for information about a specific household goods move, P. B. Goelz, vice president and general manager, said.

The toll-free telephone service, employing in-bound Wide Area Telephone (WATS) lines and dubbed "Hotline," is the first established by a major, worldwide moving company to permit its customers to inquire about the movement of their belongings.

Under the direction of United's Moving Consultant, Bette Malone, the service was created on a limited basis last fall. At that time, persons were invited to call toll-free for information about an impending move, for various consumer brochures and literature about moving or for details about the city, state or foreign country to which the caller was moving.

Under the expanded program, which was effective as of Jan. 15, persons may still seek moving information, but can also obtain information about the location of their shipment en route, expected delivery date or, as one United executive put it, "can let us know he was satisfied with the way we handled the move."

PERSONS CALLING the information service will be asked what facts they require. In the event they are seeking a booklet, it will be mailed within 24 hours of the request. If they need specific details about a shipment, a representative of the appropriate department within the van line will return the call within 24 hours.

Goelz said that the expanded service will serve to "close the communications gap that has existed between movers and their customers. It's definitely a plus as far as a solid consumer service is concerned," he said.

"It seems that there is no communications problem before the customer's belongings are loaded onto the van," he said. "But after the van leaves the customer's home, there is sometimes a certain anxiety on the part of the customer. The Consumer Information Service puts the customer just one telephone call away from getting the answers.

"And, if the customer doesn't think our service is up to par, we want him to let us know — at our expense — so we can make whatever corrections are necessary," he said.

Under the original service, nearly 2,500 persons called United to inquire about moving last year. For the most part, they were planning a move and wanted tips on how to make it go smoothly.

Martin President Of Wm. Kunkel & Co.

At the annual corporate meeting of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Ralph H. Martin was named president and Wm. L. Kunkel moved up to chairman of the board.

Formerly vice president and sales manager, Martin will responsible for directing all activities of the Des Plaines real estate firm, which for the second year in a row reached record high sales in 1972 with a volume of $13,234,112.

Other executive changes made at the annual meeting were: James R. Duncan was elected vice president; and Edna P. Carlson steps up to secretary from the post of assistant secretary.

Mr. Duncan will continue to function as Kunkel's director of the residential Sales Division and Marvin Kingdon as director of the Commercial-Investment Division.

Space Heating Allowances To Be Dropped

Commonwealth Edison Co., in a notice to be given to the Illinois Commerce Commission, recently said it is suspending promotional allowances for residential electric space heating installations effective Feb. 15.

The allowances have been used for several years to help promote electric space heating installations in the company's service area.

Hubert Nexon, Edison vice president, said electric space heating helps to reduce the growing difference between peak demands for electricity during the summer air conditioning season and much lower loads in the wintertime. Space heating makes possible winter use of costly generating facilities which must be installed to meet summer requirements and might otherwise stand idle during the colder months.

"But we believe electric space heating has now reached the stage where customer and builder acceptance have been established and promotional allowances are no longer required. During the past year, Edison experienced its best year of electric heating growth by adding more than 10,000 new residential spacehheating customers."

The company is now serving close to 65,000 residential electric heating customers and reports an additional 15,000 installations under construction in homes and apartments within its service area.

Tips to Home Buyers & Sellers

If you're in a hurry to sell . . . the "Multiple" system can speed things up.

Although some home sellers are in no particular hurry to sell their home, most sellers set a definite deadline for the sale of their home.

Generally speaking, the greater percentage of people who must sell their home in a hurry cannot rely on the rigors of selling the home on their own without the aid of a Real Estate Broker, especially a broker who belongs to an active, influential Multiple Listing & Sales Organization. The "Multiple" system immediately puts hundreds of professional salespeople to work to find a qualified buyer for the home. All multiple offices are quickly aware of the property and they treat the property like their own personal listing, exerting every means of sales efficiency and experience to sell the home equitable for buyer and seller.

The big difference between selling a home individually and listing with a Multiple Associated Broker is the difference between whispering and shouting, and the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service is one of the nation's most powerful and successful sales organizations.

If you're selling in a hurry . . . call a MAP Multiple Broker office . . . and relax!

REAL ESTATE SERVICE

Tips to Home Buyers & Sellers

If you're in a hurry to sell . . . the "Multiple" system can speed things up.

Although some home sellers are in no particular hurry to sell their home, most sellers set a definite deadline for the sale of their home.

Generally speaking, the greater percentage of people who must sell their home in a hurry cannot rely on the rigors of selling the home on their own without the aid of a Real Estate Broker, especially a broker who belongs to an active, influential Multiple Listing & Sales Organization. The "Multiple" system immediately puts hundreds of professional salespeople to work to find a qualified buyer for the home. All multiple offices are quickly aware of the property and they treat the property like their own personal listing, exerting every means of sales efficiency and experience to sell the home equitable for buyer and seller.

The big difference between selling a home individually and listing with a Multiple Associated Broker is the difference between whispering and shouting, and the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service is one of the nation's most powerful and successful sales organizations.

If you're selling in a hurry . . . call a MAP Multiple Broker office . . . and relax!

Hire a veteran.

Veterans have experience in dozens of fields. And hundreds of specialties . . . many of them hard to find. Trade skills. Technical skills. Professional and supervisory skills.

In fact, the Services spend some $3 billion a year on training! And there's over $1 billion more available for training through the GI Bill and the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Disabled veterans receive special vocational rehabilitation to provide them with skills.

Find out more about how your company can benefit from trained, experienced veterans. Or how you can train them—your way—in a government-supported on-the-job training program.

For help in hiring veterans, contact your local office of the State Employment Service; for on-the-job training information, see your local Veterans Administration office.

Quinlan and Tyson leads in North Shore Real Estate sales again in 1973 and now is also Northwest and Far North.

BEN PEKIN CORP., Northbrook, is the builder/developer of Baybrook Park Condominium Homes, now under construction on Palatine Road, three blocks west of Ill. Rte. 53, in Palatine. Designed for an engineered environment, trees and a man-made lake will form the picturesque setting for six "Y"-shaped, five-story, fireproof, soundcontrolled concrete-framed buildings on a 37-acre site. Scheduled for occupancy in spring, each of the one and two-bedroom 534 units will feature living room, dining room and bedroom opening directly to a king-size balcony-terrace.

Baybrook Park Condominiums Ready

Opening of models at Baybrook Park Condominium Homes in Palatine was announced recently by Ben Pekin Corp., builder/developer, of Northbrook. Baybrook Park is on Palatine Road, three blocks west of Rt. 53.

Ben Pekin, president of the firm, reported the complex will contain 534 one and two-bedroom homes with 850 to 1,300 square feet of living area, priced from $24,900 to $36,400.

"Designed with an engineered environment," Pekin said, "Baybrook Park will consist of six "Y"-shaped, five-story, fireproof, soundcontrolled concrete structures, surrounding a seven-acre manmade lake on a 37-acre site."

Located on the edge of a 30-acre public park, the complex has the advantage of the pleasant picturesque views afforded by the setting.

A king-size balcony-terrace will extend the length of each home with direct access from the living room and bedroom. The carpeted all electric kitchen with a large window will be furnished with the latest appliances, including dishwasher, disposal, refrigerator and self-cleaning oven.

A GUEST CLOSET and double security system, featuring closed circuit TV monitoring and voice-to-voice communication will be located in the central foyer of each apartment. A master TV antenna will provide picture-perfect television reception and distortion-free FM listening.

Heating and air conditioning will be individually controlled by each homeowner. A laundry room will be included on each floor. There will be a choice of outdoor on-site parking or indoor heated garages.

"Designed to put freshness, vitality and zest into the life of all residents, Baybrook Park will have an olympic-style, heated swimming pool, surrounded by a large, roomy sundeck for lounging, tanning or relaxing. Among the Clubhouse facilities will be a sauna bath, lounge areas, fireplace, separate health rooms for men and women, and a party and game room for entertaining guests.

"In the spirit of the environment, the beautiful lake will suit the mood of the residents year-round for aquatic or ice sports," Pekin commented.

HIGHLIGHTING other advantages of Baybrook Park ownership, the spokesman said it is maintenance-free, tax deductible and an investment with growth potential.

Pekin praised Palatine as "a well-established community with a broad tax base, excellent police and fire protection, good schools at all levels, churches, and in proximity to Palatine and Arlington Heights shopping centers, as well as Woodfield Mall, the world's largest enclosed shopping center."

Model homes are now ready for inspection from 10 a.m. to dusk daily and full information is available at 358-8883.

Commercial Construction Reported Making Gains

Commercial construction — from schools and shopping centers to high-rise apartments and offices — is expected to be a major beneficiary of developments in industrialized building.

In the industrialized, or manufactured method, building components or systems are produced in a factory and transported to the site for rapid erection into completed structures. By its very nature, commercial construction lends itself to industrialized techniques.

For instance:

Most commercial buildings, especially multi-story apartments and offices, consist of duplicate or similar units stacked one above the other.

Builders and designers of commercial structures are generally experienced in the advanced engineering technologies that are basic to industrialized building.

Many of the latest industrialized techniques involve materials (precast and prestressed concrete, steel, preassembled metal) already closely associated with commercial buildings.

Commercial builders have been among the hardest hit by spiraling construction costs since they depend heavily on costly materials and high-priced skilled labor. A major benefit of industrialized building is that it expects — by substantially reducing construction time — to stabilize construction costs.

When systems are specified, it's easier to use sophisticated cost control methods effectively.

The degree of cost control possible with industrialized techniques can only be estimated at present. There have been examples of cost-savings ranging as high as 25 per cent over conventional-building methods.

Opening of models at Baybrook Park Condominium Homes in Palatine was announced recently by Ben Pekin Corp., builder/developer, of Northbrook. Baybrook Park is on Palatine Road, three blocks west of Rt. 53.

Ben Pekin, president of the firm, reported the complex will contain 534 one and two-bedroom homes with 850 to 1,300 square feet of living area, priced from $24,900 to $36,400.

"Designed with an engineered environment," Pekin said, "Baybrook Park will consist of six "Y"-shaped, five-story, fireproof, soundcontrolled concrete structures, surrounding a seven-acre man-made lake on a 37-acre site."

Located on the edge of a 30-acre public park, the complex has the advantage of the pleasant picturesque views afforded by the setting.

A king-size balcony-terrace will extend the length of each home with direct access from the living room and bedroom. The carpeted all electric kitchen with a large window will be furnished with the latest appliances, including dishwasher, disposal, refrigerator and self-cleaning oven.

A GUEST CLOSET and double security system, featuring closed circuit TV monitoring and voice-to-voice communication will be located in the central foyer of each apartment. A master TV antenna will provide picture-perfect television reception and distortion-free FM listening.

Heating and air conditioning will be individually controlled by each homeowner. A laundry room will be included on each floor. There will be a choice of outdoor on-site parking or indoor heated garages.

"Designed to put freshness, vitality and zest into the life of all residents, Baybrook Park will have an olympic-style, heated swimming pool, surrounded by a large, roomy sundeck for lounging, tanning or relaxing. Among the Clubhouse facilities will be a sauna bath, lounge areas, fireplace, separate health rooms for men and women, and a party and game room for entertaining guests.

"In the spirit of the environment, the beautiful lake will suit the mood of the residents year-round for aquatic or ice sports," Pekin commented.

HIGHLIGHTING other advantages of Baybrook Park ownership, the spokesman said it is maintenance-free, tax deductible and an investment with growth potential.

Pekin praised Palatine as "a well-established community with a broad tax base, excellent police and fire protection, good schools at all levels, churches, and in proximity to Palatine and Arlington Heights shopping centers, as well as Woodfield Mall, the world's largest enclosed shopping center."

Model homes are now ready for inspection from 10 a.m. to dusk daily and full information is available at 358-8683.

Commercial Construction Reported Making Gains

Commercial construction — from schools and shopping centers to high-rise apartments and offices — is expected to be a major beneficiary of developments in industrialized building.

In the industrialized, or manufactured method, building components or systems are produced in a factory and transported to the site for rapid erection into completed structures. By its very nature, commercial construction lends itself to industrialized techniques.

For instance:

Most commercial buildings, especially multi-story apartments and offices, consist of duplicate or similar units stacked one above the other.

Builders and designers of commercial structures are generally experienced in the advanced engineering technologies that are basic to industrialized building.

Many of the latest industrialized techniques involve materials (precast and prestressed concrete, steel, preassembled metal) already closely associated with commercial buildings.

Commercial builders have been among the hardest hit by spiraling construction costs since they depend heavily on costly materials and high-priced skilled labor. A major benefit of industrialized building is that it expects — by substantially reducing construction time — to stabilize construction costs.

When systems are specified, it's easier to use sophisticated cost control methods effectively.

The degree of cost control possible with industrialized techniques can only be estimated at present. There have been examples of cost-savings ranging as high as 25 per cent over conventional-building methods.

Hanover Park Home A Real 'Bouquet Of Roses'

Wildly imaginative blends of color and light have produced an interior decor as fresh and vibrant as a bouquet of roses in the home of Phyllis and Dennis Nierman, Greenbrook Country, Hanover Park.

In recognition of their imaginative decerating, the Nierman's home recently won recognition as one of the "10 best decorated" homes in Tempo Village.

While their Larwin Spacemaker I home is designed to encourage indoor-out-door decor, the Niermans have gone one step further. They filter sunlight into the home's large living areas through sheer drapes of shocking pink and rose red on to carpeting in red and pink. The result is a distinct, warm and exciting glow in each room.

Dramatic decor greets the eye right at the entrance way of the Nierman home. One bright red carpeted stairway leads up to the formal living room; another also carpeted in red leads down to the informal family and entertaining room on the lower level. From the entrance, as the eye takes in both levels and an adjacent formal dining area, the view is unobstructed clear to the picture window that looks out on the Nierman's rear yard and beyond to the Tempo Village Park.

WOOD BEAM railings with black wrought iron rails accent the indoor-outdoor look while a stone woodburning fireplace with a rough wood beam mantel adds to the living room's warmth. Intriguing accessories, including statuettes and busts of ancient Grecian Gods and an unusual wall piece, an old violin painted gold, lend a baronial touch.

White, wrought iron chairs with bird of paradise backs impart an outdoor patio look to the adjacent formal dining area. The unique kitchen has a soft, pink chiffon look with pink sheer curtains, pink shag carpeting and a pink painted ceiling. Dark tile areas on the floor, black and red paisley wallpaper, dark wood cabinetry, a large dark wood ceiling light fixture, and a black tablecloth contrast to the dominant pink and add richness to this exquisitely feminine kitchen.

Sliing glass doors lead from the kitchen out to a double deck rear porch that affords a fine view of Tempo Park. This exterior view is framed by the kitchen's pink tie-back drapes.

A young couple in their 20s, the Niermans chose the Spacemaker I for their first home because its spaciousness allows plenty of room for entertainment and a growing family. They have no children at present, but plan for at least two, according to Mrs. Nierman. Looking ahead, they selected the basic three bedroom design with an extra room, in the lower level, used as an office by Dennis.

THEIR MASTER bedroom with hot pink walls and rose carpeting includes an added romantic touch. Torch lamps extend over the headboard. Giant roses on the bedspread match the rose design of the tie-back drapes, and a full wall mirror that includes the closet doors, doubles the impact of the room.

The child's bedroom is done in orange with carpeting, walls, and drapes combining to produce a tangerine glow. Typical of the humorous touches through-out the home is a cartoon telephone decal on wall just above a white wicker shelf. Matching this is a white wicker toy chest with orange trim.

Functioning as a spare room, the third bedroom is a complete contrast to the rest of the home. With muted olive drab walls decorated by a starkly modern crisscross design, a white shag rug, a single modernistic black chair, and a television set, the room serves as a quiet retreat. Phyllis admits that she retires there to sew or read or watch TV, "when the rest of the house gets too exciting."

For casual entertaining, the Niemans have made the bar-equipped downstairs family room a place of comfort and enjoyment. Red carpeting and rustic woodbeams on the ceiling continue the basic theme of the house. On one wall is plastic brick. Corkboard covers the outer wall, and a modern, bowl type imitation fireplace set into plastic bricks also adds warmth.

The guest bathroom downstairs also is entertaining and lively. Black and white sketches of decoratively draped Egyptian maidens are matched in the wallpaper and waste basket coverings while black carpeting, red ceiling and red sink pick up the dominant color theme of the entire home.

COMPLETE AS IT APPEARS, there still are areas that Phyllis feels need her attention. There's also the challenge of new concepts and change as their tastes and needs change. Decor, Phyllis muses, is largely emotional.

The Niermans moved into their home in September, 1971, and, Dennis reports, had most of the rooms finished within two months because Phyllis put in eight sold months of intensive planning and shopping.

Having moved from an apartment on Chicago's north side, the Nierman's find their suburban lifestyle in Greenbrook Country a pleasant contrast. The big difference, Phyllis observes, is that people here know one another and are closer than in the city where you seldom know your neighbor.

Dennis typically commutes to his job in Oak Brook with Inforex, Inc. Phyllis has a part time secretarial job, and also babysits for neighbors when she is not busy with homemaking tasks. The Niermans particularly enjoy entertaining a variety of friends and they feel that their distinctive home expresses their own warm and lively sense of hospitality.

Cragin Savings Assets Top $137 Million

Year end figures for Cragin Savings recently released by Adam Jahns, association president, show a record of more than $137 million in assets for the 64-year-old association.

This figure represents a net savings gain of $19.4 million, or approximately 20 per cent more than year-end 1971.

Lending activity also progressed at a record pace, increasing 22 per cent in the past 12-month period with over $38.5 million in new first mortgage loans placed on their books.

"This record growth . . . especially the growth which followed our merger with Itasca Savings . . . has met our expectations," said Jahns. "We have been most pleased with the response of savers to the services available through "two-office" convenience."

All savings transactions may be handled at either office as a convenience to savers.

Cragin Savings is located at 5200 W. Fullerton Ave., Chicago, and 201 N. Walnut St., Itasca.

Mini Paneling Easily Installed

Homeowners working on improvement projects find that a "mini paneling" — only one-third the size of standard four-by-eight sheets — can be installed quickly and without muss.

Marlite plank is only 16"x8', and its tongue-and-grooved edges simplify fitting. This quarter-inch thick paneling can be installed over old walls or new framing.

Wallboard adhesive and concealed metal clips ar used to secure the paneling. This prefinished hardboard paneling comes in colors, woodgrain, reproductions, and patterns. Harmonizing moldings are available, too, at local building materials dealers.

This sturdy paneling also can be used for cabinet and sliding doors. For instance, a built-in can blend in with the background wall if the same paneling is used for both.

Marlite plank does not require any finishing after installation. An occasional damp wiping is the only maintenance required. It is highly-resistant to heat, moisture and stains.

Detailed installations instructions are packed with each carton of this decorative paneling.

Buying A Home? Check It Out With Great Care

Are you looking for a new house? Do you know what to look for? Since a home is the largest single purchase most of us will make, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council has prepared a questionnaire for prospective homebuyers to check their observations about the houses they have visited.

- What is the size of the property? How many bedrooms?
- Does the kitchen face the front or the back of the house?
- What applianes are included in the price?
- What is the name of the manufacturer of the oven and the range?
- What fuel heats the house — gas, oil or electricity?
- What type of heating system-warm air, hydronics (hot water) or electric?
- How much electric service? 100 amp? Less? More?
- Does it have a fuse box or circuit breaker panel?
- Is there a full basement? An attic?
- How many bathrooms? Does the master bath have a tub?

These are minimal questions, but the council agrees that if you can answer most of them correctly, you can be rated 'observant shopper.' However, since the most important feature of the home with regard to comfort is the heating system, you are urged to check it thoroughly. In most hydronic systems, baseboard heating panels are located at ankle height on the outside walls and act as a barrier against the cold.

Lighting Display Unveiled At Furnishings Market

Dramatic display lighting techniques similar to those used in fine stores to enhance the elegance of silver, jewelry, china and glassware were built into more than a dozen traditional furniture pieces unveiled in the Union-National Showroom, Space 1224, Merchandise Mart, during the Home Furnishings Market last week.

Each of the pieces featured vastly improved or all-new lighting designed in cooperation with General Electric lighting specialists, according to John A. Nord, vice president of Union-National, Jamestown, N.Y.

"This is the first time the latest in lighting techniques has been designed into traditional furniture," Nord said, "so we were very interested in the reactions of other furniture manufacturers as well as designers and dealers.

"We're really sold on this concept," Nord continued. "It could set a new trend for furniture lighting and benefit the entire industry."

SOME OF THE PIECES incorporating the new lighting designs included breakfronts, china cabinets, apothecary chests, armoires, vitrines, poudres, buffets and even beds.

Nancie Gee, General Electric lighting specialist, explained that in some of the casegoods, lighting is designed to dramatize the form, dimension and texture of china, glassware or silver being displayed within the piece. On other pieces, lighting enhances the beauty of the woodgrain, texture or color, accentuates the traditional lines or adds to their functional use. In some cases new lighting accomplishes all of these.

"Some of the pieces acquired a new dimension in terms of interior design," Miss Gee said. "In addition to their form, texture and color, they have a new character of luminance that adds dramatic impact to a space."

Lighting techniques include the use of low-voltage spotlamps for highlighting one or two specific objects within a case. These 12-volt lamps cast a highly directional, concentrated beam of light. When this light strikes a textured surface, parts of the surface are highlighted while others are in a deep shadow, resulting in an emphasis of the texture. Glassware or silver, on the other hand, reflect the concentrated beam from a low-voltage lamp and "come alive" with sparkle and glitter.

WHERE FLUORESCENT lighting techniques are employed, deluxe warm white fluorescent lamps are used. These lamps are designed to bring out the full richness of the furniture's woodgrain or painted finishes as well as colors of objects within the furniture.

In addition to the pieces introduced with improved lighting, Union-National also showed for the first time a Far Eastern Vitrine and a Circular Vitrine.

The Far Eastern Vitrine, 86" in height, 47 inches wide and 14½ inches deep, is finished in Seville Green with gold-tone metal leaf on the base and pogoda pedi ment. The vitrine base will house a GE 30-watt deluxe warm white fluorescent lamp under frosted glass. Two GE 50-watt low-voltage spotlamps are mounted in the top.

The Circular Vitrine, 25 inches in diameter and 81 inches in height, is finished in black lacquer with gold striping and gold chinese floral decorations. Deluxe warm white GE fluorescent lamps were housed in the top and base.

Arlington Realty Hits Record Sales

Arlington Realty, Inc., posted all-time high record sales in 1972, according to Herb Carl, executive sales manager, breaking the previous high record established a year ago.

Sales last year totalled $17,906,435 representing a 20 per cent increase from the 14.9 million dollar figure chalked up for 1971. Another record high was also established in the average unit sales price which reached $42,533, one of the highest in the entire area. This compares with the $38,280 average sale in 1971. The averages include only sales of single family residences.

Carl added, "Our sales staff performed outstanding service last year and we are extremely proud of them. Our new training programs which were put into operation last year have helped us tremendously, and of course, we can't overlook the great product we have to sell — Northwest Suburban Living."

"The other factor important to Arlington Realty is that we have always had an extremely high referral rate. Our referral sales last year were 71 per cent of our total volume and we are very proud of this figure."

On Feb. 1, Arlington Realty will honor its sales associates at a special awards breakfast to be held at Arlington Park Towers. Honored guests will be all members of the Arlington Realty Million Dollar Club (including 2 life members and 1 two million dollar member), 2 GRIs (Graduates of the Realtors Institute) and special sales awards for outstanding service to the public by several sales associates.

Also to be presented at the breakfast will be bonus checks for incentive profit sharing and special recognition to all salesman-of-the-month winners.

Northbrook Company Wins Housing Award

Kennedy Brothers of Northbrook, has won first place in the 6-10 units-per-acre category in the Decade '70 National Housing Awards competition for excellence in open land planning conducted by Better Homes and Gardens magazine and the National Association of Home Builders. The Trails at Woodfield earned the award for the company. Runner-up in this category was 3H Building Corp., a U.S. Home Company, of Rolling Meadows.

Attention to recreational facilities and preservation of natural features were major points of consideration in the judging, as were local market approval and compatibility with the surrounding area.

Homes had to offer good value at the price and provide both visual and sound privacy in every unit. For example, the use of underground utilities was judged as offering a more visually pleasing, maintenance-free environment.

Winners were chosen for developments which effectively utilize open land planning, taking into consideration such points as traffic, parking and storage facilities in garages and carports.

Additionally, the units had to include good interior planning for traffic, space livability, and have good exterior styling.

Kennedy Brothers' The Trails was photographed and will be featured in the April issue of Better Homes and Gardens magazine as one of the award winners of the Better Homes and Gardens-National Association of Home Builders open land planning competition.

J. F. Meyerhoff, of Arlington Heights, vice president and controller, Brunswick Corp., Skokie, has been elected chief financial officer of the corporation by the board of directors.

J. F. Meyerhoff

Meyerhoff has been controller of Brunswick since 1965 and a corporate vice president since 1970.

Prior to joining Brunswick in 1959 as secretary-treasurer of the company's MacGregor Division in Cincinnati, he was with the public accounting firm of Arthur Andresen & Co., in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Cincinnati. He is a certified public accountant.

Meyerhoff attended Ohio Wesleyan University and Miami University of Ohio from which he was graduated. He also is a graduate of the Advanced Management Program of Harvard University.

Kabat Joins Baird, Warner

William Kabat

Kabat is a licensed real estate broker and for the past three years has been active in real estate sales in the Des Plaines area. He is a native of Chicago and has been a Northwest suburban resident for 24 years. Kabat attended Harper Junior College and is a graduate of the College of Advanced Traffic & Transportation. He completed courses sponsored by the Northwest Board of Realtors and the Illinois Real Estate School.

Prior to entering the real estate field he served for four years as transportation supervisor for A. B. Dick Co. He is a member of St. Stephens Men's Club and the Knights of Columbus and has served on the Motor Carrier Committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

Kabat and his wife, Gerri, and their two children, make their home in Des Plaines.

Baseboard Heaters

Since children are so much smaller than adults and play on the floor, the National Better Heating-Cooling-Council recommends the installation of hydronic (modern hot water) baseboard heating panels. Installed at ankle height, they radiate heat at floor level to keep the floors warm.

Advantage With Hot Water Home Heating

One of the advantages of hydronic (modern hot water) home heating is its ability to use any fuel. If the price of the fuel you are presently using gets too high, you can always switch to a more economical one, and in time the saving will pay for the change. At most, you will only have to install a new boiler. It will not be necessary to remove the heating units from each room.

Brunswick Elected Financial Officer

J. F. Meyerhoff, of Arlington Heights, vice president and controller, Brunswick Corp., Skokie, has been elected chief financial officer of the corporation by the board of directors.

J. F. Meyerhoff

Meyerhoff has been controller of Brunswick since 1965 and a corporate vice president since 1970.

Prior to joining Brunswick in 1959 as secretary-treasurer of the company's MacGregor Division in Cincinnati, he was with the public accounting firm of Arthur Andresen & Co., in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Cincinnati. He is a certified public accountant.

Meyerhoff attended Ohio Wesleyan University and Miami University of Ohio from which he was graduated. He also is a graduate of the Advanced Management Program of Harvard University.

Kabat Joins Baird, Warner

William Kabat

Kabat is a licensed real estate broker and for the past three years has been active in real estate sales in the Des Plaines area. He is a native of Chicago and has been a Northwest suburban resident for 24 years. Kabat attended Harper Junior College and is a graduate of the College of Advanced Traffic & Transportation. He completed courses sponsored by the Northwest Board of Realtors and the Illinois Real Estate School.

Prior to entering the real estate field he served for four years as transportation supervisor for A. B. Dick Co. He is a member of St. Stephens Men's Club and the Knights of Columbus and has served on the Motor Carrier Committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

Kabat and his wife, Gerri, and their two children, make their home in Des Plaines.

Baseboard Heaters

Since children are so much smaller than adults and play on the floor, the National Better Heating-Cooling-Council recommends the installation of hydronic (modern hot water) baseboard heating panels. Installed at ankle height, they radiate heat at floor level to keep the floors warm.

Advantage With Hot Water Home Heating

One of the advantages of hydronic (modern hot water) home heating is its ability to use any fuel. If the price of the fuel you are presently using gets too high, you can always switch to a more economical one, and in time the saving will pay for the change. At most, you will only have to install a new boiler. It will not be necessary to remove the heating units from each room.

Dorothy Jacobs Finishes Real Estate Course

Arlington Realty, Inc., has announced that Dorothy Jacobs, sales associate for the firm, has been awarded her GRI golden certificate, certifying her successful completion as a graduate of the Realtors Institute.

Dorothy Jacobs

A GRI designation signifies the completion of a special three year program at the Realtors Institute in Peoria. The three-stage study course is designed to increase the professional competence of members of the real estate profession. The course is a concentrated study on all phases of real estate practice and ethics.

Mrs. Jacobs is a long-time resident of Arlington Heights and has been with Arlington Realty for nine years. In 1964 she was the first saleswoman in the history of the firm. She becomes the second Arlington Realty sales associate to be awarded the GRI designation. Lillian Marshall completed her requirements for the course in 1969.

Schulze Joins Nelson Realty

Arthur H. Schulze has joined the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Co. as a sales associate. The appointment was announced by James Maloney, general sales manager and executive vice president of the Nelson organization.

Arthur Schulze

Arthur Schulze will operate from the Mount Prospect office where he will work under the management of James Warriner.

Schulze received his B.A. in economics and English from Wabash College in Crawfordsville, Ind. where he was also captain of the varsity golf team and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. His most recent position before joining the Nelson organization was vice president of sales for Thompson Designs, Inc., Addison. He was also on the board of directors.

He, his wife and his two children reside in Arlington Heights, where he has lived for the past 22 years.

Vogel Ruud Boosts Output

Vogel-Ruud, Inc., Realtors, an Arlington Heights-based company, has announced a 75.8 per cent increase in production over any previous six-month period in its history.

John A. Vogel, president of Vogel-Ruud, attributed the increased production to a doubling of the sales force.

"Our newly instituted compensation program has attracted many inquiries into the availability of sales positions," Vogel said.

"A compensation system must strike a balance between motivating and remunerating the salesperson, and providing a profit for the company. The competition among Realtorx today is getting good salespeople. We designed our compensation program with these factors in mind and the results speak for themselves."

. . . this says it all!

Yes, another home both listed and sold by Starck. Sure, some of our listings are sold by other brokers through MAP Multiple Listing Service, Inc. BUT, we sell a whole bunch of our listings and we do it FAST!

How?

In any successful business the most valuable resource is people. We are very proud of all the salesmen, managers and office personnel in our organization. We select them carefully, train them well and keep retraining so that our clients and customers get total real estate service.

In addition, our advertising and merchandising is aggressive and combines both quantity and quality. Every home we list has its own merchandising campaign put into writing. You are kept informed of all details and progress every step of the way until the property is sold.

An important part of merchandising is establishing the proper selling price for your property. Using established and accurate appraisal techniques we prepare a Value Analysis on your property. This results in a fast sale at top market price for you.

We offer three exclusive extras that greatly assist us in selling your property:

1. Inter-City Relocation Service Inc. 650 nationwide Realtors constantly are referring their transferred clients to us. In 1972 this has resulted in over $2,000,000 in additional sales.
2. Palace Guard, Inc. In this age of consumerism buyers expect to purchase things and know that they will work properly or will be fixed so that they do. Palace Guard Service is only offered through us.
3. The Starck Home Guarantee Purchase Plan and Potere PET Equity Program permits us to sell a buyer your property and "take his home in trade" anywhere in the country.

Since 1960 Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors have sold thousands of homes in the great Northwest Suburbs. We have grown to four offices with over fifty associates.

We'd love to spotlight your home with our SOLD sign!

Home Sweet Home Baking

Home baking. The very words call up happy childhood memories. Remember the expectant, so-long wait for the finished treat, hot from the oven? And "helping" to ice the fragrant cakes and breads — taste-testing as you went? Baking day seemed a special pleasure, then, designed just for children.

Happily, baking is a delight for grown-ups, too. Many's the woman — and man — who finds relaxation in working yeast dough 'til it's satin-smooth. Home bakers derive a special soul-satisfaction from the sight of plump golden-brown loaves, baked in their own ovens. And there's a lot of joy to be shared introducing a new generation to the pleasures of home baking.

Not the least of those pleasures, of course, is the enjoyment of eating the results, baked goods made with "tender, loving care" and the best of ingredients — fresh milk and eggs, and butter, matchless for melting-good flavor.

The basic sweet dough recipe here is a fine one with which to start yeast baking — or rediscover it. You can mix the dough one day, shape and bake it the next. Best of all, this recipe presents you with a delicious dilemma — which good things to turn out from among its variations.

Try Honey Twist Coffeecake, for example. Once you've made your basic sweet dough, all you have to do is divide it in half and roll each half into a long rope. Coil each into a round buttered pan and brush with butter. Then allow to stand in a warm place until double in volume. After it's baked, top with a delicious honey frosting and you have two appetizing Honey Twist Coffee cakes. One for now and one to freeze for the next round of guests.

Or how about surprising your family with homemade Pecan Rolls? Just one recipe of basic sweet dough makes three dozen golden rolls, swirled with sugar and cinnamon, and topped with a rich glaze and crunchy pecan halves. These, too, will freeze well, so the extras can go into the freezer for a lazy weekend brunch or an unexpected weekday breakfast brightener.

Like apples and cinnamon? Then wait 'til you sniff the aroma that rises from the oven when you bake Apple Kuchen. And that's just the beginning. Cut into its flaky topping and taste the buttery goodness of the same basic sweet dough combined with the spicy flavor of apples, sugar and cinnamon. Only one-half recipe of basic sweet dough is suggested for this bread because Kuchen is best when freshly made. If you want to have other baked foods on hand, prepare the whole dough recipe and make 18 Pecan Rolls or one Honey Twist for the freezer. The versatile basic sweet dough recipe gives you an opportunity to have variations on hand.

Basic Sweet Dough

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water (110 degrees)
4 cups regular all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup (1½ sticks) butter
½ cup milk, scalded and cooled
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Butter, melted

Sprinkle yeast over water to dissolve. In large mixing bowl combine flour, sugar and salt. On low speed of mixer cut butter into flour mixture until it resembles coarse meal. Combine milk, eggs and dissolved yeast. Add to dry ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Brush with melted butter; cover and chill overnight.

Honey Twist Coffeecake

1 recipe Basic Sweet Dough
Butter, melted
¼ cup (½ stick) butter
2 tablespoons honey
1 egg white
1 cup confectioners sugar

Divide dough in half. Roll each half into a long rope 1-inch in diameter. Coil into two 8-inch buttered round cake pans beginning at outer edge. Press down to level. Brush with melted butter. Allow to stand in warm place until double in volume. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 30-35 minutes. Remove from pans onto wire rack to cool. Makes 2 coffeecakes.

Meanwhile, prepare icing. In a small mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add honey. Beat in egg white and sugar. Spread on coffeecakes while still warm.

Note: Stores well in freezer.

Apple Kuchen

1 recipe Basic Sweet Dough
4 cooking apples, peeled and sliced
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup (½ stick) butter, melted

Divide dough in half; press evenly into two 8-inch buttered square pans. Press apple slices into dough, rounded edges up. Combine sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over apples. Drizzle 2 tablespoons butter over top of each. Allow to stand in warm place until double in volume. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 40-50 minutes or until apples are tender and the top well-browned. Remove from pan onto wire rack to cool. Makes 2 coffeecakes.

Pecan Rolls

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
Pecan halves
1 recipe Basic Sweet Dough
Butter, melted
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

In a small saucepan combine butter, ½ cup sugar and corn syrup; bring to boil. In three 12-cup buttered muffin pans place about 1½ teaspoons in each muffin cup; then add 2-3 pecan halves. Divide dough in half. On lightly floured surface roll each half to measure 18x12-inches. Brush with butter. Combine ½ cup sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle ¼ cup over each. Roll from longer side; cut in 1-inch slices and place, cut side up, in muffin cups. Brush with melted butter. Allow to stand in warm place until double in volume. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven 15-20 minutes. Invert immediately onto wire rack to cool. Makes 36 rolls.

She's Baked Bread For 60 Years

by LOIS SEILER

Few women can lay claim to 60 years of experience in bread baking, but Lena Mueller can do just that! At the age of 14, Lena was told by her mother it was time to learn, and at 74 she's still going strong!

"It wouldn't be Saturday if I didn't bake bread," Lena chuckled.

As a young girl on the farm near Itasca where she was born, bread was baked every other day. In 1916 the family moved to a large farm which her father, George Busse, and his brothers later developed into the east side of Mount Prospect.

When Lena married Walter Mueller in 1921, her father built the couple a home at the edge of his farm and Lena has lived there ever since! While raising her children, she watched the land become subdivided and the town build up around her. But through all the changes, one thing was constant: Lena baked the same bread recipe week after week and year after year that she learned from her mother.

Lena never measures the ingredients; she learned to bake by "feel," and usually bakes 6 to 8 loaaves at a time. However, at our request, she diligently measured the exact amount for a two-loaf quantity so that readers could attempt her tried and true method.

She always uses water in her bread, never milk, believing that it gives the bread a lighter texture.

Lena makes a basic yeast "sponge" first; after this has risen, she works in the remaining ingredients, divides the dough into bread pans and lets it rise again. There is no kneading involved.

While the bread is rising or baking, Lena busies herself making coffee cakes. Her basic recipe will make six cakes, but Lena usually divides up the dough, making a few cakes and perhaps some pan rolls or pecan rolls and pinwheels.

She bakes her coffee cakes in pie tins, with a sprinkling of cinnamon and sugar on top. Sometimes she makes apple cakes, covering the apples with a streusel topping.

After all the goodies have been baked and their aromatic fragrance still lingers in the air, Lena's two married daughters who live in the area are certain to stop by and pick up some of the baked delicacies set aside especially for them. In addition, Lena has a couple of regular customers for whom she bakes each week.

Widowed for seven years, Lena also has a son living at home, another married and living in Florida, and a married daughter in California. When she visits her out-of-town children, she takes her favorite yeast with her so she can bake for them anytime.

The organizations to which this good-natured lady belongs also utilize her culinary talents. A member of St. Paul's Lutheran Ladies Guild for 51 years, Lena helps cook for all the community banquets and other functions held at the church. In addition, she is hospitality chairman for the Mount Prospect Historical Society, furnishing the refreshments for the Society's meetings.

Even these commitments don't satisfy her active spirit. Having worked hard all her life, she likes to keep her hands busy every moment and has made patchwork quilts for each of her children, her eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and is starting on her second set.

WHITE BREAD

1 ounce household yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
5 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups lukewarm water
2/3 cup melted oleo

Dissolve yeast in one cup lukewarm water. Let set about 15 minutes. Then mix in one cup flour, cover and let rise in a warm place for one hour.

Line a bowl with two cups flour. Add risen yeast batter, salt, two cups lukewarm water and oleo; mix. Add remaining two cups flour and mix well.

Divide dough in half and put in two greased bread pans. Cover with a tea towel, put in a warm place and let rise until double, about one hour. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for one hour. Yield: 2 loaves.

COFFEE CAKES

1 ounce household yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
1 cup sugar
1 cup lukewarm milk
1 cup melted oleo
2 eggs
Pinch of salt
4½ cups flour

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Set aside.

Into a bowl, put the sugar, milk, margarine, eggs and salt. Test with finger to make sure the mixture is cool enough. Then add the dissolved yeast and mix ingredients together. Gradually add the flour and mix well. Cover and let rise in a warm place for one hour.

This recipe makes enough dough for six coffee cakes or a variety of cakes and rolls.

To make coffee cakes, roll out dough to the size of 9-inch pie tins. Place the dough into the greased tins and cut through the top of the dough lightly with a knife, making about three criss-crosses. Cover and let rise until double in bulk.

Just before baking, spread top with melted margarine and sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Or arrange sliced apples over the top and sprinkle with streusel mixture of sugar, flour, cinnamon and margarine. Bake cakes at 350 degrees for a half-hour.

To make pan rolls, roll out dough and cut with a glass. Arrange in a greased baking tin, cover and let rise until double. Bake at 350 degrees for a half hour.

To make pecan rolls, pour a little melted margarine into the bottom of a greased pie tin. Sprinkle with just enough brown sugar to cover and broken pecans, if desired. Roll out dough and roll up as you would for a jelly roll. Cut into one-inch slices and place into pan. Cover and let rise until double. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Turn pan upside-down immediately to remove rolls so that they won't stick to pan.

To make pinwheels, roll out dough. Spread with melted margarine and sprinkle with brown sugar. Roll up and cut into one-inch slices. Place in a greased tin and let rise until double. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. When cool, frost with a powdered sugar icing.

EVERY SATURDAY MORNING Mrs. Walter Mueller of Mount Prospect bakes break for her friends and family. While the bread is rising, Mrs. Mueller busies herself making coffee cakes. The cakes are baked in pie tins, with a sprinkling of cinnamon and sugar on the top.

Flaming Desserts

Desserts can be flamed without difficulty if youobserve a few simple rules:

Use either a beverage with alcoholic strength of 20 per cent or more or sugar cubes soaked with flavoring extract just before you light them. Lemon, orange, rum or brandy extracts are good choices.

Liquor liqueurs need not be warmed if the dessert itself is warm or hot. Pour the beverage over it and toucha lighted kitchenor fireplace match to the surface of the dessert immediately. Use a long-handled spoon to pour the flaiming liquid repeatedly from the serving plate over the dessert until the flames die, indicating that most of the alcohol has burned away.

If you do warm the beverage for flaming, do it in a longhandled container, a butter melter, or a tiny Turkish coffee maker areuseful over a candle or other low flame only untila lighted match held just above the surface lights the rising fumes.

For safety's sake, never try to carry a container of flaming beverage across a room and never pourdirectly from a bottle onto the food to be flamed.

She's Baked Bread For 60 Years

by LOIS SEILER

Few women can lay claim to 60 years of experience in bread baking, but Lena Mueller can do just that! At the age of 14, Lena was told by her mother it was time to learn, and at 74 she's still going strong!

"It wouldn't be Saturday if I didn't bake bread," Lena chuckled.

As a young girl on the farm near Itasca where she was born, bread was baked every other day. In 1916 the family moved to a large farm which her father, George Busse, and his brothers later developed into the east side of Mount Prospect.

When Lena married Walter Mueller in 1921, her father built the couple a home at the edge of his farm and Lena has lived there ever since! While raising her children, she watched the land become subdivided and the town build up around her. But through all the changes, one thing was constant: Lena baked the same bread recipe week after week and year after year that she learned from her mother.

Lena never measures the ingredients; she learned to bake by "feel," and usually bakes 6 to 8 loaaves at a time. However, at our request, she diligently measured the exact amount for a two-loaf quantity so that readers could attempt her tried and true method.

She always uses water in her bread, never milk, believing that it gives the bread a lighter texture.

Lena makes a basic yeast "sponge" first; after this has risen, she works in the remaining ingredients, divides the dough into bread pans and lets it rise again. There is no kneading involved.

While the bread is rising or baking, Lena busies herself making coffee cakes. Her basic recipe will make six cakes, but Lena usually divides up the dough, making a few cakes and perhaps some pan rolls or pecan rolls and pinwheels.

She bakes her coffee cakes in pie tins, with a sprinkling of cinnamon and sugar on top. Sometimes she makes apple cakes, covering the apples with a streusel topping.

After all the goodies have been baked and their aromatic fragrance still lingers in the air, Lena's two married daughters who live in the area are certain to stop by and pick up some of the baked delicacies set aside especially for them. In addition, Lena has a couple of regular customers for whom she bakes each week.

Widowed for seven years, Lena also has a son living at home, another married and living in Florida, and a married daughter in California. When she visits her out-of-town children, she takes her favorite yeast with her so she can bake for them anytime.

The organizations to which this good-natured lady belongs also utilize her culinary talents. A member of St. Paul's Lutheran Ladies Guild for 51 years, Lena helps cook for all the community banquets and other functions held at the church. In addition, she is hospitality chairman for the Mount Prospect Historical Society, furnishing the refreshments for the Society's meetings.

Even these commitments don't satisfy her active spirit. Having worked hard all her life, she likes to keep her hands busy every moment and has made patchwork quilts for each of her children, her eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and is starting on her second set.

A Country Pie Suits City Tastes

A favorite fall and winter combination of the thrifty, colorful Pennsylvania Dutch is kraut, pork and apples. Their kraut-making skills came with them when they first settled in America and to this day the robust flavor of kraut is found in their menus regularly. The crisp, tart apples are often plucked from their own orchards at the peak of ripeness.

You won't have to worry about making the kraut to go into this hearty, satisfying country pie, for kraut is as convenient as your grocer's shelves.

Ground pork, piquant kraut and crunchy apple slices are combined with carrots, celery, onions, mushrooms and sour cream in this delicious potato-topped dish. When you'd like to repeat the kraut and pork combination, why not try these moist, golden chops with rich robust kraut and a lovely gravy? Or serve baked spareribs with a carrot-kraut mixture.

KRAUT AND PORK COUNTRY PIE

1 cup grated carrot
½ cup each:
chopped celery and onion
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 pounds lean ground pork
3¼ cups drained sauerkraut
4 cups sliced pared green apples
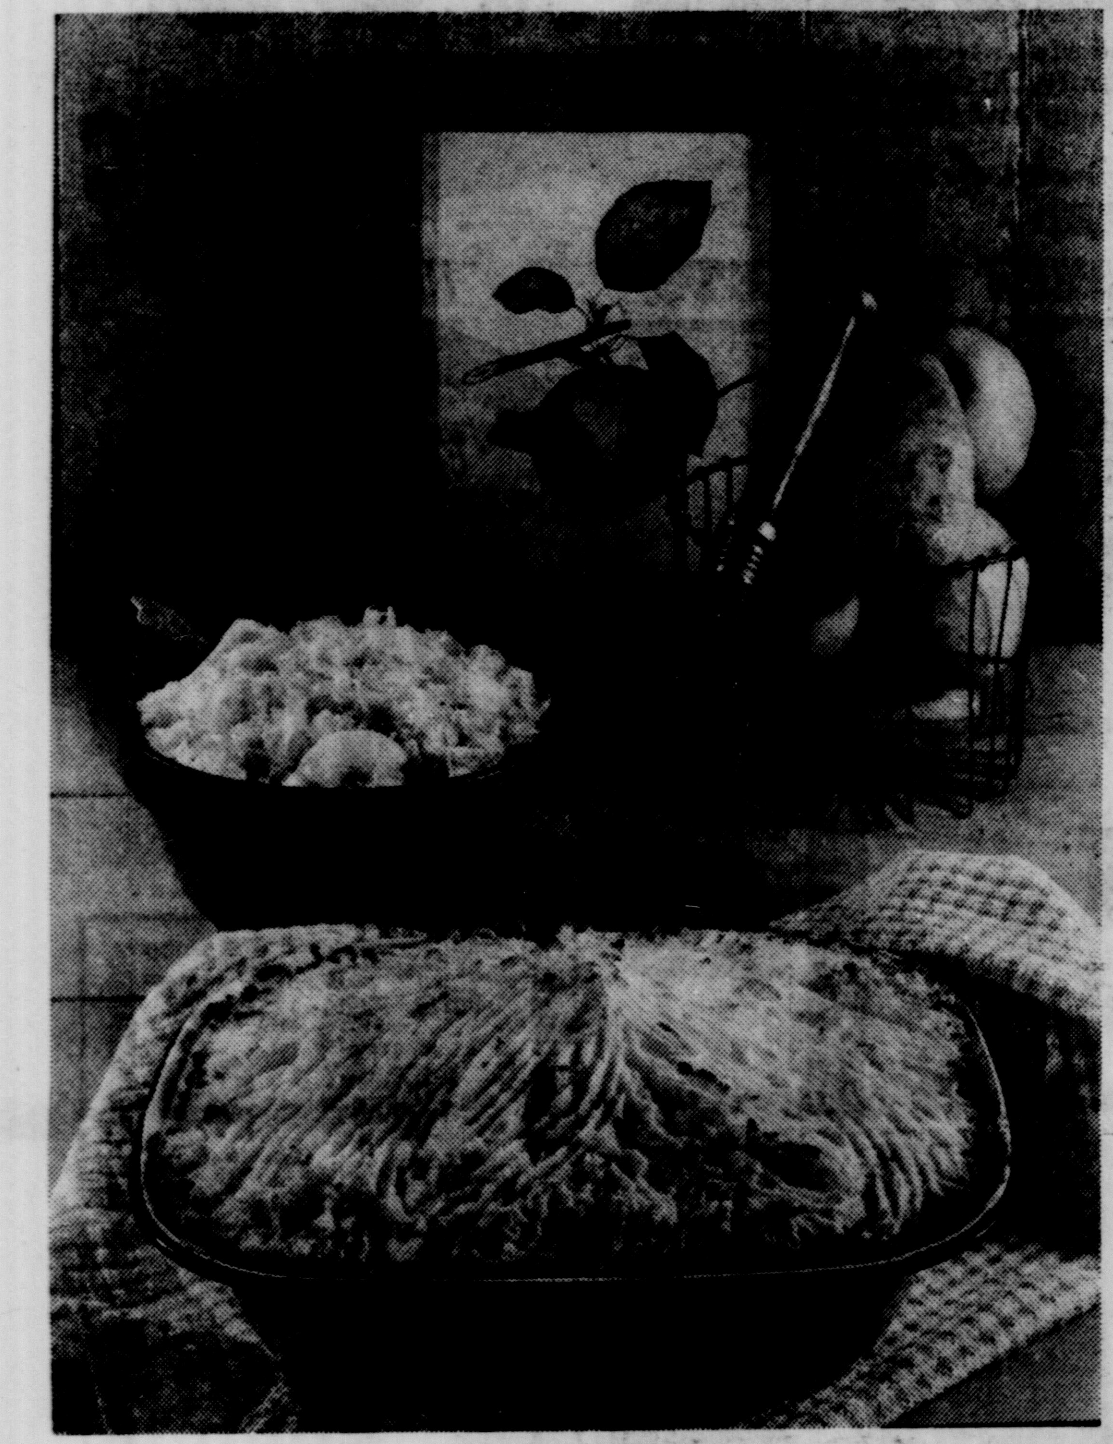
1 cup sour cream
½ cup chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon each:
cracked black pepper,
thyme leaves,
rosemary leaves
10 juniper berries
8 cups mashed potato

In large skillet, saute carrot, celery, onion and mushrooms in butter until crisp-tender. Add pork and cook until browned. Remove mixture from skillet, using slotted spoon. Combine with kraut, apple, sour cream, parsley and seasonings. Pour into shallow 4-quart baking dish. Cover with mashed potato. Bake in 350 degree oven 40 minutes. Brown top of potato quickly under broiler. Makes 8 servings.



Kraut and Pork Country Pie

BRAISED KRAUT PORK CHOPS

½ cup sliced onion
2 tablespoons salad oil
4 pork shoulder chops,
¾ to 1-inch thick
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon caraway seed
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2/3 cup apple juice
2 cups drained sauerkraut
2 cups sliced peeled slightly tart apples,
about ½ pound

In large skillet, saute onion in oil until crisp-tender; remove with slotted spoon. In same skillet brown chops well; drain off excess fat. Sprinkle chops with sugar, salt, caraway and pepper. Add apple juice, onion and kraut. Simmer covered ¾ to 1 hour or until chops are fork tender. Add apples last 15 minutes of cooking time. Makes 4 servings.

BAKED SPARERIBS WITH CARROT KRAUT

4 pounds cracked
pork spareribs
2½ cups undrained sauerkraut
1 cup grated carrots
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup golden raisins
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon light brown sugar
Dash thyme leaves
Salt and pepper

Remove excess fat from spareribs; place in a large shallow roasting pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 1½ hours. Meanwhile, combine kraut, carrot, onion, raisins, garlic, brown sugar, thyme and a dash of pepper. Remove spareribs from pan at end of 1½ hours and drain off fat. Sprinkle spareribs generously on both sides with salt and pepper and return to pan; top with kraut mixture. Cover and bake 45 minutes longer or until meat is tender. Makes 4 servings.

Household Hints

Looking for less expensive kinds of foods? Try chicken instead of beef rib roasts, nonfat dry milk, carrots instead of broccoli, and bread instead of seeded rolls.

If your recipe calls for one cup butter or margarine for baking cookies you may substitute 7/8ths of a cup of vegetable or animal shortening plus ½ teaspoon salt.

Don't overbroil liver. Dip the slices in melted butter or margarine, place on cold broiler grill, and broil about three minutes on each side. When liver is no longer red — it should be just right.

Home Style Good Humor

A few more laughs at mealtime could ward off many digestive problems. So if the youngsters yak it up while eating, don't call for total silence. Kids love riddles, especially in the pre-teen years, and love to spring them on the family when eating. if you hear a riddle for the umpteenth time, take heart and encourage the fun. According to child-care experts, the ability to laugh and make other people laugh is one of the most enviable traits a young person can acquire. Elizabeth B. Hurlock in her book "Child Development," points out that a child soon discovers having a sense of humor is a highly valued characteristic. Children who are popular almost always have this quality. And it can be nurtured. So smile along. There is a new rash of riddles sweeping the younger set. So if you're armed with riddles like, "Why is it hard to talk with a goat around?" you'll get laughs with the answer: "He keeps butting in," Keep the home humor rolling with Frosted Ice Cream cups, replete with a generous supply of riddles.

FROSTED ICE CREAM CUPS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup firmly packed
brown sugar
2 cups pecan halves
1 can (pound) peaches,
drained and diced
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Heat butter in a skillet until it melts and stir in brown sugar. Cook mixture while stirring until bubbly. Add nuts and stir until all pecans are coated. Cool pecans by spreading out on a cookie sheet. Break pecans apart. Soften ice cream and fold in nuts, peaches and almond extract. Spoon mixture into riddle cups. Cover and freeze until hard. If desired, top with your favorite chocolate sauce. Makes 8 servings.

The Story of A Fine Wine!
SOGNO DI BACCO

Sogno Di Bacco is a full bodied, slow maturing, long lived wine with a full bouquet and great depth of flavor. It is considered one of the great wines of the European world. Unfortunately, its production is small and the wine is rarely found outside Italy. Before serving, decant gently to prevent the natural sediment from falling into the glass. It is essential that Sogno di Bacco be opened at least one hour and a half before being served. It needs at least this much time to breathe. Serve with stews, roasts or any hearty foods.

4 pork shoulder chops,
¾ to 1-inch thick
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon caraway seed
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2/3 cup apple juice
2 cups drained sauerkraut
2 cups sliced peeled slightly tart apples,
about ½ pound

In large skillet, saute onion in oil until crisp-tender; remove with slotted spoon. In same skillet brown chops well; drain off excess fat. Sprinkle chops with sugar, salt, caraway and pepper. Add apple juice, onion and kraut. Simmer covered ¾ to 1 hour or until chops are fork tender. Add apples last 15 minutes of cooking time. Makes 4 servings.

BAKED SPARERIBS WITH CARROT KRAUT

4 pounds cracked
pork spareribs
2½ cups undrained sauerkraut
1 cup grated carrots
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup golden raisins
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon light brown sugar
Dash thyme leaves
Salt and pepper

Remove excess fat from spareribs; place in a large shallow roasting pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 1½ hours. Meanwhile, combine kraut, carrot, onion, raisins, garlic, brown sugar, thyme and a dash of pepper. Remove spareribs from pan at end of 1½ hours and drain off fat. Sprinkle spareribs generously on both sides with salt and pepper and return to pan; top with kraut mixture. Cover and bake 45 minutes longer or until meat is tender. Makes 4 servings.

Home Style Good Humor

A few more laughs at mealtime could ward off many digestive problems. So if the youngsters yak it up while eating, don't call for total silence. Kids love riddles, especially in the pre-teen years, and love to spring them on the family when eating. if you hear a riddle for the umpteenth time, take heart and encourage the fun. According to child-care experts, the ability to laugh and make other people laugh is one of the most enviable traits a young person can acquire. Elizabeth B. Hurlock in her book "Child Development," points out that a child soon discovers having a sense of humor is a highly valued characteristic. Children who are popular almost always have this quality. And it can be nurtured. So smile along. There is a new rash of riddles sweeping the younger set. So if you're armed with riddles like, "Why is it hard to talk with a goat around?" you'll get laughs with the answer: "He keeps butting in," Keep the home humor rolling with Frosted Ice Cream cups, replete with a generous supply of riddles.

FROSTED ICE CREAM CUPS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup firmly packed
brown sugar
2 cups pecan halves
1 can (pound) peaches,
drained and diced
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Heat butter in a skillet until it melts and stir in brown sugar. Cook mixture while stirring until bubbly. Add nuts and stir until all pecans are coated. Cool pecans by spreading out on a cookie sheet. Break pecans apart. Soften ice cream and fold in nuts, peaches and almond extract. Spoon mixture into riddle cups. Cover and freeze until hard. If desired, top with your favorite chocolate sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Household Hints

Looking for less expensive kinds of foods? Try chicken instead of beef rib roasts, nonfat dry milk, carrots instead of broccoli, and bread instead of seeded rolls.

If your recipe calls for one cup butter or margarine for baking cookies you may substitute 7/8ths of a cup of vegetable or animal shortening plus ½ teaspoon salt.

Don't overbroil liver. Dip the slices in melted butter or margarine, place on cold broiler grill, and broil about three minutes on each side. When liver is no longer red — it should be just right.

The Story of A Fine Wine!
SOGNO DI BACCO
Sogno Di Bacco is a full bodied, slow maturing, long lived wine with a full bouquet and great depth of flavor. It is considered one of the great wines of the European world. Unfortunately, its production is small and the wine is rarely found outside Italy. Before serving, decant gently to prevent the natural sediment from falling into the glass. It is essential that Sogno di Bacco be opened at least one hour and a half before being served. It needs at least this much time to breathe. Serve with stews, roasts or any hearty foods.

Instant Potatoes Save Time And Money

For most homemakers, time is as valuable a commodity as money. Both are frequently in short supply so that cutting corners to save both is an increasing necessity. Fortunately, these days there are big time and money savers available in small packages. These are convenience foods that sit on the pantry shelf, immediately ready for use.

One prime example is instant mashed potatoes — a staple food item that takes only minutes to prepare. And they're economical too, since there's no waste or spoilage.

And to illustrate the wide variety of dishes which can be made with instant spuds, the R. T. French Company's Test Kitchens have created several recipes — some variations on old favorites, others completely innovative.

Each is a recipe to count on when time is short and appetites are huge.

SKILLET STEW WITH POTATO DUMPLINGS

Stew

1½ pounds ground beef
1 envelope (¾-oz) brown gravy mix
1 cup water
2 cups cooked or canned sliced carrots
2 cups cooked or canned tiny whole onions

In large skillet, lightly brown ground beef. Stir in contents of gravy mix envelope and water. Add vegetables. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently.

Dumplings

1½ cups water
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
2 eggs
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup buttered fine dry bread crumbs

Heat water, milk, salt and nutmeg to boiling. Gradually stir in potato granules; whip until smooth. Beat in eggs. Sift flour and baking powder together; add to potato mixture. Blend only until flour is moistened. Do not overmix. Drop by spoonfuls onto bubbling hot stew. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes without uncovering. Garnish with bread crumbs. 6 servings.

POTATO-MUSHROOM SOUP

3 cups chicken broth
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons onion powder
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1 envelope (5 servings) instant mashed potato granules
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup light cream
2 tablespoons sherry, if desired
Freeze-dried chives

Bring chicken broth, milk, onion powder, salt, and pepper to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in potato granules, cool. Lightly brown sliced mushrooms in butter; add to potato mixture. (If canned mushrooms are used, drain and add liquid to potato mixture.) Stir in cream and sherry; chill. Add additional salt, if desired. Serve ice cold topped with a sprinkle of chives. 5 to 6 servings. If preferred, serve hot with crumbled crisp bacon as garnish instead of chives.

MEAT LOAF RING

1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup green pepper, finely diced
2 pounds ground beef
1 envelope (7-servings) instant mashed potato granules
1 envelope (¾-oz.) mushroom gravy mix

Combine in mixing bowl tomatoes, bread crumbs, onion, Worcestershire sauce, salt, sugar, green pepper, and ground beef. Mix thoroughly; pack mixture in a 6-cup ring mold. Chill; unmold onto a greased shallow baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 to 60 minutes. Near end of baking time prepare mashed potato and mushroom gravy as envelopes direct. Transfer meat ring to serving platter. Fill center of ring with mashed potatoes. Garnish as desired. Serve meat and potatoes with mushroom gravy. 6 to 8 servings.

POTATO-CHEESE RINGS

1¼ cups water
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
½ cup finely grated Cheddar or American Cheese
1 package (10-oz.) frozen peas and carrots, cooked
Butter

Heat water, milk, butter, and salt just to boiling. Remove from heat. With a whipping utensil, gradually stir in potato granules until smooth. Add grated cheese; whip briskly until cheese is melted and mixture is well blended. Using pastry tube or spoon, shape five circles, about an inch high, on a greased cookie sheet. Broil 3 to 5 minutes, or until potato is lightly browned. To serve, fill with hot cooked vegetables and dot with butter. 5 servings.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

I was sitting at a luncheon with a retired businessman when dessert was served in the form of a luscious ice cream-pumpkin pie. One of the ladies seated with us, not wishing the calories, offered the gentleman a second piece.

His reply was, "Having two pieces of pie is like having two wives. One is a pleasant and thoroughly satisfying experience. A second would be a complete extravagance."

So whether you're going to have the pleasant and thoroughly satisfactory experience or a complete extravagance, here are two wonderful recipes.

First is for Chocolate Ice Box Pie which I had in the home of a friend. My hostess made 4 at a time but the recipe can be cut in half.

You'll need 4 baked pie shells (9-inch). Melt 6 squares of unsweetened chocolate in a saucepan and allow to cool. Cream 1¼ pounds butter with 2 pounds sugar, then add the cool chocolate.

One at a time, add 12 eggs beating well, then stir in 2 teaspoons vanilla and place equal portions in each crust. Refrigerate until time to serve.

White Pie is the recipe of a Du Quoin, Ill., woman. This is for a 9-inch pie.

In a saucepan blend thoroughly ½ cup sugar, ½ cup flour, 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin, ½ teaspoon salt.

Gradually stir in 1¾ cups milk. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Place the pan in cold water and cool until the mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Blend in ¼ teaspoon almond flavoring and ¾ teaspoon vanilla.

Make a meringue by beating 3 egg whites until they form soft peaks, then gradually beat in ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Carefully fold pie mixture into the meringue, then gently fold in ½ cup whipped cream followed by 1 cup moist coconut. Pile into cooled baked pie shell. Sprinkle with a little additional coconut and chill several hours until well set. Serve cold.

A fine addition is to top with crushed strawberries or raspberries.

Cheese Snack Built Into A Hearty Meal

A tangy cheese snack served with a robust brown bread is a welcome sight to brunch or dinner guests. Since cheese is a good source of protein it proves an ideal item for family munching year-round.

A special "Fromages de Grenoble" takes its name from a popular European ski area where winter athletes especially appreciate a fun food pickup. Some children take to the cheese flavors immediately while others develop a taste for the stronger ones slowly.

For many the Fromages de Grenoble, brown bread, a hearty soup and salad make a well-balanced and different meal.

FROMAGES DE GRENOBLE

2 8-oz. wheels French camembert
6 2-oz. packages triple creme or gervais cheese
¼ pound Roquefort
1 cup soft butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup finely chopped olives
½ cup finely chopped pimiento
Cayenne

Scrape camembert to remove white outer coating. Blend together the camembert, triple creme and Roquefort cheeses. Beat in butter and flour. Gradually beat in cream. Cook over low heat, while sirring until smooth and melted. Remove from heat and stir in olives and pimiento. Season to taste with cayenne. Pack into a crock, cover with foil or plastic wrap and chill for several hours. Serve with fingers of brown bread.

Makes about 2 quarts.

Instant Potatoes Save Time And Money

For most homemakers, time is as valuable a commodity as money. Both are frequently in short supply so that cutting corners to save both is an increasing necessity. Fortunately, these days there are big time and money savers available in small packages. These are convenience foods that sit on the pantry shelf, immediately ready for use.

One prime example is instant mashed potatoes — a staple food item that takes only minutes to prepare. And they're economical too, since there's no waste or spoilage.

And to illustrate the wide variety of dishes which can be made with instant spuds, the R. T. French Company's Test Kitchens have created several recipes — some variations on old favorites, others completely innovative.

Each is a recipe to count on when time is short and appetites are huge.

SKILLET STEW WITH POTATO DUMPLINGS

Stew

1½ pounds ground beef
1 envelope (¾-oz) brown gravy mix
1 cup water
2 cups cooked or canned sliced carrots
2 cups cooked or canned tiny whole onions

In large skillet, lightly brown ground beef. Stir in contents of gravy mix envelope and water. Add vegetables. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently.

Dumplings

1½ cups water
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
2 eggs
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup buttered fine dry bread crumbs

Heat water, milk, salt and nutmeg to boiling. Gradually stir in potato granules; whip until smooth. Beat in eggs. Sift flour and baking powder together; add to potato mixture. Blend only until flour is moistened. Do not overmix. Drop by spoonfuls onto bubbling hot stew. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes without uncovering. Garnish with bread crumbs. 6 servings.

POTATO-MUSHROOM SOUP

3 cups chicken broth
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons onion powder
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1 envelope (5 servings) instant mashed potato granules
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup light cream
2 tablespoons sherry, if desired
Freeze-dried chives

Bring chicken broth, milk, onion powder, salt, and pepper to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in potato granules, cool. Lightly brown sliced mushrooms in butter; add to potato mixture. (If canned mushrooms are used, drain and add liquid to potato mixture.) Stir in cream and sherry; chill. Add additional salt, if desired. Serve ice cold topped with a sprinkle of chives. 5 to 6 servings. If preferred, serve hot with crumbled crisp bacon as garnish instead of chives.

MEAT LOAF RING

1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup green pepper, finely diced
2 pounds ground beef
1 envelope (7-servings) instant mashed potato granules
1 envelope (¾-oz.) mushroom gravy mix

Combine in mixing bowl tomatoes, bread crumbs, onion, Worcestershire sauce, salt, sugar, green pepper, and ground beef. Mix thoroughly; pack mixture in a 6-cup ring mold. Chill; unmold onto a greased shallow baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 to 60 minutes. Near end of baking time prepare mashed potato and mushroom gravy as envelopes direct. Transfer meat ring to serving platter. Fill center of ring with mashed potatoes. Garnish as desired. Serve meat and potatoes with mushroom gravy. 6 to 8 servings.

POTATO-CHEESE RINGS

1¼ cups water
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
½ cup finely grated Cheddar or American Cheese
1 package (10-oz.) frozen peas and carrots, cooked
Butter

Heat water, milk, butter, and salt just to boiling. Remove from heat. With a whipping utensil, gradually stir in potato granules until smooth. Add grated cheese; whip briskly until cheese is melted and mixture is well blended. Using pastry tube or spoon, shape five circles, about an inch high, on a greased cookie sheet. Broil 3 to 5 minutes, or until potato is lightly browned. To serve, fill with hot. cooked vegetables and dot with butter. 5 servings.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

I was sitting at a luncheon with a retired businessman when dessert was served in the form of a luscious ice cream-pumpkin pie. One of the ladies seated with us, not wishing the calories, offered the gentleman a second piece.

His reply was, "Having two pieces of pie is like having two wives. One is a pleasant and thoroughly satisfying experience. A second would be a complete extravagance."

So whether you're going to have the pleasant and thoroughly satisfactory experience or a complete extravagance, here are two wonderful recipes.

First is for Chocolate Ice Box Pie which I had in the home of a friend. My hostess made 4 at a time but the recipe can be cut in half.

You'll need 4 baked pie shells (9-inch). Melt 6 squares of unsweetened chocolate in a saucepan and allow to cool. Cream 1¼ pounds butter with 2 pounds sugar, then add the cool chocolate.

One at a time, add 12 eggs beating well, then stir in 2 teaspoons vanilla and place equal portions in each crust. Refrigerate until time to serve.

White Pie is the recipe of a Du Quoin, Ill., woman. This is for a 9-inch pie.

In a saucepan blend thoroughly ½ cup sugar, ½ cup flour, 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin, ½ teaspoon salt.

Gradually stir in 1¾ cups milk. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Place the pan in cold water and cool until the mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Blend in ¼ teaspoon almond flavoring and ¾ teaspoon vanilla.

Make a meringue by beating 3 egg whites until they form soft peaks, then gradually beat in ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Carefully fold pie mixture into the meringue, then gently fold in ½ cup whipped cream followed by 1 cup moist coconut. Pile into cooled baked pie shell. Sprinkle with a little additional coconut and chill several hours until well set. Serve cold.

A fine addition is to top with crushed strawberries or raspberries.

Cheese Snack Built Into A Hearty Meal

A tangy cheese snack served with a robust brown bread is a welcome sight to brunch or dinner guests. Since cheese is a good source of protein it proves an ideal item for family munching year-round.

A special "Fromages de Grenoble" takes its name from a popular European ski area where winter athletes especially appreciate a fun food pickup. Some children take to the cheese flavors immediately while others develop a taste for the stronger ones slowly.

For many the Fromages de Grenoble, brown bread, a hearty soup and salad make a well-balanced and different meal.

FROMAGES DE GRENOBLE

2 8-oz. wheels French camembert
6 2-oz. packages triple creme or gervais cheese
¼ pound Roquefort
1 cup soft butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup finely chopped olives
Cayenne

Scrape camembert to remove white outer coating. Blend together the camembert, triple creme and Roquefort cheeses. Beat in butter and flour. Gradually beat in cream. Cook over low heat, while sirring until smooth and melted. Remove from heat and stir in olives and pimiento. Season to taste with cayenne. Pack into a crock, cover with foil or plastic wrap and chill for several hours. Serve with fingers of brown bread.

Makes about 2 quarts.

Simplified Way To Make A Hearty Stuffed Cabbage

Savory Stuffed Cabbage

When it comes to tasty dishes that are also economical, it's hard to beat stuffed cabbage. No doubt it's why there ar literally hundreds of recipes for this perennial favorite, some handed down from generation to generation. But this new version has a benefit busy homemakers will appreciate. It's easier and less time consuming to prepare than most of the traditional recipes.

Instead of laboriously separating the cabbage leaves and parboiling them, in this innovative adaption, the head is hollowed out to form a shell for the ground beef mixture. The whole stuffed head is then baked with a flavorful sauce — a quick-fix combination of tomatoes and an envelope of cheese sauce mix. Serve the cabbage cut in wedges, with the sauce and boiled potatoes. Topped off with chocolate pudding and glasses of milk, it's a nutritious and inexpensive meal.

Use the reamining cabbage, which will keep for several days in a plastic bag in the refrigerator crisper, to make this Mediterranean Slaw. A delicious, crunch accompaniment for roast chicken or a meat dish, the slaw is distinguished by an unusual sweet-tart dressing made with honey and prepared yellow mustard. Dates add interesting taste and texture contrast.

SAVORY STUFFED CABBAGE

1 egg
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 pound ground beef
1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes

Remove core from cabbage, then hollow out center of cabbage, leaving a 1-inch shell. Beat together egg, milk, and onion salt. Stir in bread crumbs and ground beef; mix lightly. Spoon into center of cabbage. Place, hollow-side down, in deep casserole. Stir together contents of sauce mix envelope and tomatoes; pour over cabbage in casserole. Cover tightly and bake at 375 degrees for about 1 hour, until tender. Cut in wedges and serve with the tomato and cheese sauce. 6 servings.

MEDITERRANEAN SLAW

¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup honey
4 to 6 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup chopped dates

Stir together mayonnaise, mustard, and honey. Combine cabbage and dates in large bowl; add mayonnaise mixture and toss. 8 servings.

Proper Egg Storage

Leftover egg whites should be refrigerated promptly in tightly covered containers and used within a day or two.

Hard-cooked eggs should be refrigerated promptly, eitherin shell or out. If the shell is removed, put the eggs in a tightly closed container or wrap them with moisture-proof, vapor-proof material. Use within a few days.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has made two regulation changes, effective Feb. 19, that give consumers added information on which to base selections of bacon and cured meat products.

One regulation amends the requirement on bacon packaging. To comply with the new look, the opening in windowed packages of sliced bacon must be at least 1½ inches wide and show at least 70 per cent of the length of a representative strip of bacon.

Some processors have already been packaging bacon in transparent materials that reveal the entire contests. But customer compalints involved those packages with windows that revealed only one edge of the bacon rather than a total strip. The new packages will be designed to give consumers a better idea of the kind of bacon they are buying.

The second regulation change requires that all cured meat or products containing cured meat be labeled to tell the consumer the ingredients used in the curing process.

In the past, cured meats have not had to carry ingredient statements because the USDA believed consumers generally knew that such products were made with meat and simple curing solutions. However, as more complex curing solutions have come into use, consumers may no longer be aware of the ingredients.

Oster demonstrators will be at Carson Pirie Scott, Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, next Thursday from noon to 7 p.m. in the small electrical appliances department.

Oster appliances will be used to show young brides kitchen efficiency with electrics. Oriental Skillet Supper, a beef-tomato-pepper mixture which can be prepared in 10 minutes, will be highlighted. The recipe is one of 12 main dishes featured in Better Homes & Gardens' "Cooking for Two" cookbook.

The demonstrations are part of Carson's Bridal Fair which began Jan. 2 and will continue until the end of the month.

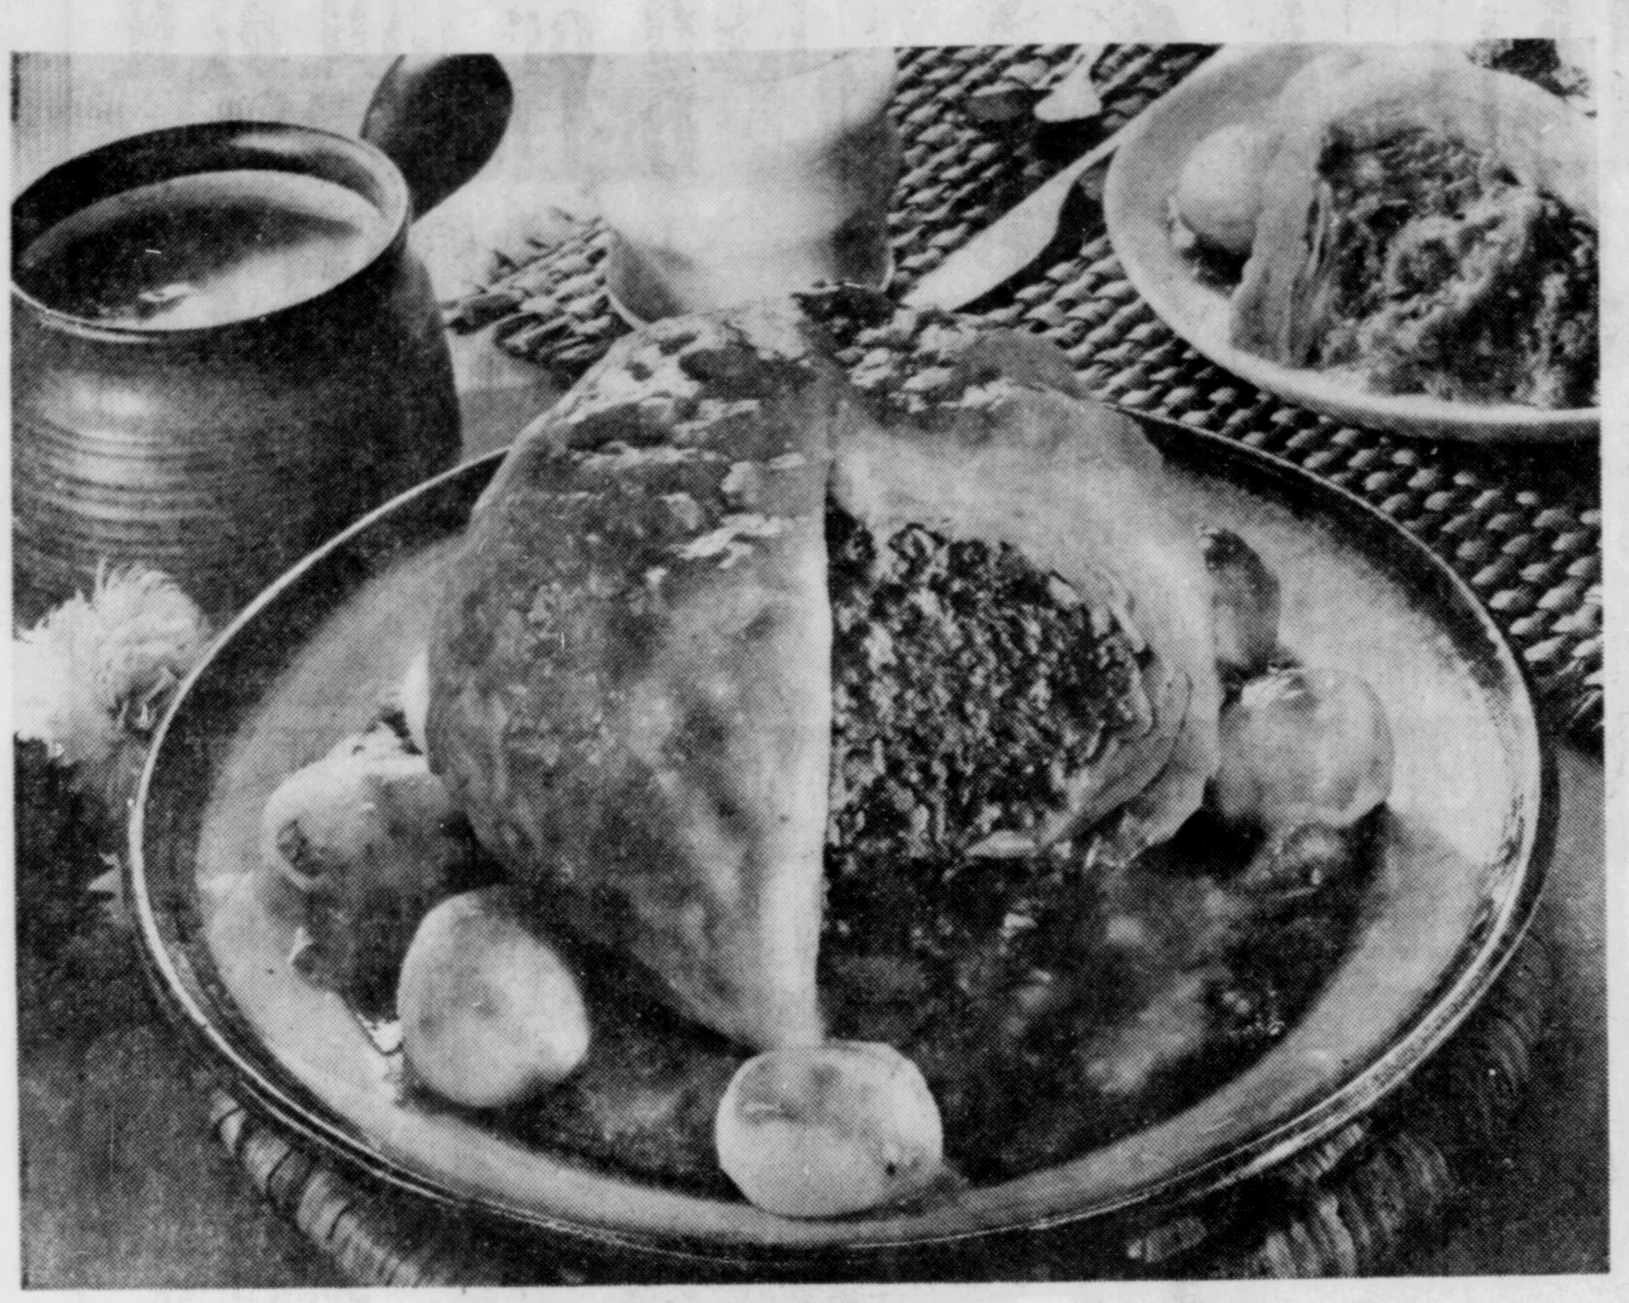
Simplified Way To Make A Hearty Stuffed Cabbage



Savory Stuffed Cabbage

When it comes to tasty dishes that are also economical, it's hard to beat stuffed cabbage. No doubt it's why there ar literally hundreds of recipes for this perennial favorite, some handed down from generation to generation. But this new version has a benefit busy homemakers will appreciate. It's easier and less time consuming to prepare than most of the traditional recipes.

Instead of laboriously separating the cabbage leaves and parboiling them, in this innovative adaption, the head is hollowed out to form a shell for the ground beef mixture. The whole stuffed head is then baked with a flavorful sauce — a quick-fix combination of tomatoes and an envelope of cheese sauce mix. Serve the cabbage cut in wedges, with the sauce and boiled potatoes. Topped off with chocolate pudding and glasses of milk, it's a nutritious and inexpensive meal.

Use the reamining cabbage, which will keep for several days in a plastic bag in the refrigerator crisper, to make this Mediterranean Slaw. A delicious, crunch accompaniment for roast chicken or a meat dish, the slaw is distinguished by an unusual sweet-tart dressing made with honey and prepared yellow mustard. Dates add interesting taste and texture contrast.

SAVORY STUFFED CABBAGE

1 medium-size head cabbage
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 pound ground beef
1 envelope (1¼-oz.) cheese sauce mix
1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes

Remove core from cabbage, then hollow out center of cabbage, leaving a 1-inch shell. Beat together egg, milk, and onion salt. Stir in bread crumbs and ground beef; mix lightly. Spoon into center of cabbage. Place, hollow-side down, in deep casserole. Stir together contents of sauce mix envelope and tomatoes; pour over cabbage in casserole. Cover tightly and bake at 375 degrees for about 1 hour, until tender. Cut in wedges and serve with the tomato and cheese sauce. 6 servings.

MEDITERRANEAN SLAW

½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup honey
4 to 6 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup chopped dates

Stir together mayonnaise, mustard, and honey. Combine cabbage and dates in large bowl; add mayonnaise mixture and toss. 8 servings.

Proper Egg Storage

Leftover egg whites should be refrigerated promptly in tightly covered containers and used within a day or two.

Hard-cooked eggs should be refrigerated promptly, eitherin shell or out. If the shell is removed, put the eggs in a tightly closed container or wrap them with moisture-proof, vapor-proof material. Use within a few days.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has made two regulation changes, effective Feb. 19, that give consumers added information on which to base selections of bacon and cured meat products.

One regulation amends the requirement on bacon packaging. To comply with the new look, the opening in windowed packages of sliced bacon must be at least 1½ inches wide and show at least 70 per cent of the length of a representative strip of bacon.

Some processors have already been packaging bacon in transparent materials that reveal the entire contests. But customer compalints involved those packages with windows that revealed only one edge of the bacon rather than a total strip. The new packages will be designed to give consumers a better idea of the kind of bacon they are buying.

The second regulation change requires that all cured meat or products containing cured meat be labeled to tell the consumer the ingredients used in the curing process.

In the past, cured meats have not had to carry ingredient statements because the USDA believed consumers generally knew that such products were made with meat and simple curing solutions. However, as more complex curing solutions have come into use, consumers may no longer be aware of the ingredients.

The demonstrations are part of Carson's Bridal Fair which began Jan. 2 and will continue until the end of the month.

Government Stream Projects Take Toll In Natural Habitats

by LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

You may find it hard to believe the government is spending large sums of your tax money converting beautiful natural streams into ugly ditches.

But that is exactly what the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is doing.

They call it "channelization."

To channelize a meandering creek or river, you move in with chain saws and bulldozers and strip its banks of trees and brush. Then you bring in huge draglines to deepen and straighten the stream bed, eliminating all the bends and looping curves that slow down the flow of water — and incidentally make the stream a thing of beauty.

Because a channelized stream carries off water more rapidly, nearby bottomlands, which once were subject to flooding may become suitable for agriculture.

THIS PRESUMABLY benefits the farmers who own those lands, since they can look to the government rather than themselves to foot most of the bill.

Of course, there is some question about the consistency of the Department of Agriculture — spending tax money to create new farm lands at the same time it is ladling out funds to farmers to take other croplands out of cultivation.

But that is not the biggest objection that has been raised by critics of channelization.

Environmental protection groups, including the National Wildlife Federation, the Sierra Club and the National Audubon Society, say channelization is doing infinitely more harm than good. Even the farmers who get new land may suffer, they say, from a lowering of the water table that causes wells and springs to dry up.

The principal victims of channelization projects, they say are swamps and floodlands that have served for centuries as natural habitats for many types of wildlife.

FOR EXAMPLE: in one of its current projects, the soil Conservation Service proposes to dig a big ditch through the Horse Range Swamp in South Carolina. Conservatinists say it will destroy the Horse Range Swamp and adversely affect the nearby Four Holes Swamp, which the Audubon Society and Nature Conservancy have purchased to protect perpetually as a classic example of the fast-disappearing ecology of the back-water cypress swamp.

Concern about the effects of the project also has been expressed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and even by the Army Corps of Engineers, which is not-noted as an ardent exponent of conservation.

Political pressure is building up to halt the Horse Range ditching. but the same battle will have to be fought in hundreds of other places all over America.

The SCS already has gutterized 8,000 miles of American streams, and has scheduled another 13,000 miles for similar "improvement." Its ultimate goal is to convert 175,000 miles of winding natural woodland streams into nude-banked ditches.

Winter Season For Forest Planting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traditionally, gardeners are inactive during the first three months of the year, like the outdoor plants they love to tend. But in the vast forest products industry, the dead of winter is the major planting season, the time when new seedlings come out of cold storage to be plugged into the earth.

Concern for ecology has focused American eyes more on the cutting of forests than on their regeneration. But, in fact, more trees will be planted this year than ever before. Some estimates run as high as 800 million.

One company alone will plant 100 million seedlings in 1973, most of them during the heavy 100-day plainting season that ends in March. C. W. Bingham, senior vice president of the Weyerhaeuser Company, of Centralia, Wash., explained that winter is the best plainting time in many areas precisely because the seedlings are dormant and suffer minimal damage from the shock of transplantation.

THE COPANY is undertaking to stock 154,000 acres, or 240 square miles, during 1973 and most of the seedlings will be set in place by hand. Some of this area is cut-over land, but in much of the acreage new seedlings will replace young trees destroyed by animals or the weather, or will bring poorly stocked land into full production.

Bingham said soil conditions, weather and geographical differences require the planting of particular species in each location. In the State of Washington and in western Oreon, ponderosa pine and lodgepole pine; and in Arkansas, Oklahoma, North Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama, loblolly and other southern pines.

Science has been brought to bear in the industry to improve the growth rate of commercially-operated forests. Genetically improved stock will be used on selected areas of the company's land. Each year the young forests are fertilized and thinned; damaged or dead trees are replaced. By such methods, the Weyerhaeuser executive said, each acre of new forest is being made to produce a third more usable wood in a given time span.

The SCS already has gutterized 8,000 miles of American streams, and has scheduled another 13,000 miles for similar "improvement." Its ultimate goal is to convert 175,000 miles of winding natural woodland streams into nude-banked ditches.

Winter Season For Forest Planting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traditionally, gardeners are inactive during the first three months of the year, like the outdoor plants they love to tend. But in the vast forest products industry, the dead of winter is the major planting season, the time when new seedlings come out of cold storage to be plugged into the earth.

Concern for ecology has focused American eyes more on the cutting of forests than on their regeneration. But, in fact, more trees will be planted this year than ever before. Some estimates run as high as 800 million.

One company alone will plant 100 million seedlings in 1973, most of them during the heavy 100-day plainting season that ends in March. C. W. Bingham, senior vice president of the Weyerhaeuser Company, of Centralia, Wash., explained that winter is the best plainting time in many areas precisely because the seedlings are dormant and suffer minimal damage from the shock of transplantation.

THE COPANY is undertaking to stock 154,000 acres, or 240 square miles, during 1973 and most of the seedlings will be set in place by hand. Some of this area is cut-over land, but in much of the acreage new seedlings will replace young trees destroyed by animals or the weather, or will bring poorly stocked land into full production.

Bingham said soil conditions, weather and geographical differences require the planting of particular species in each location. In the State of Washington and in western Oreon, ponderosa pine and lodgepole pine; and in Arkansas, Oklahoma, North Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama, loblolly and other southern pines.

Science has been brought to bear in the industry to improve the growth rate of commercially-operated forests. Genetically improved stock will be used on selected areas of the company's land. Each year the young forests are fertilized and thinned; damaged or dead trees are replaced. By such methods, the Weyerhaeuser executive said, each acre of new forest is being made to produce a third more usable wood in a given time span.

Foxx-y Little Bit Of Humor From Redd

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

From Redd Foxx, nightclub comedian now star of the "Sanford and Son" series on NBC-TV: "There's nothing funny about a heckler, because they interfere with your bread. You're out there trying to make some money, and they're making things difficult. I never tried to outdo them, I just beat them up. Whenever there was a heckler interfering with my act, there was also a fight."

From a show business trade press story about a new computerized process of cable-TV by an organization called Home Theatre Network: "The subscriber will activate his system by dialing a telephone number which will send a digital message to a central computer. The computer will acknowledge the request, identify the subscriber, log his order in billing storage and send the program to the viewer's TV set."

THE HEADLINERS: ABC-TV's Dick Cavett has solo 90-minute interviews with Laurence Olivier Jan. 24, Orson Welles Jan. 25 and singerpianist Ray Charles Jan. 26 . . . When Julie Andrews moves to a regular Saturday night slot with her ABC-TV show this weekend, one of the guests on her first outing will be Baroness Maria Von Trapp, whom she portrayed in the movie "The Sound of Music" . . . Bill Cosby's guests on his CBS-TV series tonight include Sheldon Leonard, Ike and Tina Turner, Marty Feldman and George Kirby.

Leslie Caron and Mel Ferrer, who costarred in the movie "Lili," reteam Feb. 5 in Jean Renoir's play "Carola" on the "Hollywood Television Theatre" series of the non-commercial network . . . the play, set during the German occupation of Paris in World War II, concerns a young French resistance hero portrayed by Michael Sacks who takes refuge in a theater because he adores an actress (Miss Caron) who, in turn, loves the lead of the occupying forces (Ferrer).

With Joe Garagiola leaving NBC-TV's morning "Today" after a decade, journalist-critic Gene Shalit, whose wide-ranging interests include book reviewing and sports, and whose movie reviews are seen on numerous video stations, is joining the series as a regular panel member . . . NBC-TV's Bobby Darin variety series, which returns Friday after a summer tryout, will have a regular feature in which the star tackles a chess problem each week.

TV Role Can Give Actor A New Start

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One hit television series can turn around the career of a supporting player to an astonishing extent, Edward Asner has discovered on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Three years ago the stocky, balding Asner was just another character man slogging along making a living.

With his exposure as the hard-drinking, tough news editor on the weekly series, Asner has become a full-fledged celebrity, an actor who finds himself in tremendous demand.

He looks on the transformation with a touch of humor.

"It's ironic," he said. "I've played in classical drama and I've done a lot of villains. I worked for years trying to establish myself in dramatic roles. Then I finally get recognition in a comedy.

"YOU COULD say it is one of life's satyr grins.

"Being chubby, 5-feet, 9-inches tall with a receding hairline, you know you're not going to be a lover, so you wait for your time to arrive.

"This series is the answer, I guess, and I'm really delighted with it. Not just my role or my success. But I'm working with the finest people I've known in show business.

"What palls a certain amount of the excitement is seeing former leading men selling cars or training for new jobs. It makes you wonder about your own future in this business.

"You just hope you and your business manager can save enough money to keep going until lightning strikes again."

ASNER'S INSECURITIES spring from years in Chicago and New York working in small but good theatrical groups. When he wasn't acting he worked as a delivery boy, post office worker, cab driver, shoe salesman, packing machine operator and in a steel mill.

An intelligent, well-read man, Asner hopes his characterization of Lou Grant, the hard-boiled newsman, doesn't stick with him.

On the other hand, the affection of viewers for the gruff character is an invaluable asset.

"I wouldn't have been cast for a couple of movies of the week or on the Flip Wilson show if it hadn't been for this series," Asner said.

Foxx-y Little Bit Of Humor From Redd

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

From Redd Foxx, nightclub comedian now star of the "Sanford and Son" series on NBC-TV: "There's nothing funny about a heckler, because they interfere with your bread. You're out there trying to make some money, and they're making things difficult. I never tried to outdo them, I just beat them up. Whenever there was a heckler interfering with my act, there was also a fight."

From a show business trade press story about a new computerized process of cable-TV by an organization called Home Theatre Network: "The subscriber will activate his system by dialing a telephone number which will send a digital message to a central computer. The computer will acknowledge the request, identify the subscriber, log his order in billing storage and send the program to the viewer's TV set."

THE HEADLINERS: ABC-TV's Dick Cavett has solo 90-minute interviews with Laurence Olivier Jan. 24, Orson Welles Jan. 25 and singerpianist Ray Charles Jan. 26 . . . When Julie Andrews moves to a regular Saturday night slot with her ABC-TV show this weekend, one of the guests on her first outing will be Baroness Maria Von Trapp, whom she portrayed in the movie "The Sound of Music" . . . Bill Cosby's guests on his CBS-TV series tonight include Sheldon Leonard, Ike and Tina Turner, Marty Feldman and George Kirby.

Leslie Caron and Mel Ferrer, who co-starred in the movie "Lili," reteam Feb. 5 in Jean Renoir's play "Carola" on the "Hollywood Television Theatre" series of the non-commercial network . . . the play, set during the German occupation of Paris in World War II, concerns a young French resistance hero portrayed by Michael Sacks who takes refuge in a theater because he adores an actress (Miss Caron) who, in turn, loves the lead of the occupying forces (Ferrer).

With Joe Garagiola leaving NBC-TV's morning "Today" after a decade, journalist-critic Gene Shalit, whose wide-ranging interests include book reviewing and sports, and whose movie reviews are seen on numerous video stations, is joining the series as a regular panel member . . . NBC-TV's Bobby Darin variety series, which returns Friday after a summer tryout, will have a regular feature in which the star tackles a chess problem each week.

TV Role Can Give Actor A New Start

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One hit television series can turn around the career of a supporting player to an astonishing extent, Edward Asner has discovered on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Three years ago the stocky, balding Asner was just another character man slogging along making a living.

With his exposure as the hard-drinking, tough news editor on the weekly series, Asner has become a full-fledged celebrity, an actor who finds himself in tremendous demand.

He looks on the transformation with a touch of humor.

"It's ironic," he said. "I've played in classical drama and I've done a lot of villains. I worked for years trying to establish myself in dramatic roles. Then I finally get recognition in a comedy.

"YOU COULD say it is one of life's satyr grins.

"Being chubby, 5-feet, 9-inches tall with a receding hairline, you know you're not going to be a lover, so you wait for your time to arrive.

"This series is the answer, I guess, and I'm really delighted with it. Not just my role or my success. But I'm working with the finest people I've known in show business.

"What palls a certain amount of the excitement is seeing former leading men selling cars or training for new jobs. It makes you wonder about your own future in this business.

"You just hope you and your business manager can save enough money to keep going until lightning strikes again."

ASNER'S INSECURITIES spring from years in Chicago and New York working in small but good theatrical groups. When he wasn't acting he worked as a delivery boy, post office worker, cab driver, shoe salesman, packing machine operator and in a steel mill.

An intelligent, well-read man, Asner hopes his characterization of Lou Grant, the hard-boiled newsman, doesn't stick with him.

On the other hand, the affection of viewers for the gruff character is an invaluable asset.

"I wouldn't have been cast for a couple of movies of the week or on the Flip Wilson show if it hadn't been for this series," Asner said.

Making A Hole In The Ground Out Of A Pennsylvania Mountain

Dig They Must To Fight Mine Fires

by Tom Tiede

SHENANDOAH, Pa.—Some say it started in 1949. Some say 1957. And some concede that nobody really knows. But the popular theory here is that old John Pitkak, a bootleg coal miner, was the culprit; he got so angry at authorities who questioned the legality of his claim that one day he kicked a salamander full of hot coals down his shaft and thereby ignited one of Eastern Pennsylvania's biggest, longest burning and most expensive underground mine fires.

The fires, in coal country, are not unusual. Dozens are burning throughout the state. Those that start in the huge roadside refuse banks may, if left unattended, burn for a century or more, lighting the night with awesome blue flames.

But even in a region used to such things, the Kehley Run fire at the edge of this town has been cause for consternation. But one thing, the state and federal governments argued for years before jurisdictional procedures were determined. For another, over the years the fire go so close to town (less than 100 feet from the business district), that "some people began to feel the heat on their cellar walls."

FINALLY, WHEN the danger became clear, and the smell of burning sulfur became sufficiently thick, a local pastor began to lead his congregation in prayers for divine deliverance — and the authorities mercifully stepped in. Ten million dollars worth of fire fighting was authorized; work has been under way now for two years.

Work is hardly the word for it. Frustration is more the term, half-a-hundred men, a dozen 60-ton dumptrucks and several 12-yard shovels have dug what locals call "the second Grand Canyon" cheek-by-jowl with an A&P food store, assorted other businesses, and stores of residential homes. And for what purpose? asks the Job Supt. Al Poltrok, "just so one day we can fill it all back in again."

Mine fires, says Poltrok, are not fought the same way as burning buildings. No hoses here. The flames have to be dug out. "This was once a mountain we're working on. Now it's a big hole in the ground. We dig down, scoop out the burning material (the coal, which is nonporous, does not burn; only the rock, which contains oxygen, is smoldering). We haul all this junk over to a man-made lake where it cools. After awhile, when we've dug it all out, we'll haul it all back. We can't leave a big hole there. The townspeople would be after our throats."

Some townspeople are already after the fire fighters' throats. In a manner of speaking. Poltrok and his crew have excavated a hole 1,800 feet long, 800 feet wide and 300 feet deep. During the day it is an esthetic mess. At night, even though guarded by chain-link fencing, it is a safety hazard. "We know the men are here to help us," says a concerned citizen, "but I'm not so sure we weren't better off before they came. Then there was only the fire to worry about. Now we have all these other things to make our life miserable."

THINGS SUCH as blasting; the day rarely passes anymore when a Shenandoah official is not collared by an angry resident complaining that his ceiling plaster is cracking or worse. Then there is the dust; when the excavating shovels dig into the burnt-out rock the action creates a condition which one local physician describes as "almost as bad as black lung." Moreover, say the locals, excavating the mine fire has caused the whole town literally to stink — "There were always sulfur fumes," says a filling station operator, "but now, oh, on some day it's unbearable. My kids say it smells like rotten eggs; I think it's more like dead rats in the attic."

For their part, the fire fighters tend to agree that their operation has upset the sensitivities of this worn-out coal town. "I know what they mean about smell," says Poltrok, "when it gets bad enough I have the men wear gas masks." Because of this sympathy, and because there is no alternative, the fire fighters have earned the town's grudging respect. On sunny days some families picnic in nearby high places and wach the operation. "I got my complaints about them," says a resident of close-by Washington Street, "but I admire them, too."

INDEED THE fire fighters do deserve admiration. The work is tedious, unfulfilling ("We're not building anything, we're not getting anywhere"), and often exceedingly dangerous. The excavation surface temperature, at times as high as 1,800 degrees, has forced tractors to retreat with melted tires. The heat is an especially precarious hazard for the men with the dynamite; after the holes are bored the men have only five to eight minutes to set the explosives and flee before the bang.

Still in all, despite the hard work and courage, townspeople will be relieved to see the fire fighters drag their last yard of dirt. Which, according to Poltrok, won't be for awhile yet. "We've got a year or better left — that is, if everything goes right." What could go wrong? "We plan to stop digging at water level. We assume nothing will be burning under that. We hope so anyway."

And even if nothing is burning under the water level of the present Kehley Run site, there is something that could keep the fighters here longer than anticipated. A mile and a half away from the current diggings there is an ominous sign: smoke coming out of weedy ground. Right, it's another mine fire.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

THE PURPOSE of the big hole at Kehley Run in Pennsylvania, observes superintendent Al Poltrok, is to fill it all back in again.

California Exports Modes Of Behavior, Lifestyles

by VERNON SCOTT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Time was when California exported citrus fruit, movies and little else. But for some time now it has been exporting much more to the nation at large. Call it modes of behavior, or lifestyles.

There will be more such tides flowing from California in 1973, even if, at the moment, it isn't possible to pinpoint them.

Climate and a peripetetic population along with a creative brain drain from other parts of the country account at least in part for the Golden State's dominance in setting much of the pace and tastes of Americans, a dominance that has been remarked for the better part of a decade.

With virtually all of television — the single most influential element in everyday living — springing from California, the state has a disproportionate effect and causation on the other 49 states in the Union.

LIKE IT OR NOT, this is where our youth drift. California is the mecca for artists, writers, creators, firebrands, crackpots, revolutionaries and fanatics.

California is at once a hotbed of conservatism and radicalism. Collectively and individually Californians are too busy doing their own thing to be concerned with influencing the rest of the country.

Yet in last November's election for instance, three referendums on the ballot are likely to have considerable consequences nationwide.

Californians voted 2-1 to restore the death penalty. They voted overwhelmingly against legalizing marijuana. Environmental protection came into sharp focus with a whopping vote to conserve the state's coastline by defeating efforts of industry to further exploit it commercially.

On the other side of the coin, Californians were considerably less conservative about social structures in the matter of marriage, divorce, abortion and sex.

Nudity on public beaches was a rarity only two years ago. In 1972 it became a growing vogue. Naked ocean bathers should become commonplace in 1973 as the constabulary, church groups and civic fathers turn the other way or indeed, join in the skinny dipping.

A COURT DECISION in the final weeks of 1972 made it possible for any woman to have a legal abortion up to 22 weeks of pregnancy so long as she is attended by a bona fide physician and in a licensed hospital.

If it is easier to get an abortion in California, so too has the state made divorce less difficult.

Non-marriages continue to proliferate throughout the state. Whether in Hollywood or Redwood City couples living together without benefit of marriage ceremony have come to be accepted in most communities with imperceptible reservations.

Marriage itself is challenged by curious behavior patterns best illustrated by a welter of newsstand publications for swingers.

These papers, costing as much as $1 per copy, advertise wifeswapping couples throughout the state. Often the ads include pictures and salient information as to sexual proclivities.

A NUMBER OF bars, some in the upper middle-class areas of the San Fernando valley, blatantly advertise themselves as meeting places for married and unmarried couples who enjoy group sex or mate swapping.

No place in the world, with the possible exception of the Near East, do beards and long hair on men abound as in California. Nor is this phenomenon restricted to the campus or street people. Men in the professions, business and the arts have become increasingly hirsute.

Whether it is a male response to Women's Lib is beside the point. Unisex — beards and mustaches notwithstanding — is becoming more fashionable.

Beauty parlors in Beverly Hills are almost evenly divided among men and women. Hair styling for men — shampooed and cut by women in salons — costs an average of $12 per clip.

Another unisex syndrome is the return of the high heel in women's — and, surprisingly — men's fashions.

We haul all this junk over to a manmade lake where it cools. After awhile, when we've dug it all out, we'll haul it all back. We can't leave a big hole there. The townspeople would be after our throats."

Some townspeople are already after the fire fighters' throats. In a manner of speaking. Poltrok and his crew have excavated a hole 1,800 feet long, 800 feet wide and 300 feet deep. During the day it is an esthetic mess. At night, even though guarded by chain-link fencing, it is a safety hazard. "We know the men are here to help us," says a concerned citizen, "but I'm not so sure we weren't better off before they came. Then there was only the fire to worry about. Now we have all these other things to make our life miserable."

THINGS SUCH as blasting; the day rarely passes anymore when a Shenandoah official is not collared by an angry resident complaining that his ceiling plaster is cracking or worse. Then there is the dust; when the excavating shovels dig into the burnt-out rock the action creates a condition which one local physician describes as "almost as bad as black lung." Moreover, say the locals, excavating the mine fire has caused the whole town literally to stink — "There were always sulfur fumes," says a filling station operator, "but now, oh, on some day it's unbearable. My kids say it smells like rotten eggs; I think it's more like dead rats in the attic."

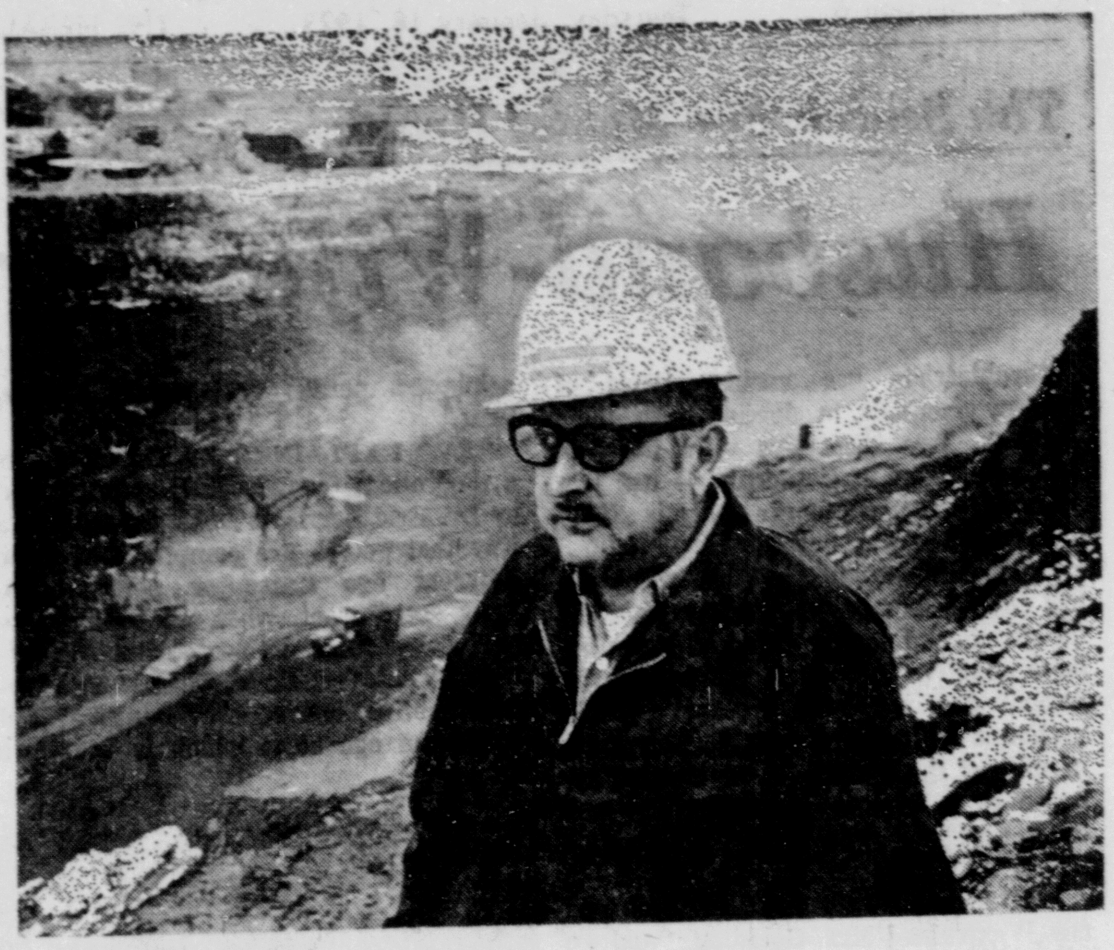
For their part, the fire fighters tend to agree that their operation has upset the sensitivities of this worn-out coal town. "I know what they mean about smell," says Poltrok, "when it gets bad enough I have the men wear gas masks." Because of this sympathy, and because there is no alternative, the fire fighters have earned the town's grudging respect. On sunny days some families picnic in nearby high places and wach the operation. "I got my complaints about them," says a resident of close-by Washington Street, "but I admire them, too."

INDEED THE fire fighters do deserve admiration. The work is tedious, unfulfilling ("We're not building anything, we're not getting anywhere"), and often exceedingly dangerous. The excavation surface temperature, at times as high as 1,800 degrees, has forced tractors to retreat with melted tires. The heat is an especially precarious hazard for the men with the dynamite; after the holes are bored the men have only five to eight minutes to set the explosives and flee before the bang.

Still in all, despite the hard work and courage, townspeople will be relieved to see the fire fighters drag their last yard of dirt. Which, according to Poltrok, won't be for awhile yet. "We've got a year or better left — that is, if everything goes right." What could go wrong? "We plan to stop digging at water level. We assume nothing will be burning under that. We hope so anyway."

And even if nothing is burning under the water level of the present Kehley Run site, there is something that could keep the fighters here longer than anticipated. A mile and a half away from the current diggings there is an ominous sign: smoke coming out of weedy ground. Right, it's another mine fire.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)



THE PURPOSE of the big hole at Kehley Run in Pennsylvania, observes superintendent Al Poltrok, is to fill it all back in again.

California Exports Modes Of Behavior, Lifestyles

by VERNON SCOTT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Time was when California exported citrus fruit, movies and little else. But for some time now it has been exporting much more to the nation at large. Call it modes of behavior, or lifestyles.

There will be more such tides flowing from California in 1973, even if, at the moment, it isn't possible to pinpoint them.

Climate and a peripetetic population along with a creative brain drain from other parts of the country account at least in part for the Golden State's dominance in setting much of the pace and tastes of Americans, a dominance that has been remarked for the better part of a decade.

With virtually all of television — the single most influential element in everyday living — springing from California, the state has a disproportionate effect and causation on the other 49 states in the Union.

LIKE IT OR NOT, this is where our youth drift. California is the mecca for artists, writers, creators, firebrands, crackpots, revolutionaries and fanatics.

California is at once a hotbed of conservatism and radicalism. Collectively and individually Californians are too busy doing their own thing to be concerned with influencing the rest of the country.

Yet in last November's election for instance, three referendums on the ballot are likely to have considerable consequences nationwide.

Californians voted 2-1 to restore the death penalty. They voted overwhelmingly against legalizing marijuana. Environmental protection came into sharp focus with a whopping vote to conserve the state's coastline by defeating efforts of industry to further exploit it commercially.

On the other side of the coin, Californians were considerably less conservative about social structures in the matter of marriage, divorce, abortion and sex.

Nudity on public beaches was a rarity only two years ago. In 1972 it became a growing vogue. Naked ocean bathers should become commonplace in 1973 as the constabulary, church groups and civic fathers turn the other way or indeed, join in the skinny dipping.

A COURT DECISION in the final weeks of 1972 made it possible for any woman to have a legal abortion up to 22 weeks of pregnancy so long as she is attended by a bona fide physician and in a licensed hospital.

If it is easier to get an abortion in California, so too has the state made divorce less difficult.

Non-marriages continue to proliferate throughout the state. Whether in Hollywood or Redwood City couples living together without benefit of marriage ceremony have come to be accepted in most communities with imperceptible reservations.

Marriage itself is challenged by curious behavior patterns best illustrated by a welter of newsstand publications for swingers.

These papers, costing as much as $1 per copy, advertise wifeswapping couples throughout the state. Often the ads include pictures and salient information as to sexual proclivities.

A NUMBER OF bars, some in the upper middle-class areas of the San Fernando valley, blatantly advertise themselves as meeting places for married and unmarried couples who enjoy group sex or mate swapping.

No place in the world, with the possible exception of the Near East, do beards and long hair on men abound as in California. Nor is this phenomenon restricted to the campus or street people. Men in the professions, business and the arts have become increasingly hirsute.

Whether it is a male response to Women's Lib is beside the point. Unisex — beards and mustaches notwithstanding — is becoming more fashionable.

Beauty parlors in Beverly Hills are almost evenly divided among men and women. Hair styling for men — shampooed and cut by women in salons — costs an average of $12 per clip.

Another unisex syndrome is the return of the high heel in women's — and, surprisingly — men's fashions.

Husband-Wife Psychiatric Team Uses Two Systems

Psychiatrists use various types of therapy methods in dealing with their patients. Two therapists — a husband and wife team in California — use two systems: Transactional analysis (TA) and gestalt in their practice.

Dr. Robert Goulding and his wife Mary are co-directors of the Western Institute for group and family therapy. They believe effective therapy means having the patient deal with his present and the problems he is facing now. This they do, in spite of the traditional psychiatric approaches of closely examining the person's past and what effect his past is having on his life now.

'Gestalt and TA focus on the here and now," explained Mrs. Goulding, "and we accent the autonomy of the individual in these present terms. Whatever happened to a person when he was little can't be changed but whatever is happening now can be. We employ Gestalt and TA in helping a person deal with his problems."

"TA," EXPLAINED Dr. Goulding, "is a theoretical framework first originated by Dr. Eric Berne. It looks at people in a way that people are comprised of three different ego states or personalities. They are Parent, when we behave like our real parents did — scolding, nurturing or whatever; Child, when we are joyful, creative, energetic or intuitive; and Adult, an ego state which is when we process data and act according to data without emotional overlays.

"Gestalt," he continued, "was originated by Dr. Fritz Perls. This method of therapy enables an individual to become totally aware of where he is in the here and now. He learns to be aware of his muscles, the way he uses his voice, the way he shakes his finger or nods his head. He learns to become aware of the contraditions he makes like shaking his head while saying yes. In using gestalt we help people become totally autonomous and respond in a way which is together."

The Gouldings make a contract with patients they see. "When people come in we discuss what it is they want to change," Dr. Goulding said, "what do they want to do differently. What about their current life do they want to be different. The contract could be someone wanting to stop being depressed or someone who wants to be happier in their marriage, more successful or as we just did — with a man — help someone overcome a fear."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Goulding he and his wife have completed treatment with a middle-aged man who for the last 26 years of his life had been afraid to leave his house by himself.

They used a gestalt method of having the patient talk to himself to find out what his fear stemmed from. When he decided it was a message of extreme dislike his mother had given him as a young child he acted his mother's role out to himself so he could come to a better understanding of the fear. He then worked his problem out for himself and became determined he would no longer be afraid to leave his house alone.

"This man had reached an impasse in his life," Dr. Goulding said, "so we helped him realize what he had to do now to change himself so he could get out of serving his past.

Some Auto Costs Tax Deductible

The Chicago Motor Club-AAA reminds motorists in Illinois and Indiana area that certain automobile expenses are tax-deductible and should be included when itemizing federal income tax deductions.

The following is a list of deductions compiled by the club's legal department which all motorists may take:

- State gasoline taxes: 8 cents in Indiana; 7½ cents in Illinois.
- Casualty loses not reimbursed by insurance or other means, if not due to willful negligence. Any deduction for damage to property used for personal purposes is limited to the amount that each loss exceeds $100.
- Interest paid on automobile loans, and so called "finance charges" on revolving charge accounts which may be used to purchase gasoline, oil, or accessories.
- Personal property taxes.
- State and city sales tax on automobiles, parts, accessories and supplies (Illinois state and local tax is 5 per cent; Indiana tax is 2 per cent.)

IF YOU USE YOUR car for business, the Chicago Motor Club-AAA advises you may also deduct these items in whole or part — depending on the extent of business use:

- Motor Club dues; state automobile license fee; municipal vehicle license fee; driver's license fee; automobile insurance premiums; depreciation; gasoline, oil and lubrication expenses; cost of repairs; accessories; washing and polishing expenses; anti-freeze and winterizing charges; garage rent; parking charges; and toll road charges.

Generally, an individual who operates his own car for business travel may figure the cost of his operation by taking a standard mileage rate, instead of maintaining detailed records and itemizing provable costs.

This alternative is not available, however, with respect to an automobile for which a deduction for depreciation based upon a method other than the "straight line" method, has previously been claimed by the taxpayer.

The standard mileage rate is 12 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles of business driving and 9 cents a mile for additional business mileage.

PARKING FEES and toll charges incurred in business driving may be added to the cost figure computed by using the standard mileage rate. The use of the standard mileage rate does not bar a taxpayer from claiming interest and state and local taxes (other than gasoline tax) relating to the car on a returne in which deductions are itemized.

If a taxpayer, who otherwise qualifies, uses more than one automobile alternately, he may compute business mileage on all cars and treat it as having been driven in one car for purposes of this standard deduction. The standard deduction is not available, however, to a person who operates two or more cars simultaneously, nor to anyone other than the owner of the car.

Costs incurred in driving to and from home to a regular place of employment are not deductible for income tax purposes, and any such mileage is to be excluded in applying the standard mileage rate to business driving.

A taxpayer itemizing his deductions may claim as a contribution his reimbursed out-of-pocket expenses of operating an automobile in the course of services to a charitable organization.

Similarly, the cost of using an automobile to obtain medical or dental services may be claimed as medical expense. In either case, a standard rate of six cents per mile may be used instead of itemizing the actual costs, and parking fees and tolls may be added. Depreciation and insurance costs are not claimable if the costs of operation for chairtable or medical purposes are itemized.

It's a puzzle, this life we lead. So many things going on. So many events near and far which make a difference in the way we live — or the way we would like to live.

And there are so many voices which call to us. Extra! Read all about it! Stand by for a special announcement!

The strident voices of a world in turmoil surround us. And yet, there are places where reason and certainty can be found. Good newspapers are such a place. Newspapers which talk instead of scream, newspapers which offer quiet reporting instead of invective.

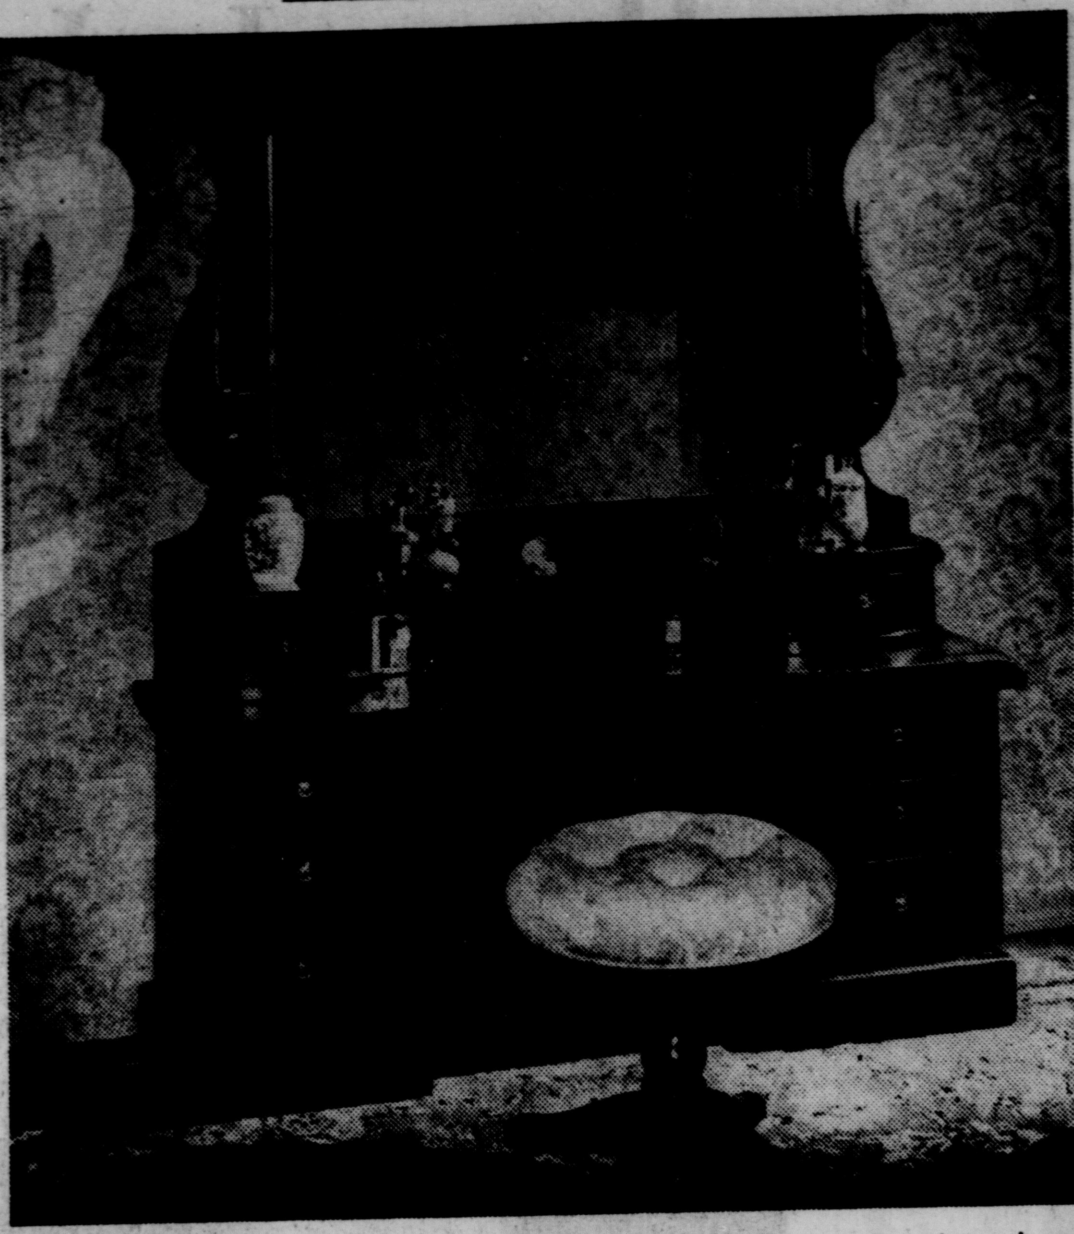
THE "POUCH COUCH" BY Selig is a massive soft sofa "overlapped" with cushioning that adapts to the human body. Its construction is entirely of polyfoam core, swaddled with yards and yards of Dacron wrap. There are no springs, just a sink-in sensation for "comfy" comfort. The sofa, introduced at the January International Home-Furnishings Market in Chicago, will retail for about $650.



SHADES OF GREAT Grandmother! This vanity dresser is practically a copy of the one she was so proud to own. This one in richly grained pine is made by Heywood-Wakefield Co. Handsome swivel stool with its deeply tufted cushion is a comfortable, necessary adjunct for make-up purposes. The vanity is part of the "Old Colony Pine" collection.

Nation's Birthday Influences 1973 Home Furnishings

by FRAN HECKART

Texture and color play a dominant role in contributing freshness to home fashions for 1973.

Fabric offerings at the January International Home-Furnishings Market in Chicago feature reproductions of old designs and new patterns derived from Colonial motifs.

They run the range from smooth nylons, flocked nylon suedes, nylon hopsacking, Olefins, tufted velvets to Italian antelope — in colors from smoke, wine, gold, asparagus to cerulean.

Vivid colors such as rich plum, cranberry, warm earth tones, orange and deep blues are characteristic of the new upholstery fabrics and among the most popular.

A resurgence of Colonial-Early American-Federal, heralding our nation's coming bicentennial celebration, is evident in the new furniture trends. That home furnishings manufacturers would capitalize on the country's upcoming birthday celebration was predictable. But the strong showing of traditional styles more than three years before the event was somewhat surprising for many buyers at the Market.

Even the accessories scene has the spirit of '76 with the big accent color being red this year. The red, white and blue combination is even showing up in carpets.

BILLOWY PILLOW comfort in upholstered units, wall units that stretch farther up the wall to gain storage area, more accent pieces in Oriental design and appealing country styles, derived from English and French designs, are among other noted trends.

Nominated for distinction is Selig's "Pouch Couch" and matching chair with body-conforming construction of polyfoam core, generously swathed in Dacron wrap for sink-in comfort.

Modular seating pieces include a sofa and chair and ottoman designed by Bengt Olof Stavrel for Charlton. They form right, left or U-shaped sectional arrangements and are covered in top grain saddle-stitched leather. Norwalk's armless chair, called the "wedgie," can be used in pairs as a settee or in fours for a sofa.

Noteworthy is a squashy, rounded chair by Harvey Probber in molded foam cushions covered in Italian antelope — with channel seat tufting to add detail. Probber also introduced new seating styles by top European designers, among them an occasional chair of the Bauhaus tradition in handwoven wicker, suede and chrome steel by Hans Konecke of Germany.

ALREADY POPULAR in Europe is a sleek little folding chair with a shaped seat and a comfortable curved backrest distributed in the United States by Directional Industries, Inc.

Another item in the new line of Italian designs by Fain is called the "Go Go Bar." Actually it's an attractive and handy little mobile storage unit for many purposes. Its shiny round shape is divided into two storage bins by two leaves with open ends which form a handle. The leaves pull up and out to become a table top.

Statton's Prospect Queen Anne sofa with its serpentine back flowing into high horizontally rolled arms and Harden's casually beautiful Early American sofas in colorful cottons and linens are signs of Colonial elegance.

RECLINERS EXHIBIT more versatility for 1973. Many conceal pop-up headrests which permit a relatively low-back styling. The Baralounger has dainty smallscaled designs for women and the Stratolounger has a new barrel-back in traditional styling. Kroehler has added more depth to seats and more height to backs of its recliners.

Favorite fabrics for recliners are Olefins, crushed or plain velvet, nylons and vinyls.

Dining groups from the Eastwind collection by Ficks Reed include a rectangular table with glass top on a rattan base and chairs with stately pillared backs, and a round table with cane-back chairs.

Keller's "Raleigh Tavern" Colonial dining collection features the massive, solid look in northern hard rock maple with brass hardware.

New furniture introductions have benefited from 200 years of technology. Fabrics are more durable, case goods are sturdier and upholstered furniture more comfortable than our ancestors could have imagined.

RUSTIC OAK and Colonial Poplar, previously woods seldom used by the furniture industry, appear in some new offerings. These hard woods have a natural distressed look, make an excellent appearance and are economical. These new face woods, as well as many new finishes, seem to give the introductions a warmth not previously emphasized.

To develop figure interest, color depth and wood value, middle tones and overtones have been highlighted in the new pieces. The detailing of moulding and carvings have been made a part of the furniture piece by the skillful blending of overtone glazes. To produce the effect of a carefully preserved antique, distressing techniques — from hand color padding, spatter, crayon distressing to smudging — have been employed. A low-key sheen is generally used on a highly distressed finish, while luster is favored for a Georgian reproduction.

For more information about any home furnishings mentioned, readers may call 394-2300, Ex. 263. Additional pictures on p. 5.

THE "GO GO BAR" serves many and varied purposes. Two leaves, which act as a storage divider and a handle, pull up to create a small table. Made in shiny and durable plastic, the mobile storage piece is available in white, tangerine, yellow or cocoa. It's part of the Italian designed collection by Fain, which Directional Industries will make and distribute in the United States.

PENTHOUSE DINING ENSEMBLE by Howell is a modern version of Early American design. A decorator touch is notted in the stretchers on the chrome trestle bases that are covered in fabric to match chair upholstery. There's a note of contrast in the simulated woven cane backs of chairs and the smoke-toned upholstery. The rectangular table has smoke-color glass top.

Rehabilitation medicine specialists in Bridgeport, Conn. have found that long-term patients avoid bed sores when they sleep on ordinary air mattresses filled with warm water. An ordinary electric blanket furnishes heat.

More than 500 patients have slept on such mattresses at Bridgeport Hospital over a three-year period and none have developed bed sores.

No Bed Sores

More than 500 patients have slept on such mattresses at Bridgeport Hospital over a three-year period and none have developed bed sores.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Perhaps you recently heard about the man who has devised a way to run a car on after-shave lotion, instead of gas. (At last! A use for all that Christmas Old Spice.)

But did you know that a British inventor, Harold Bates of Devon, Staffordshire, runs his car with chicken power? This 62-year-old Englishman has found a way of converting chicken droppings into gas. Bates says he has managed to drive his 1953 Hillman at speeds up to 75 m.p.h. on his chicken manure fuel.

Bates' 'chicken coupe' has been investigated and upheld by the British Ministry of Transport. The bureau has looked into it and found that Bates' carburetor conversion device works perfectly. Bates says he has been running his car and five-ton truck on the methane chicken gas — as well as heating his home with it — for years. (Just wait until "Little Bill" gets wind of this!)

BATES EXPLAINS his system thusly: Put about three buckets of chicken manure into a sealed oil drum. Put a small oil heater under the drum to keep the manure at a steady 80 degrees. Two microbes in the manure — when heated — eat each other and produce the gas. Then collect the gas in a bottle or plastic balloon for storage. Then all you do is feed the methane through an adapter in your carburetor.

Bates replenishes his manure supply with fresh dung every six months. He claims that chicken power runs a car faster and cleaner, since no carbon deposits on the cylinders, it doesn't produce carbon monoxide fumes and doesn't produce engine wear.

Bates' slogan could very well be "Put a chicken in your tank," or "You expect more from manure and you get it."

THE BATES thing also reminds me of another piece of manure news:

Agricultural "geniuses" have found a way to turn cattle manure into cattle feed. The manure from feedlots is recycled into a high-protein food substances that is fed right back to the cattle.

But nobody has yet to ask the cows how they like it.

Neighbors Since Childhood Are Wed

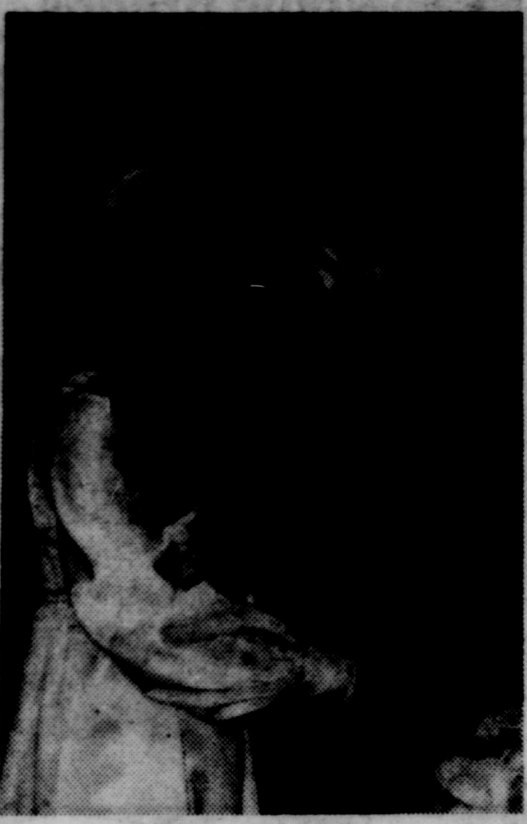
Neighbors on North Pine Street, Mount Prospect, were married Dec. 23 and have gone to Normal, Ill., to make their first home.

The newlyweds are Linda Thompson and Peter Klein, who have been friends since they were seven years old, going to grade school and Prospect High together and dating for the past four years.

They have lived just five houses from each other. Linda's family, the Frank Thompsons, are at 10 N. Pine St. and Peter's parents, the William Kleins, are at 30 N. Pine.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in a one o'clock ceremony in South Church Community Baptist and then greeted 175 guests at a reception at the Maitre 'D Restaurant in Elk Grove. After a four-day honeymoon at a mountain lodge, they left for Normal where Peter is a junior at Illinois State University.

He studied at Eastern Illinois University for two years before going to Illinois State, and his bride went to Harper College for two years.



Mr. and Mrs. Peter Klein

They were attended by several of their Mount Prospect friends as well as the groom's sister and the bride's two brothers. Among Linda's friends were Cathy Leonetti as maid of honor and Pam Zauner and Paula Szarban as bridesmaids. The groom's sister, Mrs. Debbi Kern of Normal, was also a bridesmaid.

Peter chose Bill Rotolo as best man, and his other attendants included Dave Fisher, Craig Lortie, Jack Kern of Normal and Linda's brothers, Ed and Steve Thompson.

The bride's Juliet styled headpiece held an elbow-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and light blue baby's breath.

Their bouquets were of red carnations with greens.

Linda and Peter are both working in Normal while he attends the university. She is with State Farm Insurance and he with Napa Auto Parts.

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the average worker passes the age of 65, he usually is not as efficient as a younger man, is injured more often and is absent from work for longer periods — right or wrong?

Wrong, reports the Institute of Life Insurance. A survey by the New York State Division of Human Rights concludes that workers over 65 perform their jobs "about equal to and sometimes better than younger workers." The older workers also have fewer on-the-job accidents and are less often absent from work because of illness.

Christman-Langseth Rites Performed In Lancaster, Pa.

The Marvin H. Langseth family of Arlington Heights traveled to Pennsylvania the weekend of Jan. 6 for the marriage of son Peter to Christina M. Christman. Peter's bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle W. Christman of Lancaster, where the wedding was solemnized in the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity.

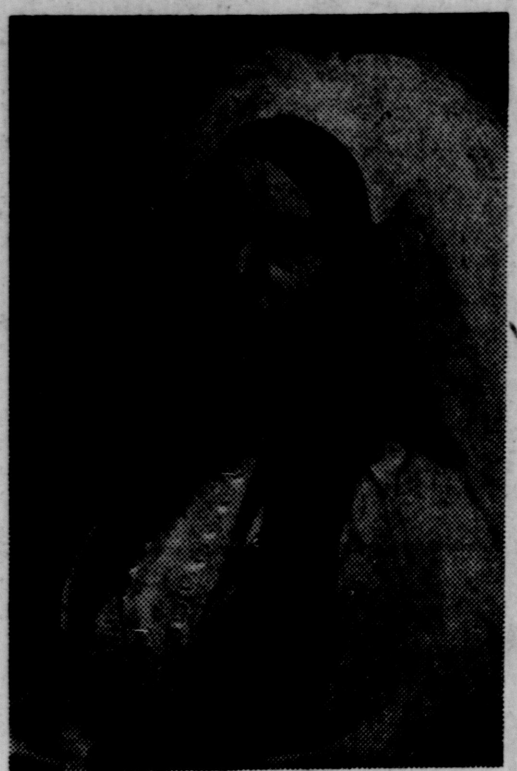
Peter is a graduate of Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., and works for Buckeye Pipeline Co. in that city. Christina is a senior at Cedar Crest College nearby in Allentown.

SHE WAS GIVEN in marriage by her brother, E. W. Christman Jr. of Lancaster, at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Her wedding ensemble included a cream colored gown of sata peau with rows of satin ribbon and Venise lace running down the Empire bodice from the high neck to the waist. A ribbon and lace headpiece held her bouffant veil and she carried a nosegay of cream colored roses.

Christina's attendants were Mrs. Thomas L. Trainor of Lancaster as matron of honor and bridesmaids Joan Cort, Bethel Park; Mrs. William Hittenger, Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. Roscoe Connell, Bethlehem; and Mrs. John Eckman, Palmerton, Pa.

THE GIRLS WORE sapphire blue velvet gowns trimmed with ivory lace and carried nosegays of yellow and blue carnations.



Mrs. Peter Langseth

Serving as best man was James Ferketic of Pittsburgh. Ushers were E. W. Christman Jr. and the bridegroom's three brothers, Gordon, Stephen and Mark Langseth.

After the ceremony there was a reception in the church hall.

The newlyweds are living in Whitehall, Pa.

A Reminder To Brides

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Dear Dorothy: I've got cat trouble, even though we have no cat. Our neighbor got one and her little girl adores it. But it has almost ruined the shrubs in front of our house attending to its daily needs. I don't want to hurt the animal, but I do want to discourage these visits.

The way things are going, the bushes will have to be uprooted in the spring, not to mention the other disadvantages of the situation. Any counsel you can offer?—Mrs. A.T.C.

Some people with similar problems have reported success by using powdered tobacco and dried blood. Both of these, however, have to be used with restraint around flower beds because they can drastically change the character of the soil. Nicotine spray also has been used successfully in some instances.

The best reports have come from those who have discouraged such animal visits by making the zone too prickly for comfort. Rose branches and twigs and branches from the barberry bush are best; and some people have surrounded their shrubs with wire hangers laced together and stuck into the ground so as to form a protective metal wall.

Dear Dorothy: It's very hard to give our 18-month-old boy any kind of medicine — and the process was beginning to wear both of us out. Then I remembered that ice on the tongue makes bad-tasting medicine much more palatable. Since he loves to suck on ice, the medicine bit has now become less of a battle and more of a game.—Hester Marcum

Dear Dorothy: When a glass baking dish is hard to clean because of a burnt-on residue, I make a solution of one part chlorine bleach to four parts water — and let the pan soak overnight. Then it's cinch to clean the next morning.—Hildreth Meadows

Neighbors Since Childhood Are Wed

Neighbors on North Pine Street, Mount Prospect, were married Dec. 23 and have gone to Normal, Ill., to make their first home.

The newlyweds are Linda Thompson and Peter Klein, who have been friends since they were seven years old, going to grade school and Prospect High together and dating for the past four years.

They have lived just five houses from each other. Linda's family, the Frank Thompsons, are at 10 N. Pine St. and Peter's parents, the William Kleins, are at 30 N. Pine.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in a one o'clock ceremony in South Church Community Baptist and then greeted 175 guests at a reception at the Maitre 'D Restaurant in Elk Grove. After a four-day honeymoon at a mountain lodge, they left for Normal where Peter is a junior at Illinois State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Klein

He studied at Eastern Illinois University for two years before going to Illinois State, and his bride went to Harper College for two years.

They were attended by several of their Mount Prospect friends as well as the groom's sister and the bride's two brothers. Among Linda's friends were Cathy Leonetti as maid of honor and Pam Zauner and Paula Szarban as bridesmaids. The groom's sister, Mrs. Debbi Kern of Normal, was also a bridesmaid.

Peter chose Bill Rotolo as best man, and his other attendants included Dave Fisher, Craig Lortie, Jack Kern of Normal and Linda's brothers, Ed and Steve Thompson.

Linda came down the church aisle in an ivory satin gown, Empire styled with a high neckline and long full sleeves with a wide cuff. The dress was accented with light blue velvet ribbon running through bands of old-fashioned lace.

The bride's Juliet styled headpiece held an elbow-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and light blue baby's breath.

Their bouquets were of red carnations with greens.

Linda and Peter are both working in Normal while he attends the university. She is with State Farm Insurance and he with Napa Auto Parts.

Volunteer Aids Maternity Center

Mrs. Wayne Kupstis, 101 St. Armand Lane, Wheeling, is a member of a team of volunteers working on the 1973 Enrollment Drive of the Chicago Maternity Center.

For more than twenty-five years now, women have been "enrolling" support for the traveling maternity hospital. Teams are set up in various areas of the city and the suburbs, headed by one or two local women. Team members fan out into their neighborhoods by writing to local people enlisting financial support for the Maternity Center.

The 1973 drive, extending from February through March, is expected to help meet the year's operating budget of $500,000.

Organized more than 75 years ago, the Maternity Center is known for the work of its doctors and nurses who attend low income mothers at childbirth in their homes. The Center offers clinic care for the expectant mother, and care for the mother and baby after delivery. Family planning and counselling are also provided.

In addition, doctors, medical students and nurses receive training and research projects are conducted. Last year the Maternity Center was instrumental in assuring the safe birth in their own homes at minimum expense of some 1,000 babies.

Volunteer Aids Maternity Center

Mrs. Wayne Kupstis, 101 St. Armand Lane, Wheeling, is a member of a team of volunteers working on the 1973 Enrollment Drive of the Chicago Maternity Center.

For more than twenty-five years now, women have been "enrolling" support for the traveling maternity hospital. Teams are set up in various areas of the city and the suburbs, headed by one or two local women. Team members fan out into their neighborhoods by writing to local people enlisting financial support for the Maternity Center.

The 1973 drive, extending from February through March, is expected to help meet the year's operating budget of $500,000.

Organized more than 75 years ago, the Maternity Center is known for the work of its doctors and nurses who attend low income mothers at childbirth in their homes. The Center offers clinic care for the expectant mother, and care for the mother and baby after delivery. Family planning and counselling are also provided.

In addition, doctors, medical students and nurses receive training and research projects are conducted. Last year the Maternity Center was instrumental in assuring the safe birth in their own homes at minimum expense of some 1,000 babies.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

With cold and flu season reaching a peak, Americans are now particularly vulnerable — not only to the "bug," but to the "medicine men" who parade across the nation's TV screens with more "remedies" than a witch doctor could shake a stick at.

Before you stock up your medicine cabinet, you would be well advised to check out what a recent publication by "Consumer Reports" has to say.

According to this paperback, entitled "The Medicine Show," you're wasting your money on the antihistamines, the "timed-release" cold capsules, the cough medicines, the gargles and the various pain relievers.

The subject of pain relievers has been treated before by CR, whose technicians found that the active ingredient in all of them — Anacin, Excedrin, Bufferin, etc. — is aspirin, and that the additional ingredients — often nothing more than caffeine — serve no purpose. So CR recommends you buy plain aspirin, and the least expensive brand at that.

Antihistamines, CR reports, "have proved of no real value against the common cold," and often produce unpleasant side effects. Sustained release preparations, such as Contac, contain nothing different than common cold remedies, and the release of ingredients depends on the particular patient, according to CR.

Since release of ingredients is unpredictable, such capsules must carry the warning that they may be dangerous to children, the elderly and persons with such conditions as high blood pressure, heart disease, thyroid disease and diabetes, CR points out.

As for the cough "silencers," sucking a hard candy will produce the same results, CR says. About the only relief for a cough is to moisten and soothe the throat; to stop the reflex action of coughing requires a narcotic drug, such as codeine, which will act as a depressant on the brain. But CR reports that the drug doses present in non-prescription remedies will not have this effect, and to take a stronger dose would be inadvisable.

Antiseptic gargles, CR says, are "an obvious waste," since they will not affect viruses, and bacteria is unlikely to cause sore throat unless the mucuous lining has been broken. In that case, the gargle still won't reach the area of the throat behind the nose, where infection will settle.

An adequately stocked medicine cabinet, according to CR, need only contain the folllowing: Aspirin for headaches and cold symptoms (may be halved or quartered for children; candy aspirin can too easily be eaten in quantity by mischievous toddlers, and Liquiprin, CR says, is less effective).

Sodium bicarbonate or calcium carbonate for indigestion; simple antacids, such as Tums, and Rolaids, also good; calamine lotion for mild skin irritations, as insect bites, poison ivy; rubbing alcohol for antiseptic use (keep skin around a wound wet with alcohol for two minutes, and gently wash with water).

Used car buyers have long suspected — and some have had proof — that dealers set back the speedometer to make the car more appealing and to get a higher price for it.

As of today, this practice will be illegal. A new federal law prohibits disconnecting, altering or resetting an "odometer" with intent to defraud. It also provides for certification of actual mileage whenever ownership is transferred and it packs a penalty of $1,500 or three times the damages — whichever is greater — for violators.

The law permits ilegitimate odometer service, repair or replacement as long as the mileage reading remains the same. If that is impossible, a notice must be posted in the vehicle stating that the mileage has been reset to zero, the date of repair and the mileage at the time.

The Department of Transportation will be administering the new law, which applies to all motor vehicles.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

With cold and flu season reaching a peak, Americans are now particularly vulnerable — not only to the "bug," but to the "medicine men" who parade across the nation's TV screens with more "remedies" than a witch doctor could shake a stick at.

Before you stock up your medicine cabinet, you would be well advised to check out what a recent publication by "Consumer Reports" has to say.

According to this paperback, entitled "The Medicine Show," you're wasting your money on the antihistamines, the "timed-release" cold capsules, the cough medicines, the gargles and the various pain relievers.

The subject of pain relievers has been treated before by CR, whose technicians found that the active ingredient in all of them — Anacin, Excedrin, Bufferin, etc. — is aspirin, and that the additional ingredients — often nothing more than caffeine — serve no purpose. So CR recommends you buy plain aspirin, and the least expensive brand at that.

Antihistamines, CR reports, "have proved of no real value against the common cold," and often produce unpleasant side effects. Sustained release preparations, such as Contac, contain nothing different than common cold remedies, and the release of ingredients depends on the particular patient, according to CR.

Since release of ingredients is unpredictable, such capsules must carry the warning that they may be dangerous to children, the elderly and persons with such conditions as high blood pressure, heart disease, thyroid disease and diabetes, CR points out.

As for the cough "silencers," sucking a hard candy will produce the same results, CR says. About the only relief for a cough is to moisten and soothe the throat; to stop the reflex action of coughing requires a narcotic drug, such as codeine, which will act as a depressant on the brain. But CR reports that the drug doses present in non-prescription remedies will not have this effect, and to take a stronger dose would be inadvisable.

Antiseptic gargles, CR says, are "an obvious waste," since they will not affect viruses, and bacteria is unlikely to cause sore throat unless the mucuous lining has been broken. In that case, the gargle still won't reach the area of the throat behind the nose, where infection will settle.

An adequately stocked medicine cabinet, according to CR, need only contain the folllowing: Aspirin for headaches and cold symptoms (may be halved or quartered for children; candy aspirin can too easily be eaten in quantity by mischievous toddlers, and Liquiprin, CR says, is less effective).

Sodium bicarbonate or calcium carbonate for indigestion; simple antacids, such as Tums, and Rolaids, also good; calamine lotion for mild skin irritations, as insect bites, poison ivy; rubbing alcohol for antiseptic use (keep skin around a wound wet with alcohol for two minutes, and gently wash with water).

Used car buyers have long suspected — and some have had proof — that dealers set back the speedometer to make the car more appealing and to get a higher price for it.

As of today, this practice will be illegal. A new federal law prohibits disconnecting, altering or resetting an "odometer" with intent to defraud. It also provides for certification of actual mileage whenever ownership is transferred and it packs a penalty of $1,500 or three times the damages — whichever is greater — for violators.

The law permits ilegitimate odometer service, repair or replacement as long as the mileage reading remains the same. If that is impossible, a notice must be posted in the vehicle stating that the mileage has been reset to zero, the date of repair and the mileage at the time.

The Department of Transportation will be administering the new law, which applies to all motor vehicles.
